DULLES SUBMITS PLAN TO PARLEY FOR WORLD BODY TO CONTROL SUEZ

India Offers Rival Proposal for International Board With Advisory Functions Only.

LONDON, Aug. 20 (UP)—Secretary of State John Foster Dulles presented to the Suez conference today the West's proposal that an international board be set up with absolute authority for "operating, maintaining and developing" the Suez canal.

Dulles and India's Ambassador V. K. Krishna Menon drew sharp factional lines at today's fifth session of the 22-nation conference.

Menon introduced a proposal which, in sharp contrast to the Dulles plan indorsed by the United States, Britain and France, would give Egypt full rights to own and operate the Suez canal. Under the Menon plan, a consultative body made up of nations using the canal would have advisory functions only.

Dulles said that under the West's plan Egypt would retain sovereign rights over the canal and be a member of the international board. But it would not have the exclusive operating rights over the strategic waterway which President Nasser has demanded and which the Menon plan would give it.

Dulles Argument.

(The Associated Press said Dulles, in submitting the Western "declaration of principles," said a definite system must be established "to guarantee at all times and for all the powers the free use of the Suez maritime canal."

(He said of the proposals presented here that "no majority—however large—can bind a minority however small."

("This is not a conference to negotiate with Egypt, for Egypt is not here," Dulles said. "This is not a conference through which to deliver any kind of ultimatum to Egypt."

(Dulles said the task of the conference is "to arrive at the greatest possible consensus as to what will best enable the Suez canal to serve dependably its intended purpose of promoting the free and secure exchange of products between the countries of the world and, above, all to be a secure link between Europe and Asia.

(Though there was no discussion of the two plans at today's session, Menon obviously failed to sway Western diplomats with his proffered compromise, the A.P. said.)

Menon appealed to the United States, Britain and France to "rise to the occasion and adopt the part of negotiators not dictators."

"Any kind of dictation will reverse the current set in motion during the last 30 or 40 years in relations between Asia and Europe," he said.

Menon's Five Points.

The five-point Menon plan proposed:

1. Revision of the 1888 Constantinople convention to insure "just and equitable tolls."
2. Calling a conference of signatories of the 1888 convention and all user nations to consider revision of the convention.
3. Association of international users' interests with the new nationalized Egyptian canal company "without prejudice to Egyptian ownership and operation.
4. Establishment of a consultative body of users on the basis of geographic representation and interests, charged with "advisory, consultative and liaison functions."
5. The Egyptian Government

RED BLOC YOUTH GROUPS SAID TO HAVE OFFERED TO JOIN EGYPT'S ARMY

© New York Times News Service

CAIRO, Aug. 20.

AN EGYPTIAN army official reported yesterday that members of youth organizations in the Soviet Union and other Communist-ruled countries had volunteered to join Egypt's new liberation army if fighting breaks out over the Suez canal crisis.

Maj. Ahmed Shuhaib, commander of the Egyptian Youth Legion, said he had received "several applications" from youths in the Soviet Union, Communist China, Bulgaria and Yugoslavia.

Egypt thanked the applicants, he said, and promised to call on them "if ever they were needed."

LIQUOR LOSES OUT TO TEA AND JUICE AT SUEZ PARLEY

LONDON, Aug. 20 (AP)—The Suez canal conference—dealing with 103 miles of salt water flowing through a desert—is the driest international conference for many years.

"The delegates," said David R. Owen, the caterer handling the bar, "are drinking practically nothing alcoholic. But we're dishing out great lashings of tea and fruit juice."

Members of a number of delegations at Lancaster House agreed little alcohol was being consumed, but they differed sharply on the reasons.

"I've looked all over the place for a whisky," said a thirsty American, "and I just haven't been able to find it. I decided it must be a dry conference in deference to the Moslems attending."

Alcohol is prohibited to orthodox Moslems.

"There's plenty to drink," said Sir George Young, of the host British delegation, "but no gentleman would think of drinking spirits at 4:45 in the afternoon." That's when the conference has an intermission.

"This is a strange conference," said the caterer, "the drinks are free to the delegates, yet they aren't drinking them. Now down at the press house we charge for them and the business is extremely brisk."

FIVE PLAY POKER FROM CALIFORNIA TO MIDDLE EAST

LONDON, Aug. 20 (UP)—Five American business men who started a poker game when their plane took off from San Francisco yesterday were still at it today 24 hours later without a stop as their flight winged on toward the Middle East.

Even a 40-minute stopover at London airport failed to interrupt the non-stop play. The unidentified five gathered around an airport lounge table.

When their plane was ready to continue on to Tel Aviv, they scooped up big stacks of five, ten and 20-dollar bills and their cards and moved back to the aircraft.

Another passenger on the San Francisco-London leg of the flight said, "None of them stopped playing for a moment during the journey."

HUSBAND-HUNTING GIRLS JAM ISLAND, BACHELORS HIDE

FEJOE, Denmark, Aug. 20 (UP)—Fejoe's bashful bachelors hid out today from a mass invasion by 350 determined husband-hunting spinsters.

They gathered in the hideouts prepared by Karl Alex Joergensen, chairman of the Bachelors' Club on this tiny South Zeeland island. They said they intended to stay until the heat was off.

More than 350 women from Denmark, Sweden and Germany invaded Fejoe to look for a husband. The "bachelors' festival" organized by an enterprising Copenhagen advertising agency was paying big dividends.

The festival started Saturday evening and yesterday the island swarmed with women.

"I'm here to get a husband and I'm staying until I do," said Elly Nielsen, 22, an attractive brunette.

Fejoe has the reputation of being the Danish province with the largest proportion of bachelors. Hundreds of them live in the island's two villages and work on the fishing boats in the Baltic.

HODGE IS GIVEN 12 TO 15 YEARS BY STATE, SEEMS NEAR COLLAPSE

Testifies Investments and Political Costs Led Him to Steal — Pleaded Guilty on 46 Counts.

By ROBERT H. COLLINS
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. — Orville Hodge was sentenced to 12 to 15 years in prison today on state charges. He appeared near collapse when sentence was pronounced.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Aug. 20—Orville E. Hodge, ousted Illinois state auditor, testified today that "investments" and "heavy political expenses" led him to take state funds estimated at more than $1,000,000 by authorities.

The testimony of Hodge, a crushed and sick man who answered questions in a weak voice, was taken at a hearing to determine what sentence he should receive on his plea of guilty to 46 indictments charging embezzlement, forgery and confidence game operations involving state funds.

As Sangamon county State's Attorney George P. Coutrakon persistently questioned the perspiring witness on how and why he took the money, Hodge protested:

"I've been under a strain. My mind is not functioning as it should. George, you're a sadistical fellow to do what you're doing. I've pleaded guilty. You'll have to answer to someone up there for what you're doing.

"I don't know what I'm doing. This is just like a three-ring circus, and, George, I know you're having a lot of satisfaction, but I've never seen a more sadistical person."

Clutches at Chest.

After an hour of testifying before Circuit Judge Clem Smith, Hodge clutched at his chest, mopped his forehead and indicated he was ill. Assisted by a court attache, he tottered down from the stand and was taken to a restroom. He returned after a 25-minute recess and resumed his testimony.

When Hodge's attorney, Arthur M. Fitzgerald, objected strongly to calling the former auditor to the stand, saying that Hodge has already been questioned by authorities, Coutrakon replied that those answers were not under oath.

"If you are going to ask leniency for Mr. Hodge, then you have no right to object to his taking the stand," Coutrakon said. "There are a lot of things unexplained about this matter and one of them is what's happened to the money.

'Chance to Lie, Squirm.'

"This court and the people of Illinois have the right to know what he did with the money. It's true that I have a statement from him, but it was not taken under oath. He had the chance to lie, squirm and evade because he was not under oath. He should be put on the stand so he can be tried for perjury if he lies."

Fitzgerald interrupted: "Sentences are supposed to be just. This man is not physically well. His mental condition is not good at this time. He is penitent, but his mind is not functioning as it should.

"I don't think he knows the amount of money he received in this matter or ever will know. I can see no purpose in this."

When Hodge, who wore a dark suit, white shirt and black tie, finally took the witness chair, Coutrakon asked: "How did you embark on the plan to steal this money from the State of Illinois?"

"You have my statement, George," Hodge replied, again addressing the state's attorney by his first name. "I don't know why you're prosecuting me, but I'll try to answer the questions. You know what the statement is. Isn't that enough?"

Prosecutor Persists.

"Why did you take the money?" Coutrakon persisted.

"I took the money to make some investments, and I had some political expenses which were heavy," Hodge said.

"When did you first decide to steal this money?"

The defendant at first said he did not remember, then stated he thought it was in April of 1954.

"What was your plan for

MISSOURI GROUP AT CONVENTION REJECTS 'DUMP NIXON,' 25 TO 7

By CURTIS A. BETTS
Former Political Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 20—The Missouri delegation to the Republican National Convention last night rejected the "dump Nixon" campaign of presidential assistant Harold E. Stassen, giving it a severe setback. Stassen had relied strongly on Missouri.

In the poll the delegation voted 25 to 7 to support Nixon for renomination, repudiating not only Stassen but two of the party's leaders in Missouri, National Committeeman Elroy W. Bromwich and Carl G. Stifel, both of whom had made substantial contributions to assist in financing a public opinion poll sponsored by Stassen to test public opinion on Nixon.

In addition to Bromwick and Stifel, the following Missouri delegates refused to indorse Nixon's renomination: Norman C. Perker of Ferguson, chairman of the St. Louis County Republican Committee; John J. Schroeder, member of the St. Louis Republican City Committee; Mrs. Ann R. Becker, University City; Lawrence K. Roos, chairman of the St. Louis County Republican Finance Committee, and John O. Price of St. Louis.

No Choice Expressed.

None of the seven expressed a choice for the vice-presidential nomination, merely passing when their names were called.

After blasting Stassen's hope of having strong Missouri support in his campaign to keep Nixon off the ticket, the pro-Nixon Missouri delegates rushed over to the Vice President's suite at the Mark Hopkins Hotel to inform Nixon personally of their backing.

The Vice President and Mrs. Nixon met and thanked each of the Missourians. Nixon then made a 15-minute talk to them in which he stressed party unity and expressed his desire for an open convention.

Earlier, Stassen had received a cool reception when he dropped in on a cocktail party and buffet supper given by Bromwich for the Missouri crowd. Stassen shook hands with the guests, but there was no rush to him and not a single handclap when he entered the room. He remained only a few minutes.

In his talk to the Missourians, who crowded into a small parlor in his suite, Nixon said he wanted a "free and open" convention, and said he had made his wishes known to President Eisenhower and Leonard W. Hall, chairman of the Republican National Committee.

'Let Delegates Decide.'

He said he respects the right of those who disagree with him to sponsor other candidates for the G.O.P. vice presidential nomination. The names of other persons should be placed before the convention "and let the delegates decide," he added.

By his manner and his statement, the Vice President left no doubt as to his confidence that he will be renominated.

"I told the President and Mr. Hall that I wanted a free and open convention," he asserted. "I said I don't want any laying on of hands.

"This thing (the vice presidential nomination), should be discussed and decided on its merits. My record is known. It has been cussed and discussed for some time."

Bromwich, Stifel and the five other Missouri delegates who refused to indorse Nixon's candidacy at the caucus, belatedly joined the other Missouri delegates at Nixon's suite and heard his talk.

At the conclusion of the delegation meeting, Bromwich and his backers said they would be unable to visit Nixon because of a "previous engagement," but they made an unexpected appearance in the Vice President's suite, which drew a round of applause from those who had repudiated Bromwich a short time before.

Nixon Poses With Bromwich.

Nixon referred to the Missouri fight in his talk, saying that it was all right for Republicans to fight each other as long as the fight did not endanger the party's chances of winning the election in November.

He said he realized that there were persons in the party who

PLATFORM SET, NEAR UNANIMOUS ACCORD REACHED ON CIVIL RIGHTS

Proposed Foreign Policy Plank On Page 5A.

By GEORGE H. HALL
A Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 20—Republican platform writers finished work on their 1956 platform early today. They expected to have the document in print by this evening and ready for presentation to the national convention tomorrow night.

Prolonged discussion over a civil rights plank, the last section to be considered, delayed completion of the platform. The closed meeting of the 105-member Platform Committee, which had been in practically continuous session since 2 p.m., yesterday, ended at 1:30 a.m. Senator Prescott S. Bush of Connecticut, the chairman, told reporters that the civil rights plank "reflects President Eisenhower's viewpoint very faithfully."

Bush said he knew what the President wanted because he discussed the matter with him at the White House, Aug 1. He said yesterday he had discussed the plank in San Francisco with Attorney General Herbert Brownell Jr. and Maxwell Rabb, a presidential assistant.

Virtually Unanimous.

The plank was adopted "virtually unanimously," Bush said.

Bush, indicating general satisfaction on all sides, said there would be no minority report filed from the committee.

Indications were the original draft had been softened somewhat in deference to Southern delegates. Several Southerners said the plank as it was finally adopted was "more harmonious" and "more agreeable" to the South than formerly.

"It is a stronger plank than that of the Democrats," Bush said.

Bush said Senator Everett McKinley Dirksen of Illinois had been "most helpful" on the whole issue. Dirksen headed a subcommittee that drafted a preliminary plank. Dirksen asserted the final draft would include an unequivocal statement on the Supreme Court decision barring racial segregation in the public schools.

The group seeking a more moderate plank was led by delegate Thad T. Hutcheson of Texas and Miss Margaret Twiggs of Georgia. Dirksen apparently lost some ground to them during the session last night and early today.

Mentions Supreme Court.

Bush said the final draft mentioned the Supreme Court but he refused to say what it recommended in the way of compliance with the court decision. Southern Republicans, hoping to continue the gains made by President Eisenhower in 1952 in the south, have opposed a "strong" civil rights plank.

Hutcheson said the plank represented a "gradualist" approach to the problem.

"I feel we can carry the state for Ike under it in November," he said.

Miss Twiggs said "several changes" had been made in the original rights proposal that made it "more agreeable" though not satisfactory to the

PRESIDENT PLANS EARLIER FLIGHT TO CONVENTION

Eisenhower to Leave Tomorrow — Wants 'More Time to Visit Delegates.'

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20 (AP)—A change in plans will put President Eisenhower in San Francisco in time to take a personal hand, if he wants to, in the designation of his vice-presidential running mate. There was no new indication he plans to do so.

White House Press Secretary James C. Hagerty said yesterday Mr. Eisenhower will leave tomorrow — 24 hours earlier than he had planned—for the Republican national convention. He said Mr. Eisenhower wants more time "to visit with many of his friends who are delegates."

A key Administration official who asked not to be named said the change in plans was "in no way related" to the second-spot nomination. The nomination is expected to go to Vice President Nixon despite Harold E. Stassen's efforts to keep Nixon off the ticket.

This official said Mr. Eisenhower allowed himself an extra day in San Francisco "because he does not want to give any slightest impression of remaining aloof from the convention," and so he can talk with friends.

Under the revised schedule, the President will leave Washington by plane at 11 a.m. (St. Louis time) tomorrow and arrive at San Francisco at 8:30 p.m. (St. Louis time). The convention will nominate the presidential and vice-presidential candidates the following day.

Hagerty called an unusual Sunday news conference to announce the change, but cast no new light on Mr. Eisenhower's preference for a running mate. Instead, he referred to earlier Eisenhower news conferences at which the President had said

SESSION BEGINS WITH PLEA FOR G.O.P. CONGRESS

Hall Pledges 'Free and Open Convention' — Knight Welcomes Delegates.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 20 (AP)—The opening session of the Republican National Convention, aside from getting organized, made a pitch today angled to election of a Republican Congress.

Picked as the main speakers were Representative Richard Simpson of Pennsylvania and Senator Andrew Schoeppel of Kansas, heads of the House and Senate campaign committees.

Their argument: President Eisenhower needs a Republican Congress so his program will be supported with "whole-hearted co-operation" instead of being hampered by "partisan heckling."

Everybody Happy.

Even before calling the opening session to order—at 11:26 (St. Louis time) — National Chairman Leonard Hall cried out, "Is everybody happy?"

The crowd roared back "Yes."

A surprisingly large crowd was on hand for the opening ceremonies. The main floor, where delegates and alternates set on hard "undertaker" chairs, the well filled and the galleries about one-third filled.

Hall got in a few shots at the Democrats in his prepared opening remarks.

"There is nothing," he gibed, "that we need say about Adlai Stevenson that (Estes) Kefauver hasn't already said. There is nothing that we need say about the Stevenson-Kefauver ticket that Harry Truman hasn't already said."

Kefauver said harsh things about Stevenson in primary struggles.

And Truman, before Stevenson finally won the Democratic presidential nomination, battled against giving it to him on the ground that Stevenson "can't win." Of course, Truman took it back after the nomination was settled.

Pledges Open Convention.

Hall pledged a "free and open convention" on nomination of presidential and vice presidential candidates, and adoption of a platform.

He told the delegates: "You, and you alone, will choose our presidential nominee . . . our vice presidential nominee . . . and adopt the platform of our party."

Hall, who has backed Vice President Richard M. Nixon all along for renomination, made no mention of the drive by Harold Stassen to replace Nixon with Gov. Christian A. Herter of Massachusetts. But Hall said at one point: "In this hall hang the pictures of two men whose official conduct during the last 3½ years has brought the smile back to the faces of America . . .

"I refer to that great native Californian, who is one of our hosts, Vice President Richard M. Nixon, and the greatest President of our times, Dwight D. Eisenhower."

California's Gov. Goodwin J.

VICE PRESIDENT'S CAMP PREDICTS EISENHOWER WILL HELP BY SILENCE

Stassen Revolt Likely to Die if Chief Executive Fails to Offer List of Acceptable Running Mates.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 20 (AP)—The Republican national convention opened today with its candidates already determined, its platform drafted and four days of televised pageantry awaiting the delegates.

Any earlier doubts that Richard M. Nixon would again be the running mate of President Eisenhower or that civil rights differences over the platform would be compromised had been removed by the time delegates began arriving at the Cow Palace for the opening session.

Clear Track Ahead.

The word to associates of Nixon was that the President would leave the track clear for him by not submitting, either publicly or privately, any list of men he regards as qualified and acceptable to him as a running mate.

The assurance was described as having come from an intimate presidential associate not in the White House in direct response to an inquiry from a voluntary group of friends set up to work for Nixon's renomination.

This group, maintaining close contact with top White House staff members, was organized yesterday to fight for Nixon's nomination on the convention floor if Mr. Eisenhower should change his mind and not remain silent about his running mate.

Stassen's Hopes.

Harold E. Stassen has pinned his "dump Nixon" campaign to the hope that the President would let it be known before the convention votes Wednesday that others beside Nixon would be equally suitable as a vice-presidential nominee.

In the absence of any indication from Mr. Eisenhower that others are acceptable, Nixon's renomination appeared to everybody — probably even to Stassen—as about as certain as the shout of acclamation scheduled to greet the formal offering of the President's name to the convention by Representative Charles Halleck of Indiana.

(A United Press survey of state delegations today indicated Nixon's first-ballot strength to be at least 1156 votes. There are 1323 votes in the convention, and 662 are required for nomination.

(Only a smattering of favorable sentiment for Stassen's "dump Nixon" drive was found by United Press reporters, and some of that was in delegations bound by the unit rule to vote for Nixon. Only five definite anti-Nixon votes were turned up in delegations not bound by unit rule.)

(In Washington James C. Hagerty, White House press secretary, said that so far as he knows the President has sent no list of acceptable candidates to the convention. He remarked that a question as to whether Mr. Eisenhower would send such a list was "one with 16 'ifs' in it." He declined to elaborate.)

Hall Knows of No List.

Republican National Chairman Leonard W. Hall said last night that if there was any Eisenhower list of vice presidential eligibles "I don't know about it and I would."

Stassen, on leave of absence as Mr. Eisenhower's disarmament assistant, has been plugging for Gov. Christian A. Herter of Massachusetts. Herter has asked Representative Joseph W. Martin Jr., the convention's permanent chairman, to with-

'Reds' and 'Bums' in Post Office, But They're Not What You Think

© New York Times News Service

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20—The Post Office Department is full of "reds" and "bums" but they are not what you think they are.

A glossary of postal terms released by the department explains simply that a "red" is a piece of registered mail, and a "bum" is an empty mail sack or pouch.

Arthur E. Summerfield, the postmaster general also let the public in on the meanings of "nixie," "vice," "hypo," and "killer bars."

The department's compilation of the postal jargon, filling some 26 pages, ranged alphabetically from "A-C" (actual count of mail worked) to "X-pouch" (the last pouch in a series).

The "nixie" is a letter that cannot be delivered because the address is incorrect, illegible or insufficient.

"Vice," means "in place of." For example, Summerfield explains, "Substitute Tom Brown will run vice Clerk Smith."

INCUMBENT SAYS HE HAS DONE HIS CAMPAIGNING IN PAST 3½ YEARS

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 20 (AP) — Vice President Nixon urged delegates to the Republican national convention today to study his record and "look at the facts" in choosing President Eisenhower's running mate.

Nixon made his statement in a breakfast talk before a Minnesota delegation which greeted him with an ovation. He avoided mention of former Gov. Harold Stassen of Minnesota, who has been campaigning to remove Nixon from the ticket.

The Vice President said he has been asked whether he intends to campaign for renomination. He said he is delighted to call on various delegations but:

"As far as campaigning goes, I've done my campaigning in the past three and a half years."

After counseling delegates to examine his record, Nixon said the convention should select the most qualified man.

"We in the United States have been fortunate for President Eisenhower's leadership," he said. "It would be a great tragedy if the leadership is denied to America and the world in the next four years.

"That's why we have to work out the best possible ticket."

Criticizes Democrats.

Nixon criticized what he termed "villification and abuse" of the Republicans, but said, "we are not going to put on the same type of campaign." He said "We Republicans have something better to offer. . . ."

Nixon then went to the Massachusetts delegation, where he was greeted by Gov. Christian A. Herter, the man Stassen recommended as a replacement for Nixon.

Nixon praised Herter as a "man who stands out not only as one of Massachusetts's great Governors, but one who has gained world-wide reputation as an outstanding statesman."

Up in his eleventh-floor hotel suite atop Nob Hill, there was a distinct air of confidence.

Appearing cheerful and relaxed, the Vice President greeted Republican leaders, appeared on television and dropped in on state delegations on the eve of the convention.

With support building up for his renomination, Nixon had no hesitancy in welcoming an "open convention" selection of President Eisenhower's running mate. He said repeatedly he did not know whether President Eisenhower wanted him on the ticket again and would invite other nominations.

Former Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York, telling why he indorsed Nixon, said "Nobody has ever done so well as Vice President." Attorney General Herbert Brownell said he detected strong pro-Nixon sentiment among delegations thronging in for the convention.

Knowland's Comment.

Senator William F. Knowland of California had failed to find a single delegate who believed Stassen had "even made a dent" with his campaign.

The G.O.P. leader in the Senate, only lately a political ally of Nixon, told a news conference a few hours before the convention opening he was sure a minimum of two-thirds of the California delegation favored Nixon.

"By the time the issue comes up in the convention I am hopeful they will all be in agreement," Knowland said.

The New York and Pennsylvania delegations gave Nixon a rousing welcome when he visited with them last night. The Missouri delegation called on him in his hotel after his return.

Nixon denied that Herter agreed under party pressure to nominate him. He said his "good friend Chris Herter" is not the kind of man who yields to pressure. Herter is Stassen's candidate for Vice President.

The Vice President told one TV interviewer he regarded as "a good precedent" the Democrats' open convention selection of their vice presidential nominee—Senator Estes Kefauver of Tennessee.

There are more than half a dozen Republicans besides himself qualified for his office, Nixon said. He did not name them, but said "I'll be in there pitching" for the G.O.P. ticket whether or not he was on it.

Nixon spent 38 minutes in private with Herbert Hoover in the former President's Mark Hopkins Hotel suite six floors above his own. He said he looked over the speech Hoover will deliver before the convention Tuesday night. He said they did not discuss the Republican ticket.

"I think that is absolutely proper and in the best American tradition," he said.

He said the fight should not be made to appear that the decision of the convention was the result of "force," or "someone imposing their will on the delegates."

Nixon urged the Missouri delegates to strive for party unity, saying: "After this is all over, lets get together Thursday night and fight for victory."

The Vice President said he has a "particular interest" in Missouri because he believes "it is one state in which the Republican party has lost a great opportunity" to gain the upper hand politically.

He added that he did not intend to be critical, because Missouri Republicans face two major handicaps: Missourians generally have been voting Democratic for some time, and the Republicans are opposed by a "well-organized and powerful Democratic political machine."

But, he added, Mr. Eisenhower's victory in Missouri in 1952 demonstrated that "the people of Missouri are in favor of the Eisenhower policies and political philosophy."

He said Missourians helped elect Mr. Eisenhower four years ago when "they only had the hope for improvement under his leadership, but now in 1956 they have seen the performance and they will favor him again."

Missouri will be a key state in the election this year because of the Republican fight to regain control of Congress, he added. He said an Eisenhower victory in Missouri would enable the Republicans to gain "one or two, or possibly more seats" in the House.

Before speaking, Nixon shook hands with each of the visiting Missouri delegates. When he came to Clifford C. Bauman of St. Louis, he asked him where he was from. Bauman told him St. Louis, and then Nixon remarked: "Oh, yes. We want to get the Republican vote up in that city this time."

He was referring to the fact that Mr. Eisenhower lost St. Louis by 94,000 votes in 1952, although he carried the state as a whole by 25,500.

Bromwich Explains.

Later, Bromwich said he decided to join the other Missouri delegates calling on Nixon because he had planned to "pay my respects to the Vice President during the convention." He said he postponed his "previous engagement" to call on him.

"I am not anti-Nixon," he asserted. "I am just for the man President Eisenhower wants. If it's Nixon, that's fine. Then I'll campaign for him too."

An outward appearance of harmony prevailed at the Missouri caucus. A threatened effort to depose Bromwich as chairman of the delegation did not materialize. State Republican Chairman Perry Compton had fathered the anti-Bromwich movement because of Bromwich's assistance to Stassen, but in the afternoon the Nixon delegates decided that it would be better strategy to avoid that fight and instead to elect a vice chairman of the delegation, thus expressing repudiation of Bromwich and possibly lowering his prestige. They chose Richard A. Erickson of Kansas City, a Nixon supporter, as vice chairman.

Fearing that their pacifying plans might not work out, the leaders started the caucus with doors locked and only the delegates and alternates present. When all went along as scheduled, the Nixon supporters called for an open meeting and a poll of the delegation in public.

Formal Party Support.

By this action they emphasized formal party support of the Vice President and repudiation of those opposing him.

After the result of the poll had been announced, former Congressman Jeffrey P. Hillelson of Kansas City, a delegate-at-large, announced that the Vice President would be pleased to receive a visit from the Missouri delegation.

For a few minutes after the invitation was announced, there appeared the possibility of a disturbance in the delegation. Erickson suggested in a motion that a delegation spokesman be named as a liaison man between the delegation and Nixon, but Everett Hullverson of St. Louis, who had voted to support Nixon, objected, saying the delegation already had two elected spokesmen, Bromwich, the chairman, and Erickson, the vice chairman. After a little discussion, the motion was withdrawn.

A resolution, presented by Roos, pledging Republicans to work in a full spirit of harmony, was adopted. The caucus quickly adjourned to enable the delegation to keep its appointment with Nixon.

Illinois Delegation Will Back Nixon, Chairman Says.

SAN FRANCISCO (UP)—The Illinois delegation to the Republican national convention will support an Eisenhower-Nixon ticket, its chairman, Morton Hollingsworth, says.

The 60-member delegation has not formally adopted a pro-Nixon resolution, Hollingsworth said, but "our position has been quite widely known for some time—we're for Eisenhower and Nixon."

STEVENSON QUOTED IN SOVIET PRESS ON LOW U.S. PRESTIGE

The New York Herald Tribune-Post-Dispatch Special Dispatch.

MOSCOW, Aug. 20 — The Soviet press quoted Adlai Stevenson yesterday as saying that the international prestige of the United States had never been as low as it is now.

This statement by the Democratic candidate for President was reported by Tass, the Soviet news agency, in a dispatch on the closing of the Democratic national convention in Chicago and was printed by leading Soviet newspapers.

The Tass story also noted, without comment, that the candidate had called for preventing the spread of Communism. Where he called for strengthening the political and economic fabric of alliances, Tass used the words "military bloc of the United States."

So far, all Soviet news of the presidential nominations has been in the form of reports from the news agencies and no major comment has been written here.

STASSEN FINDS FEW WILLING TO OPPOSE NIXON

Hopes Eisenhower Will List Those Acceptable to Him — No Claim of Strength.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 20 (UP)—Harold E. Stassen found few delegates to the Republican national convention today ready to back his drive to knock Vice President Richard M. Nixon off the G.O.P. ticket.

Despite the Nixon bandwagon, Stassen worked into the early morning hours, trying to convince delegates to withhold any definite commitment to a vice presidential candidate until President Eisenhower arrives tomorrow night.

Stassen hoped the Chief Executive would circulate a list of "a considerable number" of top Republicans acceptable to him as a running mate. Stassen also hoped that such a list would include the man he is backing for the nomination, Massachusetts Gov. Christian A. Herter.

There was no positive information to back up Stassen's hopes; there was much to discourage him.

Some of Stassen's late-night callers felt so apprehensive about being associated with a stop-Nixon drive that they refused to give their names as they left the former Minnesota Governor's St. Francis Hotel suite.

One of the largest groups to call on Stassen came from Massachusetts, Herter's home state. Of about 20 people, six were delegates. They said they would vote for Herter if Mr. Eisenhower expressed no choice. They pointed out, however, that they would not go against a recommendation by the President.

Stassen talked also with several delegates from the middle western states, including Missouri and Kansas.

After a whirling day of television interviews, hastily gulped meals, a speech at the First Baptist church at Oakland, a press conference, and talks with any delegate who came his way, Stassen himself made no effort to claim specific delegate strength.

He said repeatedly, however, that he thought Herter was generating more interest by the hour. He staked everything on his belief that Mr. Eisenhower would leave the convention open on the vice presidential question.

Asked what he would do if Mr. Eisenhower brought forth no list of "acceptables," Stassen thought for a moment and answered, "what decision the President makes, I'll do whatever possible to carry out as a member of his team."

Not a Delegate.

Stassen was uncertain just how he could get Herter's name before the convention since Herter is what Stassen calls an "unseeking candiadte" and Stassen himself is not a delegate.

House Republican leader Joseph W. Martin Jr., permanent chairman of the convention, said yesterday that unanimous consent of delegates to the convention would be required before Stassen himself, as a non-delegate, could nominate Herter. But he also said that delegates could vote for Herter even if his name is not formally placed in nomination.

The Massachusetts group that called on Stassen agreed that nothing should be done to embarrass Herter. They were worried that a definite commitment to the Governor at this time might be upset or reversed by any word from Mr. Eisenhower.

Stassen was questioned repeatedly on why he objected to Nixon. He said simply that Nixon would take millions of votes away from Mr. Eisenhower. He said Nixon was a controversial person who did not have the voter appeal of Herter or a number of other top Republicans.

Martin Says G.O.P. Convention Should Be Comparatively Quiet

Permanent Chairman Declares Meeting Will Be Open — Knowland Predicts Nixon May Be Chosen by Acclamation.

The New York Herald Tribune-Post-Dispatch Special Dispatch.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 20 —This year's Republican convention should be "comparatively quiet," its permanent chairman, Representative Joseph W. Martin Jr. of Massachusetts, Republican leader and former Speaker of the House, said yesterday.

At a news conference Martin declined to be drawn into a discussion of any candidacies, but the temporary chairman, Senator William F. Knowland of California, was not so restrained. He predicted President Eisenhower will be renominated by acclamation, and possibly Vice President Richard M. Nixon also.

Knowland said on a television program, "It is entirely possible that . . . by Wednesday the Vice President will be nominated by acclamation."

Martin, who has presided over Republican conventions for 20 years, said with regard to questions about the Democratic to-do in Chicago about "open conventions:"

"There is no such thing as a closed convention — all conventions are open."

"Is that theory or fact?" a reporter asked.

"Fact," snapped Martin. He remarked that there have been numerous occasions when votes were cast for persons whose names were not even placed in nomination.

Normally good-natured, Martin was a bit brusque with a series of questions regarding what would happen if a presidential candidate died or became incapacitated after receiving the nomination. The question will not arise, he insisted, adding emphatically:

"President Eisenhower is good for at least five or 10 years more."

Should a presidential nominee become incapacitated between the convention and the election, Martin said as a matter of factual information, the national committee would fill the vacancy. If it should occur after the election and before official certification of the electoral vote in January, he said, the election of a President would be thrown into the House.

Both Knowland and Martin predicted Republican victory in November on the issues of peace and prosperity and the record of the Eisenhower Administration.

DEWEY QUESTIONS 'OPEN' SELECTION OF KEFAUVER

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 20 (AP)—Former Gov. Thomas E. Dewey joined some other Republicans yesterday in questioning whether the selection of Senator Estes Kefauver as the Democratic vice presidential nominess was done in genuine "open" fashion.

He noted that Senator John F. Kennedy of Massachusetts was leading after the second roll call at the Democratic convention, and that several states switched votes to put over Kefauver.

"He (Kennedy) looked to me as though he had been nominated and then they took it away," Dewey said.

STATES RIGHTS PARTY CALLS CONVENTION

NEW ORLEANS, La., Aug. 20 (AP) — The Louisiana States Rights party has indorsed former Internal Revenue Commissioner T. Coleman Andrews as its presidential nominee.

State Chairman Robert G. Chandler of Shreveport said, however, the selection of a nominee is subject to the will of a national States Rights convention, which the Louisiana group has scheduled in three weeks.

Chandler said his group is negotiating with several other southern states to call a presidential nominating convention. He did not name the states or predict when a convention would be held.

The Louisiana states righters yesterday issued a declaration of rights, advocating states rights, segregation, interposition, the Southern manifesto and state ownership of tidelands—as had been expected. However, the declaration also embraced and upheld such positions as retention of the McCarran-Walter Immigration Act, limitation of taxation on incomes to 25 per cent of the total income and the "right of labor to organize."

The party took a stand against statehood for Hawaii and Alaska and federal aid to education.

In Mississippi, meanwhile, a "state-wide mass meeting" of states righters was called for tomorrow to pick a slate of presidential electors and to circulate petitions to get the slate on the November ballot. One thousand signatures are needed.

The plan is to put on the ballot a slate of electors pledged, not to the Democratic or Republican slate, but to a slate sworn to uphold segregation and states rights.

W. B. Fontaine, Jackson attorney and chairman of the steering committee of the Mississippians for States Rights, said the mass meeting was called because of a "flood of telephone calls from throughout the state."

The Mississippi meeting was called by a faction already estranged from Gov. J. P. Coleman and other Democratic party leaders in the state who have shown no particular interest in a party bolt.

A principal cause for the disinterest in booming of a states rights movement is that it could endanger the South's strength in Congress. Southern lawmakers have gained the chairmanships of vital committees through seniority resulting from long tenure under the Democratic banner.

MEDICAL BOARD CHECKS WOMAN DOCTOR'S ACTION IN BALLOT CASE

State Examiners Call Meeting — May Ask Her About Certifying 85 Aged Persons' Absentee Applications.

The action of Dr. Doris P. Reimann in certifying 85 applications for absentee "sick" ballots of aged pensioners for the Aug. 7 primary is under investigation by the Missouri State Board of Medical Examiners, the Post-Dispatch was told today.

A board official, who asked that his name not be used, said the matter would be discussed at the next meeting of the board Sept. 8 at the Coronado Hotel and Dr. Reimann "probably will be called to the meeting."

Dr. Reimann appeared before the Board of Election Commissioners for an hour today at an unscheduled meeting, the Post-Dispatch learned. The election board has had the matter under investigation following receipt of a complaining affidavit from an elderly woman voter.

The woman physician, a recent medical school graduate, had refused to appear before the election board last Thursday, on grounds of invasion of privacy.

Asked by Ward Organization.

The 85 ballot applications signed by Dr. Reimann constituted the bulk of the 101 applications in the Seventeenth Ward. She told the Post-Dispatch last week she visited the voters at the request of the ward Democratic organization and received no compensation.

Michael J. Doherty, election board chairman, declined to discuss Dr. Reimann's appearance other than to say her statement "will be studied by the board at a future meeting."

St. Louis's three holdover state Senators said today they favored legislation to increase old-age assistance benefits and to liberalize generally provisions of laws affecting care of the aged.

Senator John P. Barrett, Sixth District, said he planned to introduce a bill which would increase the present $55 monthly payments probably to $70.

This amount still would be inadequate, he acknowledged, but added that a larger increase likely would not be acceptable to legislators.

Senator John W. Joynt, Second District, said there was no question that increased benefits are needed and that he favored a comprehensive study to determine their extent.

"Barrett's ideas seem to be a move in the right direction," Joynt said.

Senator James M. Webbe, Fourth District, said he too favored increased benefits and a study to determine needs and what money was available. All three holdover Senators are Democrats. Terms of the city's other Senators and of all its State Representatives expire this year.

Moved From Unsafe Homes.

Meanwhile, Mrs. Juanita Cook, proprietor of unlicensed rooming houses at 4301 and 4305 West Pine boulevard, reported today that a substantial number of the 64 elderly men and women living there already had been moved to new quarters following last Friday's city order condemning the West Pine places as unsafe.

The condemnation followed an inspection ordered by Director of Public Safety Joseph P. Sestric after a Post-Dispatch investigation disclosed the city had failed to enforce the ordinance governing operation of boarding homes for the aged. The inquiry showed that fire hazards found nearly a year ago had not been corrected.

Mrs. Cook's licenses to operate the two places as rooming houses were revoked last May 22 on the ground they actually were boarding homes for the aged, which are governed under other regulations.

Miss Jennie Martel, secretary of the Board of Public Service, confirmed today Mrs. Cook's assertion that she had received no revocation notices. Miss Martel explained that no notices were required since Mrs. Cook last August filed applications for licenses as boarding homes for the aged and thus knew that the rooming house licenses were without validity.

Foamy Mystery in O'Fallon Park

—By a Post-Dispatch Photographer.

PARK POLICEMAN WALTER HUBBARD investigating mysterious foam that fell in O'Fallon Park yesterday near the park keeper's home.

Hodge Says 'Investments, Costs' Led Him to Steal

stealing the money?"

"I believe checks were drawn on certain companies and the checks were cashed and the money was either given to me or placed in a bank."

"Who decided on this plan?"

"I did."

"Whom did you discuss it with?"

"Epping."

Edward A. Epping, who was Hodge's administrative assistant in the auditor's office, is also under indictment as a result of the investigation in the $1,000,000 financial scandal.

"Where did you discuss the plan with Epping?" Coutrakon asked.

"In the Springfield field office."

"What was the gist of the conversation between you and Epping?"

"I wanted the money for investments and political purposes."

"What political purposes did you have in 1954?"

Hoped to Be Governor.

Hodge, who took office in 1953 as state auditor, had hoped some day to be Governor of Illinois.

To the state attorney's question, he replied: "I don't recall. There are many demands on politicians for many things."

"Did you need the money for other people?"

"How much did you plan to steal?"

"I have no idea."

"Was it your plan to take everything you could from the state?"

After Fitzgerald protested that his client was being "crucified," Hodge finally answered "No" to the question.

"What did Epping say when you said you wanted to steal some money for political purposes?" Hodge was asked.

"He said he would see about making up some vouchers."

"Whose idea was it to use vouchers to get the money?"

Hodge said "I don't recall," but under Coutrakon's probing inquiry finally stated: "I'll just say it was mine—just say it was mine."

"I don't see any need of going into every detail as you're doing. If you go into every detail, we'll be here until next Christmas, and I don't intend to be here until then."

"Any Money Socked Away?"

Coutrakon asked the witness: "Do you have any money socked away anywhere?"

Hodge, who has offered to make restitution to the state of more than $1,000,000 from sale of his assets, replied: "No, sir."

"Do you know Buster Wortman?" inquired Coutrakon, referring to Frank (Buster) Wortman, gang leader whose home is near Collinsville.

This question brought an immediate reaction from Fitzgerald, elderly but spry defense attorney, who popped up from his chair and said: "Don't answer that question. It's not pertinent. How does that enter into whether this man has taken money from the state?"

Judge Smith sustained the objection.

The defendant was questioned about his dealings with Edward A. Hintz, resigned president of the Southmoor Bank and Trust Co. of Chicago, who is also under indictment with Hodge and Epping.

"Hintz was a friend of mine and I talked with him about whether he would cash some checks for me," Hodge testified. "The first checks were my own personal checks, not the state's money. Then I asked him to put in some of these others and he went along with it."

Before Hodge left the stand, after testifying more than one hour and a half, Fitzgerald gave Judge Smith a list of the dedendant's assets, saying the amount to be derived from them will be in excess of the funds taken. The attorney said the restitution will be "complete."

Coutrakon had asked Hodge: "How much restitution have you made to the state?"

He replied: "I've turned over everything I own. If the sale is handled properly, it will be a lot of money."

Referring to Hodge's easily-detected scheme for getting state funds through forged and phony state warrants, Coutrakon inquired:

"Did any payees ever kick back?"

"No, sir, they did not."

"Did you split with anyone else the $637,000 you have pleaded guilty of taking?"

"No."

"Was there anyone else besides you, Epping and Hintz in this plan?"

"No."

When the judge sustained a defense objection to a question whether Hodge used state money to pay expenses of his Lake Springfield home, Coutrakon protested:

"This man should have to tell everything he knows. It was your money he took, my money and the money of the taxpayers of Illinois."

Hodge, who was brought to the hearing from St. John's Hospital here where he has been a patient because of emotional and nervous reactions to his sudden downfall, was the first of several witnesses called by Coutrakon.

Among the witnesses were Mrs. Earla Markert, an employe in the state auditor's office, and Thomas H. Fitzgerald, a Chicago attorney. Fitzgerald told of an attempt by Hodge to have the attorney "cover up" for him after Fitzgerald's name was used as payee on a $9000 check, although he did not get the money.

When these witnesses completed their testimony, Judge Smith retired to his chambers to read a statement previously given by Hodge to Coutrakon.

Already under a 10 year sentence for misapplying $816,427 in federally insured state funds, Hodge will soon be on his way to Menard Penitentiary to serve whatever sentence Judge Smith imposes. The federal term will run concurrently with the state sentence.

State's Attorney Coutrakon asked for today's hearing, saying he did not want sentence passed until he had an opportunity to present witnesses to show the severity of Hodge's crimes.

He makes no secret of his opinion that the sentence imposed in federal court in Chicago was an insufficient penalty, standing alone. Hodge committed a great offense against the State of Illinois and should be punished accordingly, Coutrakon holds.

The state's attorney has opposed keeping Hodge in the hospital, where he is under 24-hour guard. He said the former auditor should be held in the county jail—a move that Sangamon County Sheriff Arthur A. Gross refused to make.

"I don't have any authority to remove him since he's in custody of the sheriff," Coutrakon asserted. "If he wants to mollycoddle him there's nothing I can do about it."

Paschen Says He Is in Governor Race 'to Stay.'

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, Aug. 20—Herbert C. Paschen, Democratic candidate for Governor, said today, "I'm in the race to stay," in answer to a reported move to have him step aside because of an investigation of an employes' welfare fund in Paschen's office as Cook county treasurer.

"The people nominated me in the primary," Paschen asserted. "I'm not even thinking of leaving the ticket."

The investigation, by federal and state officials, is for the purpose of determining if any money in the welfare fund was used for political campaigning.

Twelve bankers have been summoned to testify today before a federal grand jury here which is seeking to learn if any national banks contributed to Paschen's campaign through donations to the welfare fund.

The bankers subpenaed were: Roy Jures, First National Bank of Barrington; Alfred Clausen, Bank of Elmwood Park; William Busse, Mount Prospect State Bank; Edward Maroney, First National Bank of Blue Island; Kenneth Duvall, Merchandise National Bank of Chicago; H. R. Oberwortman, First National Bank of La Grange.

Louis Nelson, First National Bank of Maywood; Louis Clark, First National Bank of Evanston; Harold Sampson, Forest Park Bank; Herbert Devereau, Lake Shore Bank; Louis Brenza, Metropolitan State Bank of Chicago, and William Dooley, Sears Community State Bank.

FOAMY BLANKET MAKES PARK LOOK LIKE BUBBLEBATH

A mysterious white foam descended in O'Fallon Park yesterday, turning the heavy summer greenery briefly into a bubblebath scene.

Park Keeper William Jenkins, whose residence is on the grounds, said he had never seen anything like it. "The stuff suddenly started coming from out of nowhere," Jenkins said.

"Some of it was in wads as big as 50-gallon drums and floated through the air. I don't know. Maybe someone's washing machine went haywire."

STRIKERS SEEK RECOGNITION OF NEW CAB UNION

Drivers to Discuss Matter With Four Companies After Deserting Teamsters.

Drivers of four major St. Louis taxicab companies took their strike into the third day today with hopes of obtaining recognition of their new union. They planned another meeting tonight to decide on future action.

Drivers turned their backs on Teamsters Local 405, which has been representing them, and formed an independent union, calling it the Taxicab Drivers' Association, at a meeting Saturday night.

Ace Cab Co.'s drivers refused to go along and were operating as usual today.

Don Cortor, chairman of the new organization, planned to meet today with the managements of Yellow, Laclede, Black and White and St. Louis Auto Livery to discuss the matter of recognition.

The company men in turn were to meet this afternoon with Harold J. Gibbons, president of Teamsters Joint Council No. 13, parent body of Local 405, which has contracts with the cab companies.

The strike followed employment of several Negro drivers by companies which had not used them before, but Cortor said that was not the reason for the strike. He said it was called to break away from the "domination" of Gibbons. The local was put under a trustee more than three years ago.

Cortor said today he had received threats of physical harm to himself and other leaders of the strike movement, but said neither he nor any of his men would resort to violence themselves. "This is a peaceful demonstration," he said.

Owners of the cab companies were invited to tonight's meeting, at the Kingsway Hotel.

The Saturday night meeting was attended by approximately 700 men, most of whom own the cabs they drive. The city has approximately 900 drivers, Cortor estimated.

In addition to Ace cabs, Negro taxi companies were operating, and hotels reported no serious delays in obtaining service.

INFANT FOUND DEAD IN HOME

Meany for Nonpartisan Political Policy to Combat Anti-Unionism

GEORGE MEANY

Labor's modern fight against anti-union employers lies in the field of political action on a non-partisan basis, George Meany, president of the AFL-CIO, said today in an address at the opening session of a five-day convention of the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers' Union at Hotel Sheraton-Jefferson.

Meany, an advocate of concentrating on congressional and state elections during the coming political campaigns, pointed ou that the era of the "company union, the company judge, the company thug, the company sheriff," has been supplanted by opposition "wrapped up in the field of legislation."

"This is the arena and the anti-union employer has chosen," Meany said. "We didn't chose it, but we must meet it by political action.

"Political action on the part of labor means to me not tying labor up with any political party. We do not want to adopt a party. Nor do we want a party to adopt us.

"We must fight for candidates who are favorable to the things we believe in and oppose those who oppose us."

Meany recalled a time when many unions barred political discussions at meetings, fearful they would create disunity at a time when unions were battling on picket lines for mere recognition. Hostile employers, he observed, are "diminishing" but a small minority control "big business organizations," particularly the National Association of Manufacturers.

Meany, who identified labor's goals with the welfare of the nation and maintenance of its position as "the leader of the free world," said that the NAM had opposed every advancement to promote the welfare of the worker. He scoffed at its role as spokesman "for the non-union worker" and said that the unorganized worker pays dues of "three or four dollars a day to employers in the form of lessened wages."

"We also face the problem of making democracy work in America," Meany said, "and that is tied in with our part in foreign affairs. Every case of discrimination aids the Communists who have not evidenced any change in their goal of world domination, despite their shifting line.

"We in the trade union movement have got to see to it that there are no second class citizens in America. We must see to it that there are educational opportunities for all regardless of the color of their skins.

"A democracy that does not give full rights to all citizens is a democracy that is failing."

Meany warned that labor should keep its own house in order. He described union welfare funds as "sacred money" to protect the interests of the members rather than to be disposed of as if they were the property of an individual.

Another present day challenge confronting labor, Meany said, is that of automation. Labor has no desire to arrest the march of ingenuity and science provided the results may lighten the burden of labor and aid the entire economy.

"Improperly applied, automation could destroy our economy," Meany asserted, "and we would be in a bad fix if there were no pay envelopes to pay for this button-pushing productivity. This new process must be harnessed to human needs."

Meany said that automation may bring about a shorter work day, a shorter work week, "and increased income to take care of more leisure hours."

Employers, he continued, in deciding whether to convert plants to new processes must look to the market. It would not pay to introduce automation, he added, if a plant were to run but three months a year without sufficient purchasing power to maintain consumer demand.

"The advent of automation," Meany said, "is a test of the intelligence of the employer and the employe."

Meany, who said that labor was not in business to advance its own interests at expense of other segments of society, was introduced to the 800 delegates by O. A. Knight, president of the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers Union.

Knight, who is a vice president of the AFL-CIO, referred to Meany as "the greatest labor leader in the world" and pointed out that the 1955 merger of Knight's old CIO Oil Workers with the then CIO Gas, Coke and Chemical Workers, represented "the first major merger of two international unions in modern labor history."

AFL-CIO LEADERS SET TO DECIDE ON ELECTION STAND

Meeting Next Week Expected Either to Pick Stevenson or Indorse No One.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20 (AP)—AFL-CIO leaders will decide next week whom—if anyone—they will support for President in the fall campaign.

The matter will be discussed by the union's executive council at a meeting beginning next Monday near Forest Park, Pa.

As to what the decision will be, an AFL-CIO official said today:

"As of now, it looks as though there is a 50-50 chance it will be Adlai Stevenson and Estes Kefauver (the Democratic nominees for President and Vice President). If not, then we probably won't support anybody at all on the national ticket."

Asked whether there is a chance of AFL-CIO support going to the Republican presidential choice, the union informant said, "I doubt it very much, especially if Vice President Nixon is on the ticket." He asked that he not be quoted by name.

Some AFL-CIO leaders—Walter Reuther of the Auto Workers is just one example—already have come out individually for Stevenson. The International Union of Electrical Workers has opened a "Labor for Stevenson and Kefauver" office in its headquarters building here.

The meeting at Forest Park will mark the first consideration of such a decision since the AFL and CIO consolidated last December.

Historically the CIO always has supported the Democratic national ticket.

On the other hand, the AFL has backed presidential aspirants only twice—Robert LaFollette the Progressive party candidate, in 1924, and Stevenson in 1952.

ADAMS MAKES SECRET REPORT ON EISENHOWER'S HEALTH

FINANCE GROUP GETS WORD THAT PRESIDENT IS IN PEAK CONDITION

The New York Herald Tribune-Post-Dispatch Special Dispatch.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 20—Sherman Adams, assistant to President Eisenhower, has given a secret and highly optimistic report to the Republican Finance Committee on the President's health, it was learned yesterday.

Adams told the 77-member committee and an estimated 100 other party money-raisers at a closed-door session here Friday that President Eisenhower is in better health than he was before his ileitis operation.

He said the President is deliberately holding himself back from a full-time schedule because his doctors want him to work more slowly into full harness.

A major reason the President is coming to San Francisco Tuesday instead of Wednesday, high Republican sources said, is to give the delegates and party notables a greater chance to see him for themselves.

The substance of Adams's secret briefing was disclosed to a reporter by one of those present and confirmed by two others.

Treasury in Good Shape.

The main reason for calling the Finance Committee meeting was to review the status of the Republican treasury, Clifford A. Folger, chairman of the Finance Committee, appealed for a continuing money-raising effort, although it was reported that the treasury was in good shape.

Adams entered the meeting with a comment that the committee was entitled to an up-to-date and complete report on the President's health. He gave the following briefing:

1. The President could expand his present activity at once if the occasion required, but his doctors have counseled him to go slower than he would like. President Eisenhower himself told his news conference several weeks ago that he would not fully recuperate until early October.

2. The President's color is not quite so good as it was before he went to Walter Reed Hospital for the emergency operation June 9 because of an obstruction in his intestine. A principal reason, Adams said, is that he is eating a bit less and will continue to do so for some time.

3. The President's footstep is firm, Adams said. He said the President does not tire any more quickly than he did before his operation.

Significant Report.

Adams's report was regarded as particularly significant in view of the campaign by Harold E. Stassen to remove Vice President Richard M. Nixon from the 1956 Republican ticket. The Finance Committee is raising money primarily to re-elect President Eisenhower. Any hint that Mr. Eisenhower's recuperation was not proceeding smoothly would have a profound impact on this convention.

The President said 10 days ago that he would have nothing more to say about his health until he has another complete medical examination, probably some time in October. He said that if he ever feels he is not up to another four years in the White House, he will say so.

Republican leaders are convinced that the health and "part-time presidency" issues would be very important in the November election. The Democrats left no doubt at their own convention last week that they would repeat and expand their charge that Mr. Eisenhower is a "part-time" President who has delegated far too many powers to subordinates who have never been elected to office.

TRUMAN EXPANDS CHARGE OF G.O.P. 'RACKETEERING'

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Aug. 20 (AP)—Former President Harry S. Truman elaborated today on his allegation there are "racketeers" in the ranks of the Republican Administration as he had charged in a speech at the Democratic national convention.

"Persons who are taking the assets of the people of the United States and using them for their own profits are racketeers," Truman said when asked if he was going to answer Thomas Dewey who said the former President could not name the alleged "racketeers." Th former New York Governor issued his challenge yesterday at San Francisco.

"Examples of racketeering in the Republican administration are in the Hell's Canyon dam, offshore oil and the forest reserve of the Northwest," Truman said.

"And that's only a sart. An attempt was made on TVA but that was unsuccessful because it was blocked by the Democrats."

Referring to Dewey's remark that his accusation was "shocking, violent, intemporate," Truman said: "I didn't hear Governor Dewey raise any complaint when Senator Jenner called Gen. Marshall a traitor in 1932 in Milwaukee with Eisenhower on the platform with him, nor when Nixon called me a traitor in 1954."

REPUBLICANS OPEN NATIONAL CONVENTION

draw his name if it is offered for second place on the ticket.

Mr. Eisenhower has said he would be delighted to have Nixon on the ticket with him, but he has said both he and Nixon want an "open" convention. The President has not publicly foreclosed other candidates, and there had been speculation he might have some further statement after his arrival on the convention scene tomorrow night.

Nixon named Senator William Knowland of California, the Senate's minority leader, as his floor manager for any convention fight that might develop.

Knowland himself was a presidential aspirant who entered primaries earlier in the year on the basis that he was a candidate if Mr. Eisenhower did not run again.

Throws in With Nixon.

His designation as floor manager meant Knowland had thrown in his lot with Nixon, switching from his previous political alliance with California's Gov. Goodwin J. Knight.

Nixon, who has strong Cabinet backing, also has enlisted William Rogers, deputy attorney general, among his active supporters. Rogers apparently would not be taking this course without the approval of Attorney General Herbert Brownell, one of Mr. Eisenhower's chief political advisers.

Through Rogers and others, Nixon's team was reported to be maintaining close contact with Sherman Adams, the President's top assistant, and Bernard Shanley, the President's secretary.

Associates said Nixon was maintaining in private conferences the same attitude he took in public appearances—that if Mr. Eisenhower should say a number of men were qualified to run with him and the convention picked someone else "I'll be in there pitching for the ticket" in November.

But if there was to be an "open" convention with several candidates, friends said Nixon and his team would be ready to fight for his renomination. They said confidential surveys indicated the Vice President can count on about 900 votes in any showdown.

With the Stassen-Nixon affair about the only ripple of controversy, the Republican delegates have taken over San Francisco in a gay and holiday mood.

The picnic atmosphere contrasted sharply with the sometimes grim air with which the Democrats had gone about the business of nominating their ticket of Adlai E. Stevenson and Senator Estes Kefauver in Chicago last week.

The women's fur coats were sleeker, the men's wallets fatter as befits a party that believes it has prosperity going for it and an unbeatable candidate. Nobody was mad at anybody much, except possibly at Stassen.

Stassen Shadow Boxes.

In the face of what looked like overwhelming odds against him, Stassen continued to shadow box vigorously in efforts to knock out an opponent who never seemed to be there to absorbs his blows.

His campaign obviously was something more than the single-handed drive it appeared on the surface. But Stassen seemed to be making no headway.

He said he still expected Mr. Eisenhower to throw open the second place nomination. He said that "at the right time" the President would make known a list of eligibles. Administration spokesmen denied the President had moved up his arrival in San Francisco by one day with any such aim in view.

Some of those Stassen named as possible alternates for Nixon did not share Stassen's air of confidence.

Gov. Dan Thornton of Colorado, said he would not let his name be presented to the convention unless there was a completely wide open race. He indicated he did not think there will be.

Some friends of Gov. Theodore R. McKeldin of Maryland said he had been asked by Chairman Hall to permit his name to be offered as a "favorite son" and then to withdraw in favor of Nixon before there was any voting.

But McKeldin said today he definitely would not permit his name to be put in nomination for Vice President.

"Nixon's got it an that's it," McKeldin told a reporter on the convention floor. "It would be foolish to let my name go in against his."

The Maryland Governor said his conversations around the convention led him to the belief that Nixon "has at least 1000 votes from among the 1300-odd convention delegates. These people are for Nixon just like they are for President Eisenhower."

McKeldin talked with Sherman Adams last night and again this morning, but did not disclose the nature of their talks.

Hall said reports that a number of "favorite sons" might be placed in nomination to give an appearance of an "open" convention were "completely and unadulterated bunk."

Asked if he thought Nixon would be renominated, Hall replied: "I certainly do."

One of the tangible signs of resentment to Stassen's campaign cropped up when the Oklahoma delegation eased Bailey Vinson out of his job as the state's national committeeman.

Vinson was one of those who put up $1000 to help Stassen finance the new poll Stassen said showed Nixon would cut the drawing power of the Eisenhower ticket by 8 per cent.

Vinson found so much opposition that he withdrew as a candidate for re-election and will be succeeded by Reuben Sparks, Woodward lawyer and the Republican candidate for Governor.

George I. Bloom, Pennsylvania delegation reaffirmed its position in support of Nixon.

Senator B. B. Hickenlooper said Iowa's delegates were solidly opposed to Stassen's efforts to dump Nixon because they believe the Vice President will add strength to the ticket.

'Open' Convention Shut Tighter Than Alcatraz at 3 in Morning

Only Way to Dump Nixon Would Be to Nominate San Francisco—It Would Win by Acclamation.

By JAMES RESTON
© New York Times News Service

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 20—There are now three major questions before the delegates at the Republican National Convention:

1. Will they have dinner at Omar Khayyam's on O'Farrell street, or at Trader Vic's on Cosmo place?

2. Will they be solvent and in good health next Friday after all the fun?

3. Will Harold Stassen get out of town alive?

It is an "open" convention, which means that it's shut tighter than Alcatraz at three in the morning. Stassen's trouble is that he doesn't know what an "open" convention is. An "open" convention is a convention where it's open to the delegates to nominate "Ike and Dick," "Dick and Ike," or, in a pinch, "Dwight and Richard."

By Acclamation.

It is an opportunity, which every man should take at least once every four years, of falling in love with San Francisco, and that's precisely what everybody is doing. As a matter of fact, if San Francisco could be nominated for Vice President, it would win by acclamation.

All the other problems were dismissed Sunday afternoon by former Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York. He proclaimed Vice President Richard M. Nixon as the best veep he could remember, and he dealt with the President's health in one short declarative sentence:

"I saw him last Wednesday," said Dewey, "and I never saw a man with more vigor, more bounce or more clarity of mind."

Dewey also dealt with this "open convention" question in the official manner. He averred that it was as open as the Salvation Army, free to anyone to speak up for anybody in the world.

A Look of Horror.

The difficulty comes in translating this concept into action. Stassen has tried it by mentioning Gov. Christian A. Herter of Massachusetts, and even had a couple of lovelies handing out "Ike and Chris" buttons at the main door of the Fairmont lobby, but when detected, these were usually returned with a look of horror.

So far as can be determined, there are only three nonconformists in the whole convention: Stassen, Brig. Gen. Herbert C. Holdridge, who is circulating vicious anti-Eisenhower pamphlets, and a button salesman, obviously a Democrat, who not only wants to "Dump Nixon" but wanders through the lobbies wearing a button that says: "Dump Everybody."

The Republican National Committee, which is as neutral in this fight as the Russians were in Korea, has made it perfectly clear to all delegates here what it means by an "open convention."

It has plastered the hotels where the delegates are vacationing with huge pictures of the President and the Vice President. Its campaign literature carries the same theme, and its aids are alert to see that Stassen's every move, or any other move or rumor suggesting a race for the Vice Presidency, is countermanded in one way or another.

No Mood for Soul-Searching.

This is now so obvious that the President himself may take occasion at the last minute to remove the general feeling that the White House, while not dictating to the convention, nevertheless has euchered the convention out of a free choice.

Regardless of what move he makes at this late date, however, the delegates are in no mood for soul-searching and nothing short of an Eisenhower repudiation of Nixon would change the situation.

As for the insurance rate on Stassen, his life is reasonably secure because his campaign has gone so badly. He was booed mildly when he went through the Fairmont lobby yesterday, but while he has bounced from one TV show or press conference to another and had a fairly good press, the delegates are in no mood for contention.

As one reporter put it, this is "an open convention, secretly arrived at" and it is unreasonable to suppose that the delegates are going to take time out from the pleasures of San Francisco to change their minds now.

STASSEN SITS WITH CABINET OFFICIALS AT CONVENTION

SAN FANCISCO, Aug. 20 (AP)—Harold E. Stassen, who is bucking most of his cabinet colleagues by trying to dump Vice President Richard M. Nixon, was seated with them today at the opening session of the Republican national convention. Along with Stassen in a box for party leaders were Secretary of the Treasury George Humphrey, under secretaary of State Herbert Hoover Jr., Postmaster General Arthur Summerfield, and Henry Cabot Lodge, United States Delegate to the United Nations. Many others of sub-cabinet rank were in the group.

Stassen has been on leave from his post as President Eisenhower's disarmament aid for the last three weeks so he could pursue his anti-Nixon drive.

PRISONER MAKES ESCAPE FROM CITY WORKHOUSE

James L. Oliver, a prisoner at City Workhouse, 4200 South Broadway, escaped today when working with a labor detail in the garden on the south side of the grounds, police reported. He apparently slipped through a gate when it was opened for a vehicle to pass through.

Guard Phillip Kennedy said he found Oliver missing when the detail was brought in from the garden before noon. Oliver, 23 years old and a Negro, entered the workhouse Aug. 10 to serve a 30-day sentence for operating an automobile without a driver's license. He gave an address in the 4600 block of McMillan avenue.

Sidelights On G.O.P. Convention

By SAM B. ARMSTRONG
National Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 20.

DELEGATES of the twenty-sixth National Republican Convention, the first the party has ever held west of Denver, seem pleased at this year's selection of San Francisco.

The Cow Palace, with 17,000 seats, is larger than the 12,000-seat International Amphitheater at Chicago where the Democrats met last week. It is clean and neat in new coats of paint. Easily reached by several routes from the hotel district, it has a parking lot for 4000 automobiles.

You couldn't tell the Cow Palace with your eyes closed. Your nose would know Chicago's International Amphitheater, hard by the stockyards, even if you had a bad cold. The Cow Palace doesn't smell bad—or at least it didn't as the four-day meeting opened.

THE magnificent building has been the scene of many stock shows, prize fights, other athletic events and political meetings. It was built in the depression over the objection of some people who thought that "a palace for cows" should not be built when people are being evicted from their homes.

On a news story stating this objection appeared a headline using the phrase "Cow Palace." The name stuck.

THE Republicans did a better decorating job here than the Democrats did in Chicago, where chief reliance was on lengths of blue cloth festooned about the hall and large white cardboard stars bearing the names of the delegations. The Cow Palace is adorned with red, white and blue bunting and large attractive state flags which are so seldom flown that some delegates did not recognize theirs.

The bandstand at the back of the hall makes it possible to see as well as hear the musicians. That was not possible for many in Chicago. Above the bandstand there is a huge American flag, flanked by large portraits of President Eisenhower and Vice President Nixon.

There are seven rather wide aisles on the convention floor making access to seats easier. In Chicago the few and narrow aisles restricted the activities of demonstrating delegations.

On the speaker's stand the Republican campaign slogan, "peace and prosperity," appears on the large reproduction of a medallion bearing the profile of President Eisenhower partly superimposed on that of Lincoln.

THE Republicans are hoping to avoid the unfortunate experience which the Democrats reported when they held their one and only San Francisco convention in 1920. So many delegates and party leaders made the occasion the beginning of vacations for several weeks that the campaign suffered by being delayed in planning, co-ordination and execution.

The parade included a National Citizens for Eisenhower "bandwagon"—a 30-ton white trailer truck with jeeps, station wagons, bicycles and pretty young women in "Eisenhower" dresses carrying parasols (just in case there should a "low fog," no doubt).

Six "bandwagons" are to tour the country as part of the campaign.

Each of the 53 state and territorial delegations was greeted by Mayor George Christopher and the appropriate sections in turn were added to a huge jigsaw map of the United States.

THE Young Republicans obtained a block of 100 seats at the Cow Palace to aid both their membership and campaign fund. They also set up two large television screens in a nearby building which seats 1000.

During convention sessions 100 will be permitted to leave the television building and occupy the seats in the Cow Palace for one hour. Only members of the Young Republican organization are eligible—dues $5.

THE captain of a non-stop United Airlines plane from Washington gave his passengers, which included some high Republican officials and many members of the Maryland delegation, a little lesson in Republican party history.

As they approached Great Salt Lake, he called it to attention over the plane's address system, telling of its discovery and the later official expedition to report on it and other facts about western geography. The expedition, he pointed out, was headed by John C. Fremont.

Except for the throbbing engines there was dead silence aboard the plane laden with Republicans going to their centennial convention.

After a lengthy pause, the captain, went on:

"As you may know, Gen. Fremont was the first man nominated for President by the Republican party; That was in 1856 at Philadelphia."

A roar of shouts and handclapping almost drowned out the sound of the engines.

A YOUNG woman at a counter at San Francisco International Airport inquired about the identity of several important Republican leaders as they left a plane. On learning they included Secretary of Defense Charles E. Wilson, she observed:

"We sure have been getting a lot of celebrities. First, the Cleveland Browns and now the Secretary of Defense. Hope the Frisco Forty-Niners can beat 'em today. Say, that Lou Groza has the biggest nose I ever saw."

Write Your Convention Story With Do-It-Yourself Press Kit

By ART BUCHWALD

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 20—We believe that the American people are not only entitled to a free press, they have a right to participate in one. Therefore as a public service we present what we believe to be the first do-it-yourself press kit. This kit will enable any reader to write his own story on the Republican convention. By using one of the following choices you can write as good a story as any professional newspaperman at the convention.

Let's try it.

The Republican convention opened here amidst an atmosphere of (1) optimism (2) determination (3) confidence (4) good fellowship to select a candidate for presidential nomination. Leading candidates for the job were (1) President Eisenhower (2) Dwight D. Eisenhower (3) Dwight David Eisenhower (4) Ike.

The President arrived for the convention looking (1) fit (2) tanned (3) rested and (4) better than he has since his operation.

Interview With Nixon.

Vice President Nixon who was waiting at the airport, and was the first to shake the President's hand, told the reporters (1) I am ready to serve (2) I am willing to accept (3) I will not refuse (4) yes.

Harold Stassen who was (1) behind Nixon (2) some distance away (3) in the waiting room (4) at the railroad station told reporters that his latest private poll revealed that there was a definite (1) trend (2) groundswell (3) landslide (4) tidal wave in favor of Massachusetts Gov. Christian A. Herter for the vice presidential nomination.

Gov. Herter who was preparing his nominating speech for Mr. Nixon said when told of the Stassen poll (1) he knew nothing about it (2) he wasn't out to stop Nixon (3) he wished to remain Governor of Massachusetts (4) "Who's Stassen?"

Before going to his hotel the President went out to the San Francisco Country Club to play (1) nine (2) five (3) two (4) one hole(s) of golf. Upon completion of the game, the President told Ben Hogan (1) "I'm feeling fine (2) "Much better" (3) "Stronger than ever" (4) "Completely cured."

Situation Not Disclosed.

After the golf game the President immediately plunged into a (1) 40 (2) 20 (3) 15 (4) five-minute conference with Republican leaders. Press Secretary Hagerty said the discussions were (1) off the record (2) not to be disclosed (3) private (4) no comment. But he did say the President (1) was given the full picture (2) was briefed (3) was taking a firm stand (4) was given a full fill-in on the situation. The press secretary said he could not reveal what the situation was.

Meanwhile Leonard Hall held a press conference and told reporters that Paul Butler, the Democratic chairman, was (1) clouding the issues (2) slinging mud (3) deceiving the voters (4) hitting below the belt. He said the only issues in this campaign were (1) peace (2) prosperity (3) peace and prosperity (4) prosperity and peace.

The Democrats he said were for (1) public power (2) higher taxes (3) socialistic reforms (4) Harry Truman. The Republicans were for (1) private power (2) free enterprise (3) the farmer (4) Vice President Nixon.

The Farm Question.

Ezra Taft Benson, Secretary of Agriculture, told delegates that the American farmer was against (1) parity (2) collective farms (3) atomic energy (4) Alger Hiss.

All the farmer asked for was (1) higher prices (2) larger income (3) less taxes (4) more money.

The Republicans he said knew the farmer's problem better than anybody.

After the nomination, Sherman Adams said President Eisenhower would go to (1) Suez, (2) Moscow, (3) Burning Tree, the Augusta National Golf Club.

The convention will end Thursday this (1) reporter (2) columnist (3) scribe (4) correspondent, learned exclusively today. Read this newspaper for (1) concise (2) up to the minute (3) objective (4) hot news on the Republican convention.

The do-it-yourself press kit, also includes a box of political cliches, Western Union credit card, a carton of by-lines and a scissors for cutting your story and a bottle of Scotch, all necessary for writing a good political story.

'I LIKE IKE' BOW TIES WORN BY WHITE HOUSE STAFF MEN

The New York Herald Tribune-Post-Dispatch Special Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20—"I Like Ike" bow ties are being worn by some members of the White House staff, the gift of President Eisenhower, who received a batch of them from an acquaintance.

Posing for photographs in his tie, White House press secretary James C. Hagerty said yesterday, "this is the beginning of the second half of the ball game"—meaning the Republicans were going to start talking now in the wake of Democratic oratory. The two-toned ties have "I Like Ike" printed on each wing.

"Did the President tell you you'd have to wear it?" a reporter inquired. Hagerty answered that with a laughing, "no."

EAST ST. LOUIS WOMAN HELD IN HUSBAND'S DEATH

Mrs Guy Shroat, whose husband was found shot to death in the lobby of his hotel at 134 St. Clair avenue, East St. Louis, Saturday night, was held by East St. Louis police today pending a coroner's inquest.

Shroat, 58 years old, had been shot in the left side of the chest. A .38-caliber revolver which police said belonged to his wife, was nearby. Five empty shell casings were in the weapon chambers. Shroat was pronounced dead at St. Mary's Hospital.

Mrs. Shroat told police she and her husband had been quarreling all day. She said she had left and returned late Saturday night to find him shot. An inquest will be held when a laboratory test to determine whether there were powder marks on Shroat's shirt is completed.

LATEST HOLLYWOOD LUXURY: OIL BUBBLES IN FRONT LAWN

Police said the area of fine homes apparently was built over an old oil field and a cap on an abandoned well had rusted out.

The oil oozed down the lawn, onto the sidewalk and threatened to spill out into the street. Harold L. Greene, owner of the home in the Wilshire Country Club section, was away at the time.

TYDINGS QUITS SENATE RACE, IN ILL HEALTH

Maryland Democrats Expected to Name New Opponent for Butler Wednesday.

BALTIMORE, Aug. 20 (AP)—The withdrawal of Millard E. Tydings left Maryland Democrats looking today for a new candidate to oppose Republican Senator John Marshall Butler in the November elections.

Tydings, who was out to regain the seat he held for 24 years before Butler defeated him in 1950, announced last night he was quitting his comeback campaign because of ill health.

Now 66 years old, the veteran of clashes with the late President Franklin D. Roosevelt and Senator McCarthy (Rep.), Wisconsin, has been suffering from a severe case of shingles, a disease which affects the nerve endings.

He was stricken shortly after beating George P. Mahoney, Baltimore paving contractor, by a slim margin in the May 7 primary.

His succeessor as a candidate is expected to be named Wednesday night at a special meeting of the state central committee.

Possible Replacements.

Besides Mahoney, those prominently mentioned as possible replacements included former United States Solicitor Gen. Philip B. Perlman; William C. Walsh and Michael J. Birmingham.

Tydings, who had been in the hospital for 46 days by the shingles virus, told a small group of political associates at his Havre de Grace home last night that doctors had warned him a strenuous campaign might cause a recurrence.

In preparation for the race he had amassed many documents involving the 1950 campaign. It was after this battle that a Senate Elections subcommittee accused Butler aids of using "back-street type" tactics.

The subcommittee was specially critical about the distribution of a fake picture. It was composed of separate photographs arranged against a common background to make it appear that Tydings was engaged in friendly conversation with former Communist party chief Earl Browder.

"Whitewash" Charge.

Butler was helped in that campaign by associates of McCarthy who had accused a Tydings subcommittee of a "whitewash" after it had reported it found no basis for McCarthy's charges of disloyalty in the State Department.

Tydings, then chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, denied the whitewash accusation and recently said much of his comeback campaign would be devoted to this issue.

PRESIDENT PLANS EARLIER FLIGHT TO CONVENTION

that (a) the convention should be "open" with delegates free to make a choice; (b) Nixon was "perfectly acceptable" to him; and (c) he would have nothing to say about a running mate "until after a presidential candidate is nominated."

Hagerty said he did not know whether Mr. Eisenhower might speak out after his own renomination was made official.

As for reports the President would provide the convention with a list of about five "acceptable" running mates Hagerty said:

"I have no knowledge of the President's intention other than what he has said publicly at his press conferences."

In advance of his news conference, Hagerty denied a published report that Mr. Eisenhower now faces a second intestinal operation.

The Miami (Fla.) Herald, identifying no sources by name, said in its "tipoff column" yesterday that "a highly placed Washington source says doctors have decided Ike could safely postpone the operation until after the campaign and election." The Herald said also that readers should not be surprised if the President chose Miami as a vacation site soon after the Republican national convention or the November election.

Checks With Physician.

Hagerty said he had checked the White House physician, Maj. Gen. Howard M. Snyder, regarding the report of another operation, and added:

"I can categorically deny it."

Earlier yesterday, President and Mrs. Eisenhower attended services at the National Presbyterian Church. Then he spent part of the day working on the speech he will make at the convention Thursday in accepting a second term nomination.

The Eisenhowers will go to San Francisco aboard his private plane, the Air Force-owned Columbine III, but the bill will be footed by the Republican National Committee, Hagerty said.

Dewey Long, White House transportation officer, estimated the bill will be about $10,000.

The Eisenhowers will be accompanied by their son, Army Maj. John Eisenhower, and his wife, Barbara. Young Eisenhower, Hagerty said, will be on leave for the duration of the convention from his Army post at Fort Belvoir, Va.

Immediately after the convention adjourns late Thursday, President and Mrs. Eisenhower will go to the plush Cypress Point Club, about 100 miles south of San Francisco on the Monterey peninsula. The President plans to rest and golf there for three or four days.

Text of First Tentative Draft Of G.O.P. Foreign Policy Plank

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 20 (AP)

Following is the text of the first tentative draft of the foreign policy plank for the Republican platform:

UNDER the leadership of President Eisenhower, the United States has advanced foreign policies which enable our people to enjoy the blessings of liberty and peace.

The changes in the international scene have been so great that it is easy to forget the conditions we inherited in 1953.

Peace, so hardly won in 1945, had again been lost. The Korean war, with its tragic toll of more than an eighth of a million American casualties, seemed destined to go on indefinitely. Its material costs and accompanying inflation were undermining our economy.

Freedom was under assault, and despotism was on the march. Armed conflict continued in the Far East, and tensions mounted elsewhere.

International Communism which, in 1945, ruled the 200,000,000 people in the Soviet Union and Baltic states, was conquering so that by 1952 it dominated more than 700,000,000 people in 15 once-independent nations.

TODAY

Now, we are at peace.

The Korean war has ended. The Communist aggresors have been denied their goals.

The threat of global war has receded.

The advance of Communism has been checked, and, at key points thrown back. The once monolothic structure of international Communism, denied the stimulant of successive conquests, has shown hesitancy both internally and abroad.

THE FAR EAST

The Korean war was brought to a close when the Communist rulers were made to realize that they could not win.

The United States has made a collective defense treaty with the Republic of Korea which will exclude, for the future, the Communist miscalculation as to announced American interests and intentions which led to the original aggression.

The United States has made a security treaty with the Republic of China covering Formosa and the Pescadores; and the Congress, by virtually unanimous action, has authorized the President to employ the armed forces of the United States to defend this area. As a result, the Chinese Communists have not attempted to implement their announced intention to take Formosa by force.

In Indochina, the Republics of Vietnam and Cambodia and Laos are now free and independent nations. The Republic of Vietnam, with the United States assistance has denied the Communists the gains which they expected from the withdrawal of French forces.

The security of Southeast Asia has now been bolstered by the collective defense system of SEATO, and its peoples encouraged by the declarations in the Pacific charter of the principles of equal rights and self-determination of the peoples.

THE MIDDLE EAST AND SOUTHEAST ASIA

The Middle East has been strengthened by the defensive unity of the four "northern tier" countries — Turkey, Iraq, Iran, and Pakistan—which hold gateways to the vast oil resources upon which depend the industry and military strength of the free world. This was made possible by the liberation of Iran from the grip of the Communist Tudeh party. Iran has again made its oil reserves available to the world under an equitable settlement negotiated by the United States.

We have maintained, and will maintain friendly relations with all nations in this vital area, seeking to mediate differences among them, and encouraging their legitimate national aspirations.

EUROPE

In western Europe, the scene has been transformed. The Federal Republic of Germany, which until 1953 was denied sovereignty and the opportunity to join the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, has now had full sovereignty restored by the treaties of 1954, and has become a member of NATO despite the intense opposition of the Soviet Union.

NATO itself has been strengthened by developing the NATO countries increasingly to attain both economic welfare and adequate military defense.

On our initiative, the political aspects of NATO are being developed. Instead of being merely a military alliance, NATO will provide a means for co-ordinating the policies of the member states on vital matters, such as the reunification of Germany, the liberation of the satellites, and general policies in relation to the Soviet Union.

Austria has been liberated. The freedom treaty, blocked since 1947 by the Soviet Union, was signed in 1955. For the first time since the end of World War II, Red army forces in Europe evacuated occupied lands.

The emotion-charged dispute between Italy and Yugoslavia about Trieste was settled with the active participation of the United States. The city of Trieste was restored to Italian sovereignty, and United States and British forces withdrawn.

The Spanish base negotiations, which had long languished, were successfully concluded, and close working relations in this important respect established between the United States and Spain.

THE AMERICAS

Our good neighbor policy continues to prove its wisdom.

The American republics have taken effective steps against the cancer of Communism. At the Caracas conference of March 1954, they agreed that if international Communism gained control of the political institutions of any American republic, this would endanger them all, and would call for collective measures to remove the danger. This new doctrine, first proposed by the United States, tends into modern times the principles of the Monroe Doctrine.

A first fruit of the Caracas doctrine was the expulsion of the Communist regime ruling Guatemala. Today, Guatemala is liberated from Kremlin control. The Organization of American States has grown in vigor. It has acted promptly and effectively to settle hemispheric disputes. In Costa Rica, for the first time in history, international aerial inspection was employed to maintain peace. The Panama conference was probably the most successful in the long history of the Organization of American States in its promotion of good will, understanding and friendship.

RELATIONS WITH SOVIET RUSSIA

Far-reaching steps have been taken to eliminate the danger of a third world war. President Eisenhower led the way at Geneva. There he impressed the Soviet leaders and the world with the dedication of the United States to peace, but its determination not to purchase peace at the price of freedom.

That summit conference set new forces into motion. The Soviet rulers professed to renounce the use of violence, which Stalin had made basic in the Communist doctrine. Then followed a repudiation of Stalin, the growth of doctrine disputes within the Communist party, and a discrediting of party authority and its evil power. Forces of liberalism within the Soviet bloc challenge the brutal and atheistic doctrines of Soviet Communism. For the first time, we see the positive evidence that forces of freedom and liberation will inevitably prevail if the free nations maintain their strength, unity and resolution.

THE FUTURE

We re-dedicate ourselves to the pursuit of a just peace and the defense of human liberty and national independence.

We shall continue vigorously to support the United Nations.

We shall continue our co-operation with our sister states of the Americas for the strengthening of our security, economic and social ties with them.

We shall continue to support the collective security system begun in 1947 and steadily developed on a bipartisan basis. That system has joined the United States with 42 other nations in common defense of freedom. It has created a deterrent to war which cannot be nullified by Soviet veto.

Where needed, we shall help friendly countries maintain such local forces and economic strength as provide a first bulwark against Communist aggression or subversion. We shall reinforce that defense by a military capacity which, operating in accordance with the United Nations Charter, could so punish aggression that it ceases to be a profitable pursuit.

We will continue efforts with friends and allies to assist the underprivileged areas of the free world in their efforts to attain greater freedom, independence and self-determination, and to raise their standards of living.

We recognize the existence of a major threat to international peace in the Near East. We support a policy of impartial friendship for the peoples of the Arab states and Israel to promote a peaceful settlement of the cases of tension in that area, including the human problems of the Palestine-Arab refugees.

Progress toward a just settlement of the tragic conflict between the Jewish state and the Arab nations in Palestine was upset by the Soviet bloc sale of arms to Arab countries. But prospects of peace have now been reinforced by the mission to Palestine of the United Nations Secretary General upon the initiative of the United States.

We regard the preservation of Israel as an important tenet of American foreign policy. We are determined that the integrity of an independent Jewish state shall be maintained. We shall support the independence of Israel against armed aggression. The best hope for peace in the Middle East lies in the United Nations. We pledge our continued efforts to eliminate the obstacles to a lasting peace in this area.

We shall continue to seek the reunification of Germany in freedom, the liberation of the satellite states—Poland, Czechoslovakia, Hungary, Romania, Bulgaria, Latvia, Lithuania, Estonia and other once-free countries now behind the Iron Curtain. The Republican party stands firmly with the peoples of these countries in their just quest for freedom. We are confident that our peaceful policies, resolutely pursued, will finally restore freedom and national independence to oppressed peoples and nations.

We continue to oppose the seating of Communist China in the United Nations, thus upholding international morality. To seat a Communist China which defies, by word and deed, the principles of the United Nations charter, would be to betray the latter, violate the spirit, and subvert the purposes of that charter. It would betray our friend and ally, the Republic of China. We will continue our determined efforts to free the remaining Americans held prisoner by Communist China.

Recognizing economic health as an indispensable basis of military strength and world peace, we shall strive to foster abroad and to practice at home, policies to encourage productivity and profitable trade.

Barriers which impede international trade and the flow of capital should be reduced on a gradual, selective and reciprocal basis, with full recognition of the necessity to safeguard domestic enterprises, agriculture and labor against unfair import competition. We proudly point out that the Republican party was primarily responsible for initiating the escape clause and peril point provisions of law to make effective the necessary safeguards for American agriculture, labor and business. We pledge faithful and expeditious administration of these provisions.

We are against any trade with the Communist world that would threaten the security of the United States and our allies.

We recognize that no single nation can alone defend the liberty of all nations threatened by Communist aggression or subversion. Mutual security means effective mutual co-operation. Poverty and unrest in less developed countries make them the target for international Communism. We must help them achieve the economic growth and stability necessary to attain and preserve their independence.

Technical and economic assistance programs are effective counter-measures to Soviet economic offensives and propaganda. They provide the best way to create the political and social stability essential to lasting peace.

We will strive to bring about conditions that will end the injustices of nations divided against their will, of nations held subject to foreign domination, of peoples deprived of the right of self-government.

We affirm the principle of freedom for all peoples, and look forward to the eventual end of colonialism.

We will overlook no opportunity that, with prudence, can be taken to bring about a progressive elimination of the barriers that interfere with the free flow of news, information and ideas, and the exchange of persons between the free peoples and the captive peoples of the world. We favor the continuance and development of "exchange-of-persons" program between free nations.

We approve appropriate action to oppose the imposition by foreign governments of discrimination against the United States citizens, based on their religion or race.

We shall continue the bipartisan development of foreign policies. We hold this necessary if those policies are to have continuity, and be regarded by other free nations as dependable.

The Republican party pledges itself to continue the dynamic, courageous, sound and patriotic policies which have protected and promoted the interests of the United States during the past four years.

In a world fraught with peril, peace can be won and preserved only by vigilance and inspired leadership. In such a world, we believe it is essential that the past experience of our proven leader, President Dwight D. Eisenhower, continues to guide our country in the achievement and maintenance of a just, honorable and durable peace.

AMBASSADORSHIP REPORTED OFFERED JOHN HAY WHITNEY

LONDON, Aug. 20 (AP)—John Hay (Jock) Whitney has been offered the job of American Ambassador to Britain should President Eisenhower be reelected, an informed source said today.

Winthrop W. Aldrich, the present United States envoy to London, is reported to have recommended Whitney, wealthy 52-year-old New York financier and sportsman, as his successor.

Whitney was said to be considering the offer.

Aldrich, who will be 71 years old in November, wants to retire, but he has agreed to stay in his job until after the election. Whitney has numerous friends here in public and private life. He attended Oxford after Groton and Yale. His maternal grandfather, John Hay, was an Ambassador to Britain and a Secretary of State.

Cadillac

The Right Decision—at the Right Time!

There is good reason why the man sitting in the beautiful motor car above looks so pleased and happy. For he has just decided to make the move to Cadillac!

This, to be sure, is cause for great satisfaction in itself. For the wisdom of selecting Cadillac is undeniable. In beauty, in luxury, in performance, in everything that makes a motor car good and wonderful—Cadillac stands uniquely alone.

And not only does this gentleman know that he has made the wisest possible choice of a motor car, but he also knows that he has made it at the wisest possible time.

For coming, as he did, at this particular season of the year, he was able to take advantage of some very fine and favorable circumstances.

To begin with, he will be able to obtain delivery of his Cadillac after the shortest waiting period in many, many months. In fact, it is entirely possible that he will actually be able to drive home the model of his choice.

And, even more importantly, he discovered that Cadillac ownership has become more attractive and economical than ever before. Because of low used-car inventory—and as a result of an effort to broaden the base of Cadillac ownership—it is currently possible to receive an unusually generous trade-in allowance.

Little wonder, then, that this gentleman looks so pleased and happy—just as we know you will when you get the full, wonderful facts about Cadillac today!

In fact, we should like to suggest that you come in at your very first opportunity and hear them for yourself.

PLATFORM READY, ACCORD REACHED ON CIVIL RIGHTS

South. She said Northerners on the committee have "compromised" somewhat and have "shown an understanding of the problems that face the South at this time."

The United Press reported Senator Dirksen in a television interview as saying, in effect, that the White House had intervened to get the subcommittee's original draft softened as demanded by southern delegates.

Plank Always Strong.

As national chairman Leonard Hall told a television audience yesterday, the Republicans have always had a rather strong civil rights plank because they have not been faced with the North-South split that has plagued the Democrats. There is still only a semblance of a Republican party in the South.

The Democrats had a struggle over a civil rights position at their convention in Chicago last week, with the moderates winning out. Opposing sides took their differences to the floor of the convention where the moderate majority won easily after speakers for both sides had let off steam. The issue was a serious one for the Democrats in 1948 and 1952.

The Democratic platform recognized that the Supreme Court decision relating to school segregation had "brought consequences of vast importance to the nation." It rejected "all proposals for the use of force to interfere with the orderly determination of these matters by the courts."

Taft-Hartley Revisions.

In their proposed plank on labor, the Republicans promised to try to "revise and improve the Taft-Hartley Labor-Management Relations Act so as to protect more effectively the rights of labor unions, management, the individual worker and the public."

The pledge continued: "The protection of the right of workers to organize into unions and to bargain collectively is the firm and permanent policy of the Eisenhower Administration. In 1954, 1955 and again in 1956, President Eisenhower recommended constructive amendments to this act. A Democrat-controlled Congress has blocked these needed changes by parliamentary maneuvers. The Republican party pledges itself to overhaul and improve the Taft-Hartley act along the lines of these recommendations."

The platform writers pointed to record employment and said "the American wage earner . . . can buy more than ever before. . . ." They declared: "the Eisenhower Administration has brought to our people the highest employment, the highest wages and the highest standard of living ever enjoyed by any nation."

The plank pointed with pride to the relatively short duration of the steel strike this year, "in contrast to the six months' upheaval, presidential seizure of the steel industry and ultimate Supreme Court intervention" under the Truman Administration.

The Democrats charged in their labor plank that in the 1952 campaign Mr. Eisenhower promised to eliminate the "unjust" provisions of Taft-Hartley but that he and his Administration "have failed utterly to display any executive initiative or forcefulness to keep this pledge."

Perhaps the most significant, and incontrovertible, part of the Republican labor plank was a section calling attention to current full employment and high wages. Republicans noted nearly 67,000,000 men and women are at work, 4,000,000 more than in 1952, and that wages have increased substantially in the last three and a half years.

The platform called attention to the rise in the minimum wage and the extension of social security, both of which advances actually were pushed further by the Democrats than the Administration wanted to go. The Republicans promised to continue trying to eliminate discrimination in employment.

School Program.

The platform said also the party "will renew its efforts to enact a program based on sound principles of need and designed to encourage increased state and local efforts to build more classrooms" in the schools. Actually, the Administration has not pushed school construction legislation very hard.

One section of the platform asserted the Republicans had supported measures that have made more housing available than ever before in history, that a local-federal partnership had reduced slums, and that the Republicans had stimulated record home ownership and authorized additional low-rent public housing.

One proposal for a housing plank was submitted by Aloys P. Kaufmann, head of the St. Louis Chamber of Commerce, in behalf of the National Housing Conference, Inc., of which he is a director. Kaufman sought a pledge for a continuing program of low-rent public housing.

Foreign Policy Plank.

The foreign policy plank stressed the theme of "peace" which, in combination with "prosperity," constitutes the main Republican battle-cry.

The Republican foreign policy plank was less specific than the comparable section of the Democratic platform. The Republicans, lumping together the Middle East and Southeast Asia, declared "we have maintained and will maintain friendly relations with all nations in this vital area, seeking to mediate differences among them and encouraging their legitimate aspirations."

The platform went on to say that the Republicans, recognizing the existence of a major threat to international peace in the Middle East, "support a policy of impartial friendship for the peoples of the Arab states and Israel."

"We regard the preservation of Israel as an important tenet of American foreign policy. We are determined that the integrity of an independent Jewish state shall be maintained. We shall support the independence of Israel against armed aggression. The best hope for peace in the Middle East lies in the United Nations. We pledge our continued efforts to eliminate the obstacles to lasting peace in this area."

Pledge of Economic Help.

The Democrats pledged to give economic help to Israel and the Arab states, supported "the principle of free access to the Suez canal under suitable international auspices," and asserted:

"The Democratic party will act to redress the dangerous imbalance of arms in the area created by the shipment of Communist arms to Egypt, by selling or supplying defensive weapons to Israel, and will take such steps, including security gurantees, as may be required to deter aggression and war in the area."

The platforms of both parties expressed unqualified opposition to the admission of Communist China to the United Nations and either explicitly or by implication favored continued support of the Chiang Kai-shek Nationalist government on Formosa.

The Republicans took a somewhat different view of America's international defenses than the Democrats. Referring to the Far East, the Republicans called attention to our defense treaty with Korea, our security agreement with Formosa, the Southeast Asia treaty organization and the existence of three free Indochina states. They noted the Middle East has been strengthened by the alliance of the "northern tier" countries of Turkey, Iraq, Iran and Pakistan.

NATO Bolstered.

In Europe, the Republicans said, West Germany has been given sovereignty and has become a member of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. NATO has been strengthened "by developing reliance upon new weapons and retaliatory power" and the political aspects of NATO are being developed.

The Democrats, on the contrary, referred to the "decline of NATO." They saw the "strength of Germany still uncertain and insecure." They said American prestige has been declining, they charged the government with "clumsy" actions; they said the Eisenhower Administration has "dawdled and drifted" in the Middle East.

As to the Americas, "our good neighbor policy continues to prove its wisdom," the Republican platform stated. The drafters called attention to the Caracas conference of 1954 which established collective measures for the repulse of Communism. The first fruit of the Caracas doctrine was the expulsion of the Communist regime in Guatemala, the platform said.

On the other hand, the Democrats said they would "restore the policy of the good neighbor which has been alternately neglected and abused by the Republican Administration."

Steps for Peace.

The Republican platform said "far-reaching steps have been taken to eliminate the danger of a third world war" and that President Eisenhower, at the Big Four summit conference at Geneva, "impressed the Soviet leaders and the world with the dedication of the United States to peace, but its determination not to purchase peace at the price of freedom."

The summit conference set new forces into motion, the plank stated, Stalin has been repudiated, doctrinal disputes within the Communist party have intensified, and there is evidence the forces of freedom and liberation will prevail if the free nations stand firm.

Both parties said they would continue to seek the liberation of the Iron Curtain countries from Soviet domination.

As to international trade, the Republicans said:

"Barriers which impede international trade and the flow of capital should be reduced on a gradual, selective and reciprocal basis, with full recognition of the necessity to safeguard domestic enterprises, agriculture and labor against unfair import competition. We proudly point out that the Republican party was primarily responsible for initiating the escape clause and peril point provisions of law to make effective the necessary safeguards for American agriculture, labor and business.

"We pledge expeditious and faithful administration of these provisions. We are against any trade with the Communist world that would threaten the security of the United States and its allies."

The Republicans indorsed technical and economic assistance programs as effective counter-measures to Soviet propaganda and economic offensives. They affirmed the principle of freedom for all and looked forward to the end of colonialism. They pledged to continue the bi-partisan development of foreign policy and to continue the policies of the last four years.

In addition to the administration accomplishments listed, the Republicans also noted that in the last four years Austria was liberated, the dispute between Italy and Yugoslavia over Trieste settled and the negotiations for the Spanish bases were concluded.

Knight welcomed the delegates and hailed the President as "the leading statesman of our times."

Knight's speech pledged that California Republicans and "independent-minded Democrats" would see to it that Mr. Eisenhower got the state's 32 electoral votes.

He made no mention at all of Nixon, his fellow Californian. About the strongest indorsement Knight ever has given of Nixon is that he would support him if Mr. Eisenhower asks for Nixon as his running mate again.

In all history, Knight said, the world has been at war 10 years for each year of peace. To arrest such a trend takes "the leadership of tall men," he said, and added:

"Of that select group, none is taller than President Eisenhower. The forthright manner in which he brought peace to Korea, his crystal clear policy of dealing with the Chinese Communists over the Formosa question, and his equally determined actions in other spheres have demonstrated that he intends to keep the lamps of the world alight, and to promote freedom for all the nations of the earth."

Representative Simpson promised that a Republican Congress "will remove the President of the United States from a position of supplication in dealing with the nation's welfare."

The Eighty-fourth Congress, which adjourned last month, had Democratic majority in both Senate and House.

Senator Schoeppel said the need now is for a G.O.P. Congress so "the virtue of good government will be continuously geared to the economic and social progress that has been reached today" under the Eisenhower Administration.

Schoeppel said the Republicans have built a stronger America despite what he denounced as "the tear-down tactics of the New Dealers."

To bolster their "case," the Republican leaders lined up a roster of Congress members and candidates for the House and Senate. This is what some of them said:

Representative Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania: "All who believe in the spiritual equality of men are glad that President Eisenhower and the Republican party have used their days in office to protect the rights of all Americans against segregation and prejudice."

Representative Melvin Laird of Wisconsin: "As a result of Republican action in Congress and by the Eisenhower Administration, the decline in farm prices was halted and farm families can look to the future with confidence."

Representative Bruce Alger of Texas: "Out of the fiscal mess of waste, high taxes and a mounting public debt, a Republican Congress and Republican Administration began the long rebuilding of public trust in handling the tax money of our people."

Representative Katharine St. George of New York: "We know from the record of the Republican Administration that men of vision and courage now deal with the leaders of the Soviet Union. . . . From the moment a Republican Congress and a Republican President took office in 1953 the job of breaking down the roadblocks to permanent peace began."

Thruston Morton, candidate for the Senate from Kentucky: "Give us a Republican Congress and we'll see to it that the small business man gets the relief and Government assistance that he is entitled to."

Senator Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois: Under the G.O.P. Administration there has been "the widest-spread, most sustained period of plenty this country has ever known."

Strike in Colombo Harbor.

COLOMBO, Aug. 20 (AP)—A strike for double pay on a religious holiday today held up loading and unloading of 34 ships in Colombo harbor. Today being the Buddhist Day of the Full Moon, a port official said the 4000 workers wanted to spend the time in meditation, but would forego it for double pay.

COUNTY MAN HELD; HIS CHECK TO U.S. MARSHAL BOUNCED

S. Oscar Gustafson, of the 500 block of McLain lane, Kirkwood, was arrested today on a federal warrant charging him with giving a worthless $15 check to United States Marshal Omar Schnatmeier last Friday.

Schnatmeier said he and Gustafson were introduced to each other in the Federal building several weeks ago, and that Gustafson told him at the time he had been a railroad attorney at Kansas City for 48 years, was a Harvard graduate — and an uncle of Greta Garbo.

As he was about to leave, he said he had lost his wallet and asked if he could borrow $15. The marshal let him have it. Last Friday he turned up again, and said he had forgotten to bring his wallet.

Reminded of the loan made in a similar circumstance, Gustafson said, "Let me have $10 and I'll give you a check for $25." "Oh no," replied Schnatmeier, "just make it for $15." He did, drawing a check on a Kirkwood bank which reported in due course that he had no account there. The marshal checked with the railroad's St. Louis office, which said Gustaf was unknown there, and then set the law in motion.

NIXON VISITS PARTY GIVEN FOR HIS WIFE

Vice President Makes Surprise Appearance at Women's Reception.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 20 (AP)—Vice President Richard Nixon dropped in on his wife's party yesterday afternoon and went down the receiving line to meet her.

His appearance was a surprise to several hundred women, all chatting away at a reception given in the Mark Hopkins Hotel for Mrs. Nixon by Mrs. Leonard Hall, wife of the national committee chairman.

In a brief radio interview, Nixon said women had worked enthusiastically in the 1952 campaign and he thought they would do an even better job in 1956. In the Eisenhower Administration, he said, "the women of America are deeply appreciated."

He turned to his wife, Pat, and said "whatever people think of me," they think she has done a good job.

The remarks over, Nixon asked his wife, "Pat," are you supposed to stay here or can you go with us?"

By that time it was 6 p.m., time for the reception to be over, and Mrs. Nixon left with her husband and Hall, who, along with Postmaster General Arthur E. Summerfield, had come to the party with Nixon.

Asked where was her Nixon button, she replied, "Oh, I forgot it."

VOROSHILOV TO TOUR FINLAND

HELSINKI, Aug. 20 (AP)—Soviet President Klementi Voroshilov is going to revisit some old Bolshevist hideouts in a five-day tour of Finland beginning tomorrow.

In pre-revolutionary days Voroshilov recruited men and weapons in areas of Finland, then a part of the Czarist empire. Stalin, Lenin and Voroshilov frequently hid out in Finnish territory when things got too hot for them in the interior of Russia.

Smooth Soap Opera Mediocrity Predicted for G.O.P. Convention

Some, However, Say Republicans Can't Convene Without Having All Hell Break Loose.

By JOHN STEINBECK
Written for the Post-Dispatch.

EN ROUTE TO SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 19—These foolish things remind me of the Democratic whooptee-doodle—

The cheerful brigandage of hotels, restaurants and cab drivers who reversed the Robin Hood pitch.

Everybody Cuts In.

The size of my hotel bill. A man can't make a dishonest buck without everybody cuts in.

The ruffled inefficient, adolescent but virtuous discourtesy of Andy Frain's ushers who wouldn't take bribes from just anybody.

The goodness of Chicago food and magnificence of the service if you can afford it.

The wrongness of guessers before and their glorious rightness after the convention and the hundreds of millions of words involved in both.

Mr. Sam's immortal words about H.S.T.—"He fired from the hip—and missed."

It has been a great experience.

On Way to Fountainhead.

Now I am winging (I think that's the word) to the fountainhead of peace and prosperity from which all blessings flow; even those which haven't been brought to their attention.

This airplane is full of reporters and they are divided in their opinions about how it will be at the Cow Palace. One group contends that the Republican convention will have sealed-in, lifetime lubrication, that it will have the slick beauty of a toy electric train on an oval track and the smooth professional mediocrity of the soap operas, in which its designers served their apprenticeship.

Another school of reporters hold that all hell will break loose in the Cow Palace. These claim that no two members of the Eisenhower team can be trusted to make a public statement without briefing and security regulations. They cite Benson, Stassen, Dulles, various chiefs of staff and the superb Charley Wilson as well as the President himself as sort of losing touch with the main issue which is to get re-elected.

Then the Soreheads.

Then there are the soreheads, victims of the Hagerty curtain who say that if you don't play along, you lose your White House card and subsequently your job.

This was true with generals during the war. A correspondent agreed with the general or had his credentials picked up. I had one general of muscular religious convictions who kept me on my knees for hours at a time and another general who loved peep shows and sex circuses. I had little love for either but I had to play along or lose my press accrediting and my job.

Today, I am in a better position. My journalistic career terminates automatically when the lights dim in the Cow Palace.

If they let me circulate among delegates, I will have a story. If they don't—that will be a story too. If they are sweet to me I will be flattered and pleased but I still will have nothing to gain or lose—journalistically speaking. There's a gorgeous freedom in not running for anything.

Of course, the Hagerty curtain could come down around me personally forcing me to interview myself. In that case, the answers would be interesting if a little warped. Also, I would have paint on my bedroom ceiling analyzed.

COURT FREES MAN POLICE WANT BUT HE GIVES SELF UP

Police and police court officers got their signals mixed today and as a result a man wanted on a concealed weapons charge in Memphis, Tenn., had an hour and a half of unscheduled freedom.

Alfred Leatherwood, a Negro, who police said had jumped bond at Memphis, was in police court today on a peace disturbance charge growing out of an altercation with a woman friend. He had been in jail since his arrest Friday.

The charge was dismissed by Provisional Police Judge Rodney Weiss when the woman failed to prosecute. Court attaches freed Leatherwood, not knowing police wanted him held for Memphis authorities. Leatherwood, however,, remained in the courtroom, explaining to clerks that he was "afraid of the police."

Deputy Marshal Abe Styles Jr. then obligingly showed Leatherwood a side stairway where he could leave without being observed. A few minutes later police learned the man had been freed and hurriedly radioed a pick-up order.

Leatherwood, however, not to be outdone, returned the earlier courtesy by surrendering to officers at Beaumont and Olive streets.

BOAT CREW FAILS AGAIN TO BREAK RIVER SPEED MARK

Another attempt to break the motorboat speed record on the Mississippi river from New Orleans to St. Louis ended in failure Saturday night near Greenville, Miss., not far from the place where the motorboat being used had stalled once before.

The boat was manned by Bert Madison, E. E. Anderson, Harry Hastings Jr. and Paul Daughterty, all of Little Rock, Ark. It is owned by Raymond and Charles Loetscher of Little Rock, who tried to set a new record last month.

The record for the 1053-mile distance is 41 hours and 57 minutes, held by William L. Tedford of Little Rock and Nick Coill of Memphis, Tenn.

The latest effort began at 6 a.m. Saturday and ended about 12 hours later, when the craft had two damaged propellers and engine trouble. Lee Sawyer of St. Louis, who once held the record, plans to leave New Orleans Friday or Saturday night for another try, it was announced by Capt. Edwin C. Koenig.

E. ST. LOUIS CLUB RAIDER ACCUSED IN PLOT TO EXTORT

A hearing for Pete Hanger, a member of the East St. Louis Board of Police and Fire Commissioners, on a charge of attempted extortion has been set for 1 p.m. next Saturday before Police Magistrate Harry J. Cassin.

Hanger was named in a warrant sworn out by Edward English, one of three operators of Bush's Steak House, 100 West Broadway, East St. Louis, where Hanger led a raid at 4:25 a.m. last Saturday and arrested two bartenders for selling drinks after closing time.

English said Hanger approached him Aug. 9 and tried to obtain money from him. He did not say how much. Hanger denied that he had ever asked English for money.

On learning of the warrant, which was issued by Magistrate Cassin, Hanger surrendered and posted a $1000 bond.

WOMAN PRISONER WHO BEAT POLICE MATRON ESCAPES

Miss Nancy Jean Shears, a prisoner who attacked a 73-year-old police matron Saturday, escaped from confinement at Homer G. Phillips Hospital yesterday.

Patrolwoman Clara Reese, assigned to watch her in a single room of the hospital, reported she sat down and closed her eyes for a short time after being on her feet most of the night. When she awoke the prisoner was gone.

The prisoner, 18 years old, was being held on a charge of stealing more than $50 and assault to do great bodily harm.

Bulgarian Foreign Minister.

VIENNA, Aug. 20 (AP)—Bulgaria's Deputy Prime Minister Karlo Lukanov has been appointed Foreign Minister, the Sofia radio reported today. He succeeds Dr. Mincho Neichev, who died Aug. 12.

AMERICAN BOY FINDS NASSER 'ORDINARY AND INTERESTING'

NEW YORK, Aug. 20 (AP)—Dennis Briody, who was the personal guest of Egyptian President Nasser, yesterday described his host as "just like an ordinary, interesting man."

Dennis, who is 13 years old and lives in Massapequa, N.Y., arrived by plane from Cairo with his father, Charles.

Dennis was invited to Egypt by Nasser after he wrote a letter advising him that Egyptians who thought "the United States doesn't like Egypt are wrong."

Asked if he thought Nasser was unfriendly to the United States, Dennis replied: "I don't know. He wasn't unfriendly to me."

Republicans in Much Swankier Atmosphere Than Democrats

By ARTHUR EDSON

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 20 (AP)—One thing about the Republicans: They certainly are operating in a much swankier atmosphere than the one in which the Democrats did business last week.

This doesn't mean that the G.O.P. naturally puts on the dog. Politicians tend to look and act pretty much alike regardless of party label.

But while getting ready for their national convention, the G.O.P. shacked up in the Fairmont Hotel, on Nob Hill, which isn't exactly primitive camping.

(It's Nob Hill instead of Knob Hill because the name stands for "Nabob," referring to the rich folks who used to live up there, and still do.)

Enter the Fairmont front door, and you see, on marble pillars that look as if they might be on lend-lease from the National Art Gallery, pictures of President Eisenhower and Vice President Nixon. These probably are the most ornate poles ever used for tacking up political posters.

Scene of U.N. Charter Drafting.

Wander down to Republican press headquarters. There a young G.O.P. drumbeater, with a deprecatory cough, will lead you to a bronze plaque. Here in this room now stacked with well adjectived Republican literature, the United Nations Charter on human rights was drafted.

Or take a look at the hotel guests, political affiliation unknown. It's chilly in the evenings, and to a reporter who has been sweating it out in Chicago, it's unnerving to bump suddenly into a group of women swathed in mink.

You hear delegates cautioning each other against over confidence, but it's pretty hard for them not to feel that way. They are in a completely picnic mood.

They throng Chinatown, jam the restaurants until after midnight, ride up and down the city's hills in those wonderful little cablecars. A high old time is being had by all.

Go into the news workroom, and the impression is strengthened. Even with the teletype printers clacking in their plebian way, one still can look up at the ornate gold trimmed ceiling, or the fancy little balconies sticking out like eyebrows over full-length mirrors.

Makes you feel you ought to be wearing tails and white tie just to type a news item.

Remember how Harold Stassen, the President's adviser on arms reduction, said he thought the vice presidential candidate would be Gov. Christian A. Herter of Massachusetts, not Nixon?

You ask the G.O.P. drumbeater about this and he says:

"They're the President and the Vice President." And if anything should turn up to knock either of them off the ticket, the Republicans will be pictorially unprepared.

About the only mention of the vice presidential fuss is a campaign button which reads: "Stassen Stop Harrassin'."

This is the work of Emanuel Ress, the campaign button man who has just come in from Chicago where he buttoned the Democrats.

Ress got into the button business by accident. When helping the Wendell Willkie campaign as a volunteer he created the hardly immortal and thoroughly inaccurate phrase:

"Eleanor, start packing, the Willkies are coming."

Still, it was a starter, and Ress soon was in business for himself, bragging for both sides and all candidates with the greatest of ease.

He's fond of "I Like Ike" and has high hopes for this one: "Adlai and Estes Are the Best-est."

PRESIDENT BACKS BAR ON REPORTERS VISITING RED CHINA

WASHINGTON, Aug. 10 (AP) —The State Department today said President Eisenhower has given his "full concurrence" to its policy of refusing to grant valid passports to newsmen to visit Red China.

Acting Secretary of State Herbert Hoover Jr. disclosed the White House support in a statement. The department had announced its policy Aug. 7 after some American newsmen had been invited by the Peiping regime.

It gave as its reason Red China's delay in freeing Americans now in jail, in violation of a previous pledge to allow them to go home quickly.

Press officer Joseph Reap who read today's announcement said Hoover talked this matter over with Mr. Eisenhower on Saturday. He said the department had "no information" to confirm a New York Times dispatch from Hong Kong that reported four American newsmen were planning to enter Communist China Thursday.

G.I. Loan Applications Up.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20 (AP) —The Veterans Administration said today that 45,526 G.I. home loan applications during July set a record for any month this year. The rate is still below last year's.

4 PERSONS DEAD IN ST. LOUIS AREA AUTO ACCIDENTS

Four persons were killed and 11 were injured in traffic accidents in the St. Louis area over the weekend.

Mrs. Mary Henry, 70-year-old widow, of 1536A North Sixteenth street, was killed today when she and her 3-year-old granddaughter, Patricia Layton, were struck by an automobile while crossing Cass avenue at Fifteenth street.

The child, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Layton of 1529 North Eighteenth street, suffered head injuries and was admitted at City Hospital.

Leonard Brown, 18 years old, of 1635A Hogan street, driver of the automobile, told police he was east bound in Cass and was in back of a truck, preparing to make a left-hand turn into Fifteenth, when the woman and child walked into the path of his machine. He said he was unable to stop in time to avoid striking them. Brown was booked suspected of manslaughter, careless driving and failure to have a state auto license.

Man and Wife Hit.

Mrs. Lulu Lobey, 53 years old, 517 St. Joseph street, died in City Hospital yesterday of injuries suffered Saturday when she and her husband, Rudy, were struck in the 1200 block of South Broadway by an automobile which did not stop. Lobey is in the hospital with a fractured right leg.

Witnesses told police the car which struck the Lobeys was occupied by a young man and woman and was traveling about 40 miles an hour. Fred Mueller, 3 Delmar court, Belleville, pursued the automobile and forced it to the curb several blocks away from the accident scene, but the driver sped away when Mueller went to call police.

66 Deaths This Year.

Mrs. Lobey's death brought to 66 the total number of traffic fatalities in St. Louis so far this year, as compared with 50 during the corresponding period of 1955.

Rudolph B. Jones, 34 years old, of Augusta, Ga., died at Wood River Township Hospital yesterday of injuries suffered a short time earlier when he appartntly lost control of the light panel truck he was driving and crashed into a concrete abutment on Illinois Route 112, about 15 miles northeast of Alton.

State police said Jones was pinned in the cab of the truck and had to be freed by other motorists, one of whom took him to the hospital. Mrs. Dorothy Barton, 26 years old, of Rock Island, Ill., who was riding with Jones, suffered internal injuries and a fractured shoulder. She was taken to Alton Memorial Hospital.

Crushed Under Truck.

Edward Burgdorf, 40-year-old truck driver of Red Bud, Ill., was killed Saturday night when he was run over by a truck on Illinois Route 460 about three-fourths of a mile east of Cahokia Downs race track.

State police reported that Burgdorf and the driver of the truck which struck him, Kenneth Fults, 21 years old, also of Red Bud, both are employed as drivers of coal trucks by the G. F. Kiesel Co., 1936 South Vandeventer avenue. Fults was driving behind Burgdorf's tractor-trailer truck, and noticed the tail lights on Burgdorf's vehicle were not operating.

He pulled ahead of Burgdorf, signaled for him to stop and pulled off the highway. Burgdorf stopped ahead of Fults's truck. Fults said he got out of his truck, ran up to Burgdorf and told him about the tail lights, then got back into his cab and pulled up alongside Burgdorf's vehicle to provide light from his spotlight to make repairs.

When Fults alighted from his truck, he found Burgdorf lying beneath the wheels of his truck. Fults told police he did not see Burgdorf as he pulled alongside the other truck. Burgdorf was dead on arrival at St. Mary's Hospital, East St. Louis.

LIMIT ON CLAIMS IN MO. PAC. CASE SET

ICC Fixes Allowable Amount at $1,171,844 in Reorganization.

The maximum amount which may be allowed claimants for services rendered and expenses incurred in connection with the reorganization of the Missouri-Pacific Railroad, during the period from March 27, 1950, to Dec. 15, 1954, was fixed at $1,171,844 by the Interstate Commerce Commission in a report filed today in United States District Judge George H. Moore's court.

Judge Moore has scheduled for next month a hearing on allowances asked for by various claimants during the reorganization. Total claims for the period covered in the report were $2,422,520.

The principal cut made by the ICC was in the amount sought by the railroad as a debtor for services and for various attorneys and consultants who served the company during the period. A total of $454,204 had been asked, but the ICC fixed the total amount which might be allowed under the claim at $186,684.

A total of $118,378 asked by the company as a debtor was cut by the ICC to $14,332, while $139,413 sought by the law firm of Wheeler and Wheeler as attorneys for the debtor company was limited to $81,012. T. C. Davis, chairman of the board of directors of the old company, claimed $89,580 for services for the period, but the ICC limited this amount to $32,000.

A claim by the Alleghany Corp. for $291,110 was limited to $192,582 by the ICC. Several attorneys representing small groups of investors, or single bondholders, were allowed nothing on their claims by the commission.

Harry Kirshbaum, a New York attorney, who represented 22 bondholders with holdings valued at $523,000, had asked a total of $123,375 for services rendered by himself and his associates. The commission cut the amount which might be allowd him to $7500, pointing out in its report that Kirshbaum was not a railroad expert and asserting there was a fair inference his group of hondholders was gathered together "to offer a basis for his participation in the proceedings."

The amount of time he allegedly spent on the case was "unduly excessive," the report stated.

U.N. COULD SET UP SUEZ CANAL AGENCY

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y., Aug. 20 (AP)—Diplomats here say it is possible to create an authority similar to a United Nations specialized agency to operate the Suez canal under Egyptian ownership.

These diplomats, who declined to be quoted by name, said the Suez canal sooner or later would be a case for the U.N. They said it was unfortunate the issue was not put before the U.N. at the start.

Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold, who discussed the Suez crisis with Secretary of State John Foster Dulles last week, is watching developments closely. It is not expected the issue will be put before the U.N. until the regular General Assembly meets Nov. 12, but the diplomats here already are preparing for debate.

Dulles and French Foreign Minister Christian Pineau have suggested in London the creation of a Suez authority or organization associated with the U.N. They did not spell out their idea, but informants here say such an organization might be similar to a U.N. specialized agency. Such an organization has its own budget, governing body and constitution, but it makes regular reports to the U.N.

There is speculation that a Suez canal authority could be set up to guard against aggression or misuse of the canal. Egypt would retain canal ownership and control, and the authority would advise Cairo on operation.

There is a precedent—in the atomic field—for this system. Plans are under way here to create in October an atoms-for-peace authority to supervise and make effective President Eisenhower's proposals for using the atom for peaceful purposes.

This atoms-for-peace agency will be similar to a specialized agency. It is not likely to own any nuclear energy directly but will supervise distribution from the "have" countries to the "have not" countries requesting it.

In the same way, the Suez authority would not control the canal but would assist in its operation and primarily would be interested in seeing it is kept open. If it is shut at any time by Egypt or any other power, the authority could ask the U. N. quickly for help, with some prospect of getting it.

E. GERMANS CONVICT 2 SPIES

BERLIN, Aug. 20 (AP)—Communist East Germany has convicted two Germans on charges of being United States spies, the East German press said today.

Emil Twellmeier was given an eight-year sentence by a Leipzig court, and Willy Schulze seven years. They were accused of spying on Soviet and East German troop units.

STATE YOUTH AUTHORITY URGED FOR DELINQUENTS

Missouri needs a state-wide "youth authority" to handle all problems relating to juvenile delinquency, Dr. Clement Mihanovich, head of St. Louis University's sociology department, declared yesterday in a talk on KMOX.

Such an independent authority, responsible only to the Governor, would handle all offenders from the age of 8 through 20 years. It would have a staff of trained social workers who could aid individual communities in setting up individual programs to help youth. It would also centralize responsibility now divided among many sources, Mihanovich pointed out.

Publisher Richard H. Amberg of the Globe-Democrat said newspaper publicity could serve a useful purpose by helping make an example, particularly of those who commit heinous crimes. Mihanovich challenged this, saying publicity is often the goal of many young offenders. "Newspapers have a duty to discuss constructive measures to combat delinquency, as well as to avoid prejudging cases," he declared.

SUIT OF MOBERLY NEGRO TEACHERS BEING HEARD

Trial of an injunction and damages suit by eight Negro teachers of Moberly, Mo., alleging racial discrimination on the part of the Moberly school district, began in the court of United States District Judge Roy W. Harper today.

The teachers were dropped after Moberly ended racial segregation in its schools last year. They sought $4000 damages each and an injunction to restrain the school district from practicing what they contended was discrimination.

The first witness, Ralph Wallace, who was president of the Moberly Board of Education when it was decided not to rehire the Negroes and three white teachers, testified that there was no consideration of race in the decision. The suit was filed at Hannibal but transferred here since Judge Harper is the only judge in this federal district who is sitting at this time.

COUNTY POLICE WILL HOLD DISPUTED LIQUOR LICENSES

A recently adopted policy in dealing with violations of the state liquor control law, under which the license concerned is picked up by St. Louis county police and held until trial time, was announced today by the county's first assistant prosecuting attorney, John S. Stevens.

That means that when a tavern operator is arrested he will have to close, as the law requires that he have the license on the premises to do business.

Under the previous policy of letting the license remain, the prosecuting attorney obtained a duplicate of it at Jefferson City, and at the trial had a state agent testify that the duplicate was a true copy. That entailed travel expense for the county, and sometimes cases had to be postponed because an agent was not readily available.

DULLES SUBMITS PLAN FOR WORLD CONTROL OF SUEZ

'Peaceful Solution.'

A preamble to the Indian proposal called for a "peaceful and speedy solution to the situation concerning the canal in accordance with the principles and the Charter of U.N."

It urged that negotiations be opened without delay on the basis of the Indian proposals.

Menon laid down the following six principles on which, he said, the Indian proposals were based:

1. Recognition of Egypt's sovereignty.
2. Recognition of the canal as an integral part of Egypt and a waterway of international importance.
3. Free and uninterrupted navigation for all nations in accordance with the 1888 Constantinople convention.
4. Just and equitable tolls with the canal's facilities open to all nations without discrimination.
5. The canal must be maintained in proper condition in accordance with modern technical requirements.
6. The interests of the users must be fully recognized.

Dulles Sees Shepilov.

By the Associated Press.

This afternoon's session was delayed 45 minutes while Dulles met with Soviet Foreign Minister Dmitri Shepilov, presumably to discuss with him the West's firm stand for an international authority to operate the canal.

This Egypt has already rejected.

Whatever the immediate outcome of the conference, one high Western official said he was convinced military action in the Mediterranean was now remote. He said Prime Minister Eden was now thinking in terms of moral rather than military persuasion.

Fifteen countries were reported lined up behind the plan Dulles was to introduce in written form at the afternoon conference session.

These were: The United States, Britain, France, West Germany, Norway, Denmark, Italy, Portugal, Sweden, Japan, New Zealand, Australia, Pakistan, The Netherlands and Turkey.

Listed as sure opponents were Russia, India, Indonesia and Ceylon.

Iran, Ethiopia and Spain were reported undecided.

Egyptian Rejection

The new rejection of Dulles's proposal was made by Ali Sabry, President Nasser's top political aid who is in London observing the conference from the sidelines. Egypt declined to attend the conference.

In an interview published in the controlled Cairo press, Sabry repeated the Egyptian stand that international operation of the Suez was unacceptable.

Sabry said his government supports in general the Soviet proposal for a new and bigger conference on the canal question.

Sabry complained that the Dulles plan would "submit part of Egypt to collective supervision by several powers, a thing which no country in the world could accept."

Sabry denied a "watchdog" commission was needed to insure free navigation through the canal.

"Ships passing through the canal easily can tell whether there is free passage," he declared. "Any violation could easily be reported."

The Dulles resolution provides:

1. Removal of the Suez from the political sphere of any nation;
2. Expression of respect for the sovereignty of Egypt;
3. Fair compensation to the stockholders of the Suez Canal Co., which operated the canal for nearly a century before Egypt's seizure.
4. Establishment of an international board, including Egypt, to operate, enlarge and improve the canal. The board would report to the United Nations and its activities would be reviewed by some U.N. body.

Nasser has repeatedly said he would never accept international operation of the canal. Russia, acting as spokesman for Egypt, has argued at the conference that it would be an infringement on Egyptian sovereignty. The Western nations, led by France and Britain, answer that they cannot accept less.

Western officials expect the conference's conclusions to be dispatched to Egypt by Wednesday. The next move then would be up to Nasser.

Panamanian Says American Canal Belongs to Panama.

CAIRO, Aug. 20 (AP) — A Panamanian diplomat said today that the Panama canal belongs to Panama and that country never will accept international control over the canal.

Raphael Vallarino, Panamanian minister to Italy and Egypt, told a reporter here these points were made in a note Panama had given to Britain. Similar notes apparently were sent to other nations attending the Suez conference in London.

Vallarino said the note expressed Panama's deep regret at not having been invited to the London conference.

He said the protest note emphasized Panama's full sovereignty, authority and control over that canal and declared that, in spite of United States administrative control, the canal, its water and the land surrounding it entirely belong to Panama.

Asked if Panama planned to nationalize the Panama canal, he replied: "I don't like to talk about this matter. This is something with which only my government is concerned."

D.A.V. Convention Opens.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Aug. 20 (AP)—The Disabled American Veterans opened their thirty-fifth national convention today with nearly 2000 registered. The national commander, Maj. Gen. Melvan J. Maas of Washington, was honored last night at a reception.

STEVENSON WILL OPEN CAMPAIGN ON LABOR DAY

Cadillac Square, Detroit, to Be Setting for First Speech — Then to Los Angeles.

© New York Times News Service

LIBERTYVILLE, Ill., Aug. 20—Adlai E. Stevenson will begin his 1956 campaign for the presidency in Detroit with a traditional Labor day speech Sept. 3 in Cadillac square.

The Democratic nominee will follow up this initial effort with three speeches prior to what the Stevenson forces regard as the official opening of the campaign Sept. 13.

The Sept. 13 address, to be given at a place yet to be selected, is regarded as the official opening because it will reach a "saturation" of the country by radio and television on all networks.

After the Detroit speech on Labor day, Stevenson will fly to Los Angeles for the American Legion convention. His next appearance will be in New York Sept. 11 before the Liberal party convention. He will speak Sept. 12 in Harrisburg, Pa., at a $50-a-plate campaign dinner given the state Democratic party.

Truman to Help.

As these plans became known, James A. Finnegan, Stevenson campaign manager, said last night former President Harry S. Truman will "be utilized all the way down the line" in the 1956 campaign.

"We hope to have his (Mr. Truman's) advice and counsel," Finnegan said. His statement, he said, also applied to Senator Estes Kefauver, of Tennessee, Stevenson's running mate.

Kefauver, he added, likely would have an important impact in farming areas.

Finnegan, who conferred with Stevenson on campaign plans, told reporters that the Democratic campaign would not emphasize President Eisenhower's illness.

"You normally don't keep thrusting in a man's face that he is sick," Finnegan asserted. "The average American rebels at the thought of a man's illness as a political campaign issue."

He looked at the newsmen and said: "Besides, you're doing the job for us." He went on that "the American people know his capacity for doing a job is an issue."

Asked whether the President's illness would be "more of a tavern conversation" than a campaign theme, he replied: "You put words in my mouth. I didn't say that."

Predicts Co-operation.

Finnegan also discarded all reports of disagreements between Stevenson, former governor of Illinois, and Kefauver.

"I know all matters in this campaign will be co-ordinated," Finnegan declared. "I know the Senator and the Governor will be working in concert."

It was likely that Clayton Fritchey, deputy chairman of the Democratic party, would take over as press secretary for the Stevenson campaign, Finnegan said, "that hasn't been worked out yet," but it was understood that Fritchey would succeed Roger Tubby.

Tubby was White House press secretary in the latter days of the Truman Administration. He came to the Stevenson camp from a similar job with Gov. Averell Harriman of New York. Tubby was being urged to stay on as a press outlet for the Democratic national committee.

As Finnegan talked with reporters, the quality rather than the quantity of what Stevenson proposed to tell the American people in the election campaign ahead posed a "conflict" in the candidate's mind.

Has Suffered Before.

This worry appeared to weigh heavily as he changed from from well-pressed pants to faded bue jeans for a week's rest and play on his farm.

Looking at the campaigning ahead, he observed:

"The more towns and villages I cover the less quality in my speeches. But I've suffered before and I'll probably suffer more acutely in the campaign ahead."

His searching for the precise words and phrases to convey his philosophy and beliefs long has been a problem with Stevenson. Time often runs out on him as he works over speeches. The polishing process often goes on as he is being introduced.

Washington Headquarters.

By the Associated Press.

Finnegan said Stevenson's headquarters will be moved to Washington "as quickly as possible" and his entire campaign against President Eisenhower will be directed from there in co-ordination with the Democratic National Committee.

"But don't expect Gov. Stevenson to spend much time in Washington," he added. "He'll be out on the stump from the time the campaign starts."

Stevenson is expected to maintain a secondary personal headquarters office in Chicago where he will work some of the time on such matters as speech writing, but "the campaign will be integrated in Washington headquarters," Finnegan said.

This firm direction from Finnegan's headquarters will contrast with the dual headquarters in 1952 when Wilson Wyatt, campaign director of that year, operated from Springfield, the Illinois state capital, where Stevenson was still Governor.

In 1952 there was also a campaign headquarters in Washington, with Stephen A. Mitchell presiding as Democratic National Chairman.

Paul M. Butler, who was reelected national chairman Saturday, alluded to the 1952 situation when he told members of the national committee, "There will be no problems of jurisdiction—no two-headed monster."

Butler's remarks were interpreted by Democratic leaders to be an acknowledgment that Finnegan will be top man in putting the campaign plans into effect.

Butler ran into bitter criticism from top party leaders and others on some phases of his planning for the national convention — particularly in the matter of tickets to the big five-day show.

There were other matters that rankled many, and Butler, under heavy strain, said he was determined to quit, but he changed his mind after a conference with Stevenson who asked the national committee to re-elect Butler. This was done by acclamation.

Stevenson conferred at dinner last with Finnegan, Fritchey, Wyatt, Hy Raskin deputy chairman of the Stevenson presidential primary committee; William McCormick Blair Jr., Stevenson's law partner and personal aid. George Ball, of Stevenson's New York public relations division, and two other Stevenson law partners, Newton Minow and William Wirtz.

Finnegan said that he and Butler will reach "solid agreement on every aspect of the campaign."

Loafs at His Farm.

Meanwhile, between conferences, Stevenson loafed about his farm, or answered questions from a crowd of correspondents. He greeted reporters yesterday in faded blue jeans. They were so short they provided a full view of brown socks that appeared completely out of harmony with his blue canvas shoes and unstarched blue-striped shirt, open at the collar.

He said he wanted to move headquarters to Washington within a week or 10 days.

"Our first step," Stevenson said, "is to work out plans for a merger of my staff with that of the national committee."

Standing in the gravel driveway of his home, he said he had "a wonderful night's sleep of nine or 10 hours Saturday.

During the convention, he said, he didn't get to bed before 3 or 4 a.m. some nights, "and being tht country type, I'm not accustomed to living it up that way."

National Committee to Assign Role, Truman Says.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Aug. 20 (AP)—Former President Harry Truman says his role in the 1956 presidential campaign will be assigned to him by the National Democratic Committee.

"I have no talks planned at this time," he said on his return home from the party's convention at Chicago. "I will be assigned speeches through the national committee. I will work through them and do whatever I can to elect a Democratic president."

Stevenson Relaxing

—United Press Telephoto.

Wearing working clothes, ADLAI STEVENSON talks to reporters at a press conference yesterday on his Libertyville (Ill.) farm. It was the first full day of relaxation he has enjoyed since opening his successful bid for the Democratic presidential nomination.

INTERPRETATION AND COMMENT ON G.O.P. CONVENTION

Stassen Revolt Gives Meager Substance to Claims by G.O.P. That Its Convention Is Open

If He Did Not Exist, Party Leaders Would Have Had to Create Him to Bring Some Life Into Cut-and-Dried Affair in San Francisco.

By RAYMOND P. BRANDT
Chief Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.
SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 20.

AT THIS ULTRAHARMONIOUS national political assembly, if Harold E. Stassen did not exist, it would have been necessary for the Republican party leaders to invent him.

He has given at least some substance to the fiction that this cut-and-dried affair is an "open" convention. In reality the delegates are completely free to renominate President Eisenhower and Vice President Nixon after approving the party platform written by the resolutions committee under White House supervision.

The President's special adviser on peace problems, on a four-weeks' political leave of absence, confided to his several television audiences yesterday that his own candidate for the second spot on the ticket, Gov. Christian A. Herter of Massachusetts, has a 50-50 chance of replacing the entrenched Nixon.

Message Misses Delegates.

His earnest delivery may have impressed his audiences, but his message evidently did not reach the delegates here, virtually all of whom are expected to confirm the selection of Nixon by Republican National Chairman Leonard W. Hall.

Stassen called on his listeners to telegraph their respective state delegations that Nixon's name on the ticket would cost the President "millions of votes." But the convention managers, whose business it is know about such things, say that the Stassen "crusade" has had no measurable effect on the delegates.

These "insiders" are debating whether they shall have Nixon renominated by acclamation, as he was four years ago and as the President is scheduled to be this year, or to have token opposition by placing of several names in nomination so that Nixon will get nearly all the votes.

Herter Will Withdraw.

Herter, who will make the nomination speech for Nixon at Chairman Hall's request, has announced he will ask Representative Joseph W. Martin Jr. of Massachusetts, the convention's permanent chairman, to withdraw his name so that no formal nominating speech can be made for himself.

This would not prevent any delegates from voting for Herter if so inclined—and if Martin does not gavel through an acclamation vote for Nixon as Chairman Sam Rayburn did at Chicago when he announced on several occasions, "There are no 'noes.'"

The President could, of course, make the token opposition to Nixon a little more real if he would fulfill Stassen's prediction that Mr. Eisenhower "might" draw up a list of five or six men in addition to Nixon, any one of whom he would be "delighted" to have on the ticket with him.

Hypothetically, such a list would include some or all of the following: Herter; former Senator Henry Cabot Lodge of Massachusetts, now United Nations representative; Gov. Arthur Langlie of Washington, Republican candidate for the Senate; Gov. Theodore Roosevelt McKeldin of Maryland, and even Senator William F. Knowland of California. It is doubtful that such a list would include the names of Stassen or Gov. Goodwin Knight of California, who have demonstrated that they are not "team players."

Coming a Day Early.

Mr. Eisenhower conceivably could make such a gesture since he is coming here a day earlier than planned. He wrote out such a list in 1952 at the insistence of party leaders; who picked out Nixon's name and spread the word that this was Gen. Eisenhower's choice.

A list this year, however, would be interpreted as a halfway answer to Adlai E. Stevenson's challenge to follow the Democratic convention precedent and have a truly "open" convention on the vice-presidential nomination. Half-way answers to public challenges are not usually effective in politics. Silence would be more difficult to interpret.

The Republican leaders are delighted, of course, that Mr. Eisenhower is coming here earlier than originally planned. His appearance will enliven a show that, despite the invigorating air of this spectacular city, is showing signs of sagging in the middle.

Civil Rights Issue.

Aside from the Stassen shadow boxing, the only issue coming near to controversy, is the civil rights plank, which several Southern delegations want watered down so they can have a "lily-white" Republican party below the Mason-Dixon line. The Northern leaders, who control the party, see no value in the proposal. Their objective is to attract enough of the large Negro vote from the Democrats in the Northern cities so that in 1960, when the President cannot be re-elected, they will have greater strength for their new nominee.

The President's appearance for an extra day will also show to the delegates, and the television audiences who may be doubtful about Nixon as a potential President, that Mr. Eisenhower, nearly 66 years old and the victim of two serious illnesses within a year, can carry out the political as well as the essential constitutional duties of the Presidency if re-elected.

This show has been tailored for television as part of the defense against the Democrats. The extra day can be considered as part of short campaign.

ALSOP

Dewey Leads Big Parade of Nixon Backers

But There Is Irony in Anti-Taftite Lining Up Behind Taftite.

By JOSEPH and STEWART ALSOP
SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 20.

THIS Republican convention has been planned to resemble a smooth-running commercial television show selling peace, prosperity and Eisenhower. As of now it looks as though there would be hardly a trace of the open maneuvering and the rowdy disputations of more normal conventions.

All the same, one catches glimpses of marching and counter-marching behind the well-staged scenes. Among these, by far the most interesting is the onward march of Thomas E. Dewey at the head of the nominating procession of Vice President Richard M. Nixon.

There is something decidedly ironical in the important role that Dewey is now playing. In the last analysis, Nixon's greatest political strength lies in the wing of the Republican party that used to do and die for Senator Robert A. Taft. The ex-Taftites do not exactly love Nixon for himself, they love him for the enemies he has made. They like him, in other words, because they so heartily dislike the kind of Republicans who dislike Nixon, for these Republicans are also the group that most disliked Taft.

Team Would Avoid Row.

The White House might well have given more consideration to alternative vice presidential candidates if Nixon had not possessed this basic asset of Taftite support. Any plan to dump him would surely have produced the sort of unholy row with the whole Taftite wing of the party which President Eisenhower and his team are always anxious to avoid at almost any cost.

Yet the Taftites, whose support is Nixon's basic asset, will not gain any chance of increased influence in the party by Nixon's nomination. The real gainer, rather, will be the one man the Taftites loathe above all others, Dewey.

When the President suffered his heart attack, Dewey was the one man outside the White House entourage who was capable of raising a standard for other Republicans to rally to. If he had decided that the President's health required the nomination of a different running mate for Mr. Eisenhower, he could easily have won the kind of formidable backing in the press and in the party organization that could never be won by a "Goodie" Knight or a Harold Stassen.

Takes Opposite Course.

But instead of raising an anti-Nixon standard, Dewey astutely did the exact opposite. Nixon's close friend and advisor, Assistant Attorney General William Rogers, has always constituted an important link between him and Dewey. Nixon and Dewey have much in common, both in character and outlook, and Dewey had come to like and respect the Vice President long before the President fell ill.

These personal feelings might not have weigned so heavily, however, if they had not been reinforced by practical considerations. As a practical matter, opposing Nixon meant a tough fight, in which, moreover, the role the President himself would play was not exactly foreseeable yet could be decisive. On the other hand, backing Nixon was a completely sure thing. Dewey's support, added to Nixon's basic Taftite support, made Nixon's position virtually unchallengeable.

Thus Dewey, at the outset, let it be known that he was joining the Nixon procession. By so doing, he placed Nixon under a heavy obligation, which Nixon was quick to acknowledge. Then along came Harold Stassen with his ill-planned dump-Nixon movement, which has now turned out to be nothing but an enormous present to Tom Dewey.

Dewey to Nixon's Aid.

Stassen, in effect, created just enough commotion so that Nixon felt the need of active rather than passive help. Dewey —Associated Press Wirephoto.

Going Separate Ways

Still smiling, GOV. GOODWIN J. KNIGHT (left) and VICE PRESIDENT RICHARD M. NIXON emerging from California delegation caucus in San Francisco side by side. They quickly went separate ways, however, with Nixon refusing to attend a press conference conducted by Knight and Senator William Knowland, a Nixon supporter. Caucus voted unit rule indorsement of Nixon for Republican vice presidential nomination, but elected Knight, who has withheld indorsement of Nixon, as delegation chairman.

GALLUP

Peace Rated As Strongest G.O.P. Claim

Independents Swayed Least by Clean-Up Argument.

By GEORGE GALLUP
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion.

PRINCETON, N. J., Aug. 20.

THE Republican campaign argument with the greatest potency to the independent voters is "the Republicans got us out of the war in Korea and have kept the country at peace." Forty-five per cent of independent voters told Institute reporters that this was a strong argument for voting Republican in November.

The argument to the effect that "the Republicans have cleaned up the mess in Washington left by the Democrats" carries the least weight with independents, or "shift" voters.

As reported last week, independent voters rate the Democratic claim that "the Republican party is the party of big business and forgets the working people" as the Democrats' strongest argument.

In today's survey, each independent voter was handed a card stating four Republican campaign arguments. The four were named by G.O.P. county chairmen, polled by the Institute, as the arguments they thought would be most effective against the Democrats in their respective counties in 1956.

1. The Republicans got us out of Korea and have kept the country at peace.

Independents voted 45 per cent that this is a strong campaign argument for voting Republican, 39 per cent say it is a weak argument and 16 per cent have no opinion.

2. The Republicans have balanced the budget and cut taxes.

A total of 25 per cent of independent voters say this is a strong argument, 58 per cent say it is a weak argument and

CHILDS

Threats of World War Ignored By Delegates and Campaigners

'Politics of Irrelevant Promise' Is Self-Delusion in Era of Crisis—Platforms Unrealistic.

By MARQUIS W. CHILDS
A Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.
(Copyright 1956, The Pulitzer Publishing Co.)
SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 20.

EVER SINCE 1940 the national conventions of the two political parties have been held against the backbround of war or the threat of war. Each time the florid histrionics, the platform and the bombast of the oratory have had little or nothing to do with what has been happening in a world of revolutionary upheaval.

In the summer of 1940, when the Republicans met in Philadelphia, all of Western Europe had gone down before Hiter's blitzkrieg and it was doubtful whether Britain, alone and more or less defenseless, could stand. Yet for the crowds that chanted "We Want Willkie," this might as well have been occurring on the moon. And the Democrats in Chicago grudgingly acquiesced in a third term for Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Four years later, the country was absorbed in the struggle for victory and both the conventions and the election campaign that followed seemed irrelevant as a tired, sick Roosevelt forced himself beyond his strength. The Republican candidate, Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York, couid not break through the American preoccupation with winning the war.

Cold War and Korea.

In 1948, it was the cold war, with the growing threat of open aggression in Europe. And in '52 the Korean war had taken a fearful toll of American casuaties, the Communist Chinese had intervened and the dread shadow of an Asia-wide war was like a dark cloud in the sky.

This year is no exception. As the Republicans gather here, Secretary of State John Foster Dulles is in London trying to compromise the dispute between France and Britain on the one hand and Egypt on the other over Egypt's seizure of the Suez Canal. War over the canal may be averted, but quite apart from this incident the danger of a conflict in the Middle East as a result of the growing Arab-Israeli hostility is great.

Arms for Peace.

Nor is this year an exception in the irrelevance of the political promises and proposals held out to the voters by the two parties in convention assembled. The wordy foreign policy plank in the Democratic platform promises almost everything to everybody. It proposes the peaceful settlement of the Arab-Israeli dispute and then it offers arms to Israel.

On Communist China, with European and Asian opinion increasingly opposed to the American position, the platform took a rigid position against admission of Red China to the United Nations and in favor of continued support for Nationalist China.

While platform pledges mean little, this would tend to tie the hands of a Democratic President and his Secretary of State in the face of the pressures that are sure to be applied with respect to China once the American election has been held. The Democratic platform has a foolish reference to the Republican Administration "fraternizing" with the Communists.

Advice Rejected.

It thus rejects most of the counsel of the party's able advisers on foreign policy such as Chester Bowles, Dean Acheson and Paul Nitze. The foreign policy plank would have included even more damaging statements if it had not been for last minute changes eliminating the call for higher tariffs to protect the South's new textile industry.

The Republican platform in its final form is likely to be somewhat more moderate on foreign policy since the Eisenhower Administration has the sobering responsibility for taking the perilous decisions skirting the narrow way between peace and war. They could revel in complete irresponsibility four years ago when, with Dulles directing the framing of

PEARSON

Democrats' Civil Rights Hassle Gives G.O.P. Delegates Comfort

By DREW PEARSON
(Copyright, 1956.)
SAN FRANCISCO.

REPUBLICANS in San Francisco can get some comfort from backstage developments in the Democrats' civil rights hassle at Chicago. Negro leaders warned the Democrats that they will lose a crucial percentage of Negro votes, despite a Gallup poll survey to the contrary, unless they wage a fighting civil rights campaign this fall.

A more moderate voice was raised by Chicago's respected Negro Congressman Bill Dawson who advised civil rights hotheads to keep cool.

Here are the pot-boiling developments that have Negro politicians in an uproar. The outcome could affect the election, since the Negro vote might determine the margin of victory in such key states as New York, Illinois, Michigan and California.

1. The two senior Negroes in Congress have been feuding privately over civil rights. They are Congressman Dawson, who was born in Georgia and is highly respected by his House colleagues, and Congressman Adam Clayton Powell of Harlem. Dawson has accused Powell of stirring up the civil rights issue for personal publicity, has warned that Negroes have already made tremendous progress and shouldn't spoil it.

2. Powell not only boycotted the Democratic convention but is considering a bolt to the Republicans. He has sounded out Vice President Nixon and White House aid Max Rabb about deserting the Democratic ticket if the Democrats wage a lukewarm civil rights campaign. In fact, Powell put it in writing to Nixon that he is "ready and willing" to campaign for an Eisenhower-Nixon ticket. However, he doesn't want to quit the Democratic party, which would hurt him in Harlem and cause him to lose seniority rights in Congress.

3. The third Negro Congressman, Detroit's Charles Diggs, isn't contemplating anything so drastic, but he has threatened privately that he won't campaign for the Democrats unless they come out fighting for civil rights. He wouldn't help the Republicans but would simply limit his campaigning for his own congressional seat.

4. Negro leaders have received word that Attorney General Brownell, in a play for Negro votes, will indict several election officials in Mississippi for refusing the Negroes the right to vote. The indictments will be timed before the election which, Negro leaders warn, will make political hay for the Republicans.

Congressman Dawson is using his influence to keep the Negro vote in line. Through the Democratic National Committee, he is quietly bringing more Negroes into important roles inside state Democratic organizations. For the first time, Negroes won places on the state delegations of Texas, Oklahoma and Maryland.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

And Now to San Francisco

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

Assuming that Mr. Eisenhower and Mr. Nixon are nominated by the Republicans and that Mr. Eisenhower should die about two days before election, too late to change names on the ballots, who would be elected President if Mr. Eisenhower received the most electoral votes?

In my opinion, a dead man cannot be elected to office. If so, would the man receiving the next highest number of votes, a Democrat, be President?

If so, who would be Vice President, the Democratic President's running mate, or Nixon who would have received the most votes for that position? The odds are very much against this happening but I think a question of this kind should be answered.

Of course, everyone knows Mr. Nixon would take over the presidency until inauguration, but I cannot see how he could stay in office if a Democrat had received the most legal votes—assuming the votes for Mr. Eisenhower would be declared void.

Perhaps there is a law that handles this situation, but no one has mentioned it. About half that I have talked with think Nixon would stay in while the rest think Stevenson would be President.

ELMER LANDON.

Webster Groves.

You give me a laugh. You rant and rave against Vice President Nixon in an attempt to fool the public into thinking he isn't qualified to serve as President. You can't honestly say that we have ever had an abler, more intelligent or better qualified Vice President.

Just what candidate would your editorial staff select to replace Dick Nixon? Gov. Herter? Why he isn't qualified by experience and certainly is not qualified by reason of having been born outside the United States.

W. D. HARRINGTON.

Vernon Hochstetter, who says he was nauseated at the sight of Stevenson and Harriman being friendly with Truman, must have a weaker stomach than he had four years ago.

Surely he felt a bit seasick then when his "man among men," Dwight Eisenhower, allowed Senator Jenner to hold aloft his hand, and cut out a few paragraphs to avoid offending Jumping Joe.

MIKE BARRY.

Louisville, Ky.

As to the sight of Stevenson and Harriman being so "nauseous" to Mr. Hochstetter—I will look at them with pleasure in preference to a mere glimpse of Nixon of Nixon, Dixon & Yates.

KAY WILSON.

Bucyrus, Mo.

Not being the seventh son of a seventh son I cannot vouch for my authority as a prophet but here goes:

I predict that Mr. Eisenhower will be unable or will decline the nomination. His unavailability would automatically remove the fear of Mr. Nixon succeeding to the presidency. I predict Gov. Herter will be nominated and in turn will choose Nixon as his running mate.

This would stall off any breach in the strategy and as long as all the flags, buntings, posters, buttons, balloons and gadgets are already stamped it would be too late to change and a lot of people would go to the polls believing that Ike's unavailability was just so much Democratic propaganda.

Mebbe Lincoln was right.

Webster Groves.

Where Are the Flags?

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

Recently we took our vacation, and I noticed that other states flew their state flags over every school and over most public buildings.

I have been home almost a month now and I have seen only two Missouri flags. One was flying over a state patrol headquarters and the other over a Y.M.C.A.

What is the matter? Are we ashamed of our state flag? Or is it that we just don't care?

LOYAL MISSOURIAN.

Boner by Bromwich?

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

The election to the position of county chairman, state chairman or national committeeman of either political party carries with it the implied, if not sacred, duty to support and work for the election of every candidate nominated by the convention or primary.

In all the years I have worked in politics this is the first time I have ever known a party officer to issue a statement such as Elroy Bromwich's that a candidate for office in his party could not be elected to office if the party nominated him.

If Nixon is nominated, which a majority believe will take place, the Democrats will plaster the Bromwich statement on every billboard in Missouri.

Most editorial writers approach politics from the standpoint of idealism, theory and what ought to be. You have two excellent political reporters with whom I am acquainted. They will tell you that from the standpoint of the organization man or woman (the wardheelers as you editorial writers term us), Mr. Bromwich violated rules one, two, three and so on ad infinitum.

Not only Nixon is involved, but every candidate of his party. Bromwich is not a free agent, as he must, or should have known, when he sought the office.

How long would Boyd Carroll or Herb Trask last if they issued a statement that the news could only be obtained from opposition papers?

GROVER W. DALTON.

Poplar Bluff, Mo.

The Untaxed Half

Complaints about taxes probably are as inevitable as taxes themselves. Yet they have grown so loud that the House of Representatives has authorized an investigation headed by Representative Wilbur D. Mills of Arkansas, one of Capitol Hill's experts on taxation.

The findings may differ quite a bit from the assertions and the promises likely to be made in the coming campaign. An outline of the problem—and a hint of the solution—was given by Mr. Mills in a recent interview published in U.S. News and World Report. And this might be kept in mind as a yardstick for vote-appeals.

The personal and corporation income tax which is expected to produce about 57 billion dollars this year is, in the opinion of Mr. Mills, the most effective source of federal revenue. As a substitute, a retail sales tax, exempting food and medicine, would have to be levied at the rate of 50 per cent, or at 64 per cent on the manufacturing level.

A broadening of the income tax base and a reduction in rates is what the chairman himself would like to see. He points out that the Department of Commerce estimated 1955 income at 303 billion dollars while only about 125 billions were reported for tax purposes. Thus much more than half escaped the income tax because of a mass of exclusions, exemptions and deductions. If the tax base were broadened by levying on most of this money, rates obviously could be reduced without impairing revenue. Broadly, Mr. Mills feels that "the amount of tax an individual pays should not depend on the source of his income but only on the amount of his income."

As other tax experts warn, equity is being eroded by such devices as the oil depletion allowance, tax-exempt securities, exemptions for life insurance, the expense account racket and loose application of the capital gains rule. While not denying the validity and the necessity for certain allowances, Mr. Mills is convinced that there should be a general tightening-up.

It is very easy to agree with him. After all, every untaxed dollar in a favored category means a heavier burden on the rest. Not only is this unfair to many individuals and corporations not so privileged, but it threatens damage to the economy by encouraging investment in a few sectors while making it less attractive in others that may be even more essential to the general well-being.

* * *

Mr. Mills also believes that the present rate structure, starting with 20 per cent on the first taxable dollar and running as high as 91 per cent, is unfair. The top rate actually is paid only on about one 100th of 1 per cent of incomes. A taxpayer in the so-called 50 per cent bracket, assuming that he has two children, probably will pay only 26 per cent of his actual income because of the difference between it and his taxable income.

Mr. Mills does not use such figures to advocate a "sock the rich" policy. On the contrary, he favors lower, equitably graduated rates from top to bottom. And he believes they can be achieved by a thorough examination of the devices by which so much income now escapes the income tax.

An era of high taxes calls for such reform. Congress is under mounting pressure from various groups demanding the privileges enjoyed by others. But privileges undermine general confidence in the tax structure. They encourage widespread evasions, increasing difficulties of collection, recourse to damaging hidden taxes, more reliance on deficit financing, greater inflation and a whole train of fiscal evils. The cure is fair treatment for all.

Modern Women Are Very Lucky

Unlike her Stuart predecessors, Elizabeth II probably will not have to send an army to the border, but Scots again are telling the English monarch how to behave. Though coins, stamps and mail-boxes bear her titles or cipher in Latin, Sir Thomas Beecham has been ordered not to play Beethoven's "Missa Solemnis" before her at the Edinburgh music festival. Is its Latin not the language of papists, not to mention certain Roman emperors not recommended by child psychologists as models for the young?

Also the Rev. Kenneth McRae says he will not go near the Queen because she "betrayed the Sabbath" by receiving the touring Bulganin and Khrushchev on a Sunday and by watching the Duke of Edinburgh (mark the title) play polo on Sunday afternoons.

Elizabeth II probably will be able to take this moral solicitude in stride by recalling how angered Elizabeth I was by the sermon of an earlier and more dour Scot, John Knox. The first Elizabeth never forgave him for "The First Blast of the Trumpet Against the Monstrous Regiment of Women." In this tirade against the female rule, Knox said:

> To promote a woman to bear rule, superiority, dominion, or empire above any realm, nation, or city, is repugnant to nature, contumely to God, a thing most contrarious to His revealed will and approved ordinance; and finally, it is the subversion of good order, of all equity and justice.

Why? Because, said Knox, women are blind, weak, sick, impotent, foolish, mad, phrenetic, frail, impatient, feeble, unconstant, variable, cruel, lacking in the spirit of counsel and regimen, corrupt and venomed fountains from which can spring no wholesome water. He even doubted that "men subject to the counsel or empire of their wives" are worthy of public office.

Although Scots still may frown on Sunday Latin, Sunday guests and Sunday polo for queens, modern women—even in Edinburgh—must be thankful that they now have it so good.

Our Nearest Neighbors Are Angry

"Dumping," even when more elegantly described as the subsidization of exports, is a quick device for angering friends. Washington has been reminded of this by both Canada and Mexico in connection with the plan, started Aug. 1, to double our textile and cotton exports by price-cutting abroad. Naturally such cuts undermine the price of Canadian textiles and Mexican cotton.

This is especially serious for Mexico where expanded cotton production brings in about one third of the nation's export earnings or about $240,000,000. Intent on holding its share of the world market, Mexico has decreed that, starting next fall, imports of American automobiles, auto parts and accessories will have to be paid for with Mexican cotton. There also is a hint that this policy may be applied to more American products. And barter deals with other countries are being considered to further shrink the Mexican market for United States goods.

Canada has not yet threatened such drastic counter-measures, and it is possible that Mexico may not go through with them. That will depend largely on whether the United States persists in the "dumping" scheme. A second thought should make it clear that anything gained by reducing our cotton surplus in this way will be more than offset by the loss of good will abroad. Nor is the scheme fair to Americans who are taxed to keep the domestic price of cotton high. With overtones of inflation at home and the threat of an international trade war, the cotton program seems anything but worthwhile.

One Question, Several Answers

As the Republican national convention gathered in San Francisco's Cow Palace for its opening session, everyone was asking the same question: Why is President Eisenhower changing his schedule so as to arrive a day early?

The official answer is that the President wants to reach the convention city Tuesday instead of Wednesday so he may receive as many party leaders and delegates as possible. This answer is set in the context of Mr. Eisenhower as the party head who is eager to generate enthusiasm for the coming campaign.

Another answer is that the President wants to reassure a large number of people concerning his health. This answer recognizes the fact that as more people talk with him the more word will be spread in different parts of the country that the President is getting along all right and that no voter needs to fear to mark a ballot for him.

Still another answer is that Mr. Eisenhower is arriving early because his presence in the convention city of itself will add interest to the cut and dried proceedings. This answer amounts to an acceptance of the fact that popular interest lags when the decisions are made in advance.

Quite a frequent speculation is that the President is planning to counter the open Democratic convention in which the delegates at Chicago first nominated Adlai E. Stevenson over the all-out opposition of the Truman-Harriman forces and then nominated Senator Estes Kefauver over the behind-the-scenes opposition of the top Democratic leaders in Congress, Speaker Rayburn and Senate Majority Leader Johnson, both of Texas.

This answer holds out the possibility of some move on the part of the President in the direction of a seemingly free choice for the vice presidential nomination. If there is no move of this kind, then the renomination of Vice President Nixon will be automatic and the delegates opposed to him will have little opportunity to express themselves.

Whatever the answer, there is little doubt that Adlai Stevenson's popular move at Chicago has created somewhat of a defensive atmosphere in San Francisco. The problem is how to do something about it without making the situation still more awkward with respect to the Nixon-Stassen controversy.

The presence of the President's warm personality may not produce the solution but it reassures the delegates who must scratch their heads about it.

Moving Traffic in the County

The first step has been taken toward transforming the proposed metropolitan master traffic control plan from blueprints to reality. A committee of nine outstanding St. Louis countians has been named by Council Chairman Carey to see what can be done about putting the plan in effect in the county.

This will take some doing. Before the plan can produce much in the way of improvement in traffic flow outside the city limits, the dozen or so county municipalities lying astride the city-county line will have to adopt it. Eventually every community east of Lindbergh ought to follow suit.

But these things never take care of themselves, and that is where the new committee has a very special responsibility. Unless a few dedicated people keep the pressure on, nothing much ever happens. It may be a while before the streets are clear from the levee to Lindbergh, but if the committee works at it there is no doubt the problem can be licked.

Old People in Fire Traps

A shameful indictment of Missouri's treatment of its elderly citizens comes out of the condemnation of two unlicensed rooming houses on West Pine boulevard. These old three-story buildings were found to be serious fire hazards, with faulty electric wiring, inadequate fire escapes, and uncharged fire extinguishers. These and other hazards had not been corrected though the city authorities had served warning about them a year ago.

The indictment of Missouri's neglect is made by Miss Dorothy Stauffer, director of social services for City Hospital. She says Missouri is creating a market for rooming houses of this nature, and driving unfortunates into them, by providing only $55 a month in old-age benefits. It is impossible to obtain "decent, safe and adequate" room and board at that figure, since the going rate is $125, Miss Stauffer declares.

Missouri is one of a minority of states which are spending relatively too much money on old-age benefits and yet providing too small a monthly income to its unemployable old people. The reason for this discrepancy is that much of the money is being wasted. It is being spent on elderly persons who should be supported in part or in whole by their relatives or by their estates. After their deaths, relatives share the money—in effect, the state's money.

Most states have enacted laws to prevent that abuse of the old-age benefit system. These are known as lien-recovery or relative-responsibility laws. The amounts paid out by the state are made a lien on the estates of the recipients. For some years now efforts have been put forth to enact such a law in Missouri, but so far unsuccessfully. With an equitable lien law, the state should be able to increase its monthly payments to old people to some extent without increasing the aggregate outlay. It may then cease driving its helpless senior citizens into firetraps like those which have experienced tragic, pitiful disasters in several parts of the country.

A Word for the Police Board

The Police Board's decision to double the number of one-man police cars in St. Louis indicates that the experiment with this new technique is paying off.

One-man cars provide twice the coverage of a given area without any increase in manpower, the largest single item in the police budget. The technique involves reassigning the two officers who normally ride in regular two-man vehicles to two separate cars, each of which is responsible for half the former area. This doubles protection without doubling cost.

The Board's willingness to experiment with the one-man car, as well as with other methods for improving the department's service to the people, ought not to pass unnoticed. The Board's performance is especially noteworthy in view of the heavy and almost constant pressure it has been under during the "payoff" furore.

WHAT DO WE DO ABOUT PESTS?

A Platform of Few Surprises

The Mirror of Public Opinion

Democratic document is much too long and not greatly inspired; civil rights plank fails to achieve real meeting of minds but temptation to back farm nostrums was resisted; new stand on trade pacts rings strangely, nominee to make it meaningful.

An Editorial in The New York Times

The pledges made in party platforms—both party platforms—have so frequently been broken or ignored that what is said (usually in too many words) in these quadrennial declarations is now viewed with more than a little skepticism.

Nevertheless, the party platform has its points of interest and importance. It indicates the general drift of party sentiment. It points, through its omissions and evasions, to still unresolved contradictions in party thinking. It sometimes serves as a goad to lagging party conscience.

It has been evident for many months that the chief problem for the Democrats this year would be the question of civil rights. The Southern wing of the party has been traditionally opposed to what it regards as Federal encroachment in this field. The Northern wing has wanted a forthright statement in favor of Federal action.

It was inevitable, unless the party was to be torn apart, that a compromise be reached. To achieve such a compromise was the work of many hours in committee and much experimentation in semantics.

As approved by the convention, the the platform pledges action, but not specifically federal action, to secure the right to equal opportunity for employment and to protect all citizens in the exercise of their rights. It also promises "full rights to education in publicly supported schools," but not necessarily nonsegregated schools.

It notes that the Supreme Court's decisions are the law of the land and makes the entirely factual and certainly noncommittal comment that they "have brought consequences of vast importance." To this it adds that "we reject all proposals for the use of force"—but who, really, is proposing to use force?—"to interfere with the orderly determination of these matters by the courts."

It remains to be seen whether both wings of the party can be reconciled to going along with this, but it would be folly to believe in any case, that the language thus achieved indicates a genuine meeting of minds on this long vexatious problem or any real diminution of the intraparty disagreement in this area.

Like all party platforms, both Democratic and Republican, this one has much to say about the iniquities of the opposition in its handling of both foreign and domestic matters.

The Eisenhower Administration is severely condemned for various alleged failures in the international field, resulting in an impairment of American prestige; but when the critical words are pared away it is reassuring to note that there is no dissent here from the fundamental principles of the bipartisan foreign policy which has guided the United States for the last decade: strong alliances with our friends, continued support for the efforts of these friends to defend themselves and improve their lot, no semblance of a retreat toward isolation.

A similar declaration on these same essential points may confidently be expected from the Republicans next week at San Francisco; and while there will arise inevitable differences of opinion over emphasis and means of implementation, our allies will have good reason for reassurance that the main principles of American foreign policy stand unchallenged.

For the rest, we welcome the ability of the Democratic platform-framers to resist the temptation to go hell-bent for "the farm vote" by pledging support of the fantastic "Brannan plan" and to settle instead for something vague enough to give them, if returned to power, at least some freedom of action.

We welcome the pledge of support for statehood for Hawaii and Alaska, and hope that the Southern Democratic Senators who have long helped to block the admission of Hawaii will take note of this commitment.

The inclusion of a plank pledging the party "unequivocally" to outright repeal of the Taft-Hartley Act is an obvious bid for trade-union votes; it is also an anachronism, considering the fact that a Democratic Administration on various occasions used the Taft-Tartley Act to good advantage, and that the realistic question now is not repeal of the law but its improvement.

We note finally, a somewhat remarkable passage in which the Democratic party, historically the party of free trade and the sponsor of reciprocal trade agreement pacts, now pledges itself to "reverse and remedy" the trend of the Eisenhower Administration toward permitting too many "substandard" imports to enter the United States.

Shade of Cordell Hull! And what now of the oft-spoken Democratic argument that if we wish to sell abroad we must buy abroad, and that "trade not aid" is the best reliance for our democratic allies?

Except for this last point, there is little that is surprising in the Democratic platform, and not much to arouse contention. This is an average political document, much too long and not greatly gifted in qualities of inspiration. What can be made of it will depend largely upon the qualities and convictions of the man chosen to stand on it.

Last Stand on Lincoln's Nose

An Editorial in the Huron (S.D.) Daily Plainsman

Trouble with Rapid City promoters is they don't think big enough. Now take Alfred Hitchcock, the famous producer-director of thrilling mystery movies. There's a man who thinks big and has what could be one of the greatest ideas ever for South Dakota.

Newsweek magazine this week (page 198, June 11) has a lengthy profile on Hitchcock and near the end it tells what he plans for the future, to-wit:

"Then possibly he could flesh out one of his longtime projects, a movie concluding with a chase across the great stone faces carved on Mount Rushmore in South Dakota, with the villain hiding in Lincoln's nostril, the hero clambering over Theodore Roosevelt's eyebrows and the police closing in from Washington's chin, which would certainly require all the film capital's complicated equipment, ingenuity and a screen as big and colorful as all outdoors to bring it off."

There isn't the slightest doubt but what the state of South Dakota would give even more co-operation than it gave to the production of "The Last Hunt" and other movies.

A helicopter from Ellsworth Air Force Base could rescue the heroine from Jefferson's lip. The hero, menaced by the villain's gun, could be saved by a Mount Rushmore mountain goat butting the villain. The possibilities are gigantic.

Production costs would be low, too. You need sinister characters for a Hitchcock movie and heaven only knows the Hills are full of sinister-looking characters who look like nothing more nor less than refugees from the Hitchcock mystery thriller.

The Plainsman really believes however that the state of South Dakota ought to take serious cognizance of Hitchcock's pet project and let him know officially that the state will do anything it can do to aid and abet the wedding of the genius of Gutzon Borglum with that of Alfred Hitchcock.

Between Book Ends

THE GREAT RIMBAUD FORGERY, by Bruce Morrissette. (Washington University Studies, 333 pgs., $4.)

Early in 1949 two French actors, Nicholas Bataille and Mme. Akakia-Viala, piqued by a bad reception of their performance in a dramatized poem, took an unusual vengeance on their critics to prove they had not "betrayed" the author of their drama. They forged an ingenious imitation of that author and gave it the title of one of his long lost works. When soon afterwards a reputable French publisher issued it as the genuine work, the incident caused a scandal which rocked the European literary world, strained critics' reputations and, as Jean (of-all-arts) Cocteau wrote, made everyone in Paris stop talking politics to "fidget" over a new controversy.

Bruce Morrissette

Center of the debate was a prose poem in five parts entitled "La Chasse Spirituelle" (The Spiritual Hunt). The alleged author: Arthur Rimbaud (1854-1891), a remarkable adventurer who in appearance and precocity was a kind of Mickey Rooney of French letters.

"La Chasse" was supposedly written at the height of his early powers and its discovery was a major literary event. In this impressive study Bruce Morrissette, Washington University professor of romance languages, gives a blow-by-blow account of "the Rimbaud battle," as the press called the affair.

For several weeks after its publication, Morrissette relates, the forgery was the subject of daily commentary "usually associated with the progress of a military battle, a plague, or other holocaust." His opening chapters describe imitations or forgeries of Rimbaud from the 1880s to our time, including recent "discoveries" of Rimbaud works in attics and hayloft. He delves into the history of "La Chasse" as a missing work and holds slight hope for its eventual recovery.

Next, Morrissette gives details of the forgery, its publication and the alignment of critics for and against its authenticity. There is pathetic humor in the forgers' exhibiting their rough drafts in attempts to claim authorship when, confronted by this evidence, some critics refused to accept it. And typical of the inconstancy of other noted critics, one was "overwhelmed by the beauty of the text" but hastily withdrew his praise after the work was revealed as counterfeit. During the episode one critic alone showed outstanding integrity; surrealist leader Andre Breton, who saw from the outset that "La Chasse" was spurious.

While Morrissette does not try to prove "La Chasse" was a forgery, his brilliant analysis of the text brings out its structural differences with genuine Rimbaud writings. Concluding, he shows how the affair served as a bitter lesson for critics and accentuated their individual faults and merits. As a whole, the study is skillfully organized and well documented. How Life Evolved

THE STORY OF OUR EARTH, by Richard Carrington. (Harper, $3.)

This is an excellent summary for readers young and old who are curious to know how life evolved on the earth. Mr. Carrington is one of those British naturalists who are so good at popularizing the sciences. In this book he begins with the probable evolution of the earth itself and gradually leads up to the appearance of life on the planet. His chapter on the great dinosaurs is as good as anything written on the subject. Gradually the narrative passes into the age of mammals and to the debut of homo sapiens himself. The whole tapestry is woven in a single piece, as it were, thus giving the reader a true sense of perspective. Not to be missed if you are interested in the earth and nature.

WALTER LIPPMANN

Vote Bait, Not a Foreign Policy

CHICAGO.

ALTHOUGH THE CONVENTION adopted the platform a few hours after Mr. Stevenson's nomination became a certainty, the men who put together the long section on foreign affairs were not thinking very much about any presidential candidate.

For by no stretch of the imagination can this section be read as a serious and responsible statement of what would be United States foreign policy if a Democrat became President. The many paragraphs are not a platform on which a party can stand. They are a heterogeneous heap of planks thrown together in the hope of pleasing every pressure group, wherever located, with which politicians have to reckon.

Dulles

The result is not a statement of national policy but a collection of items supposed to appease or attract in the various localities.

No Worse Than G.O.P.

The best thing that can be said for the Democratic foreign policy platform is that it is no worse, no more demagogic and no more irresponsible, than was the foreign policy section of the Republican platform on which Gen. Eisenhower ran in 1952.

Indeed, there is reason for wondering whether the authors of this Democratic platform did not use the Republican platform of 1952 as a working model. For on the Far East, the Middle East, and on the European satellite countries, the Democrats in 1956 are making most of the same promises, raising most of the same hopes, and tying themselves in most of the same knots, as did Mr. Dulles when he wrote the Republican platform of 1952.

The reason the two platforms are so much alike is that both are designed not as national policy but as voter bait.

Part of the Game.

Gov. Stevenson will, no doubt, have to say now what Gen. Eisenhower said four years ago, that he approves of the platform and will run on it. But if he is elected, he will have to do what Gen. Eisenhower and Mr. Dulles have done, which is to hope that the country will forget what the platform says.

He must hope that the loose words will be regarded as part of the great game of politics, not to be identified too closely with the conduct of foreign affairs.

There was no evidence, so far as I could see, that the convention was interested in the platform on foreign affairs. For while every delegation was, no doubt, interested in appeasing or attracting one or another of the pressure groups, none of the delegations was much interested in all the groups.

The platform as a whole aroused no interest in the convention as a whole.

The real and the most serious business in the platform was the part about civil rights. My own view is that the outcome may well be regarded in the future as an event of great significance and great promise in the history of American sectional and racial relations.

North-South Accord.

For who that has known the tension which has followed the decision of the Supreme Court would have dared to hope that the Northern and the Southern Democrats could find common ground, could find it—all things considered—with no rancor, so calmly, with such an overwhelming determination on all sides to be tolerant and accommodating.

The words of the platform are an unequivocal declaration in favor of using persuasion to bring about compliance. In so far as the words chosen to spy this are somewhat muted, are not emphatic and defiant, are couched in the language of understatement, it is because the Democratic leaders — Gov. Stevenson himself and Mrs. Roosevelt, who is the keeper of the party's conscience on this issue—were wise enough not to force the hands of the Southern leaders.

There are great masses of the Southern people who are not persuaded, and if they are to be persuaded, it will have to be by people who live in the South and know its problems.

No Cheap Words Here.

For those who believe that desegregation must be ended, but that it can be ended only by consent, and never by force, there is nothing weak in the civil rights plank.

It is, indeed, a courageous act of accommodation on the part of the political leaders of the South, and one which does them great honor.

Words, political words at a convention, are cheap. But this was an act which, because it means so much to the internal peace of the nation, has given the Democrats a big claim on the confidence of the voters.

It has given them the right to say that they have shown themselves competent to deal responsibly with as difficult a problem as exists within the borders of the United States.

'KISMET' WILL OPEN LONG PARK OPERA RUN

Two-Week Engagement for Final Production—First Time Here.

"Kismet," the final Municipal Opera production of the year, will open a two-week engagement tonight at 8:30 o'clock in Forest Park. It will mark the first presentation here of the hit play, which ran for 17 months on Broadway.

The setting for "Kismet" is fourteen century Baghdad, with appropriate and colorful costumes and Oriental dances much in evidence.

The story tells of Hajj, beggar-poet and fortune teller and his beautiful daughter, Marsinah, who falls in love with the Caliph of Baghdad. Involved in the inrtigue are the evil Wazir of Police and his favorite wife, Lalume.

Best known songs from the play include the popular, "Stranger in Paradise," "Baubles, Bangles and Beads," and "This Is My Beloved."

The music for "Kismet" has been adapted from themes by Alexander Borodin by Robert Wright and George Forrest, who also wrote the lyrics. "Kismet" is the musical version of the Edward Knoblock play which starred Otis Skinner in 1911. Charles Lederer and Luther Davis co-authored the book.

Norwood Smith as Hajj, Margot Moser as Marsinah and Jacqueline James as Lalume head the company, one of the largest casts of principals in Municipal Opera history.

Smith and Miss James made their Municipal Opera debuts here last year in the production of "Guys and Dolls." Miss Moser, who played Marsinah in the touring production of "Kismet," will make her first appearance here.

Other leading members of the cast will be William Olvis, as the Caliph; Henry Calvin, as the Wazir of Police; Joseph Cusanelli, as Omar; Roy Urhausen, as the Second Policeman; Harry Weber, as the Hassan Ben, and Robert Cosden as the Chief Policeman.

Featured dancers are Ethel Martin, Rosemerry Fuhrmann, George Martin and Philip Cook.

The production of "Kismet" continues a new policy by the Municipal Opera in presenting recent Broadway successes as its closing, 14-night attraction.

106-YEAR-OLD BUILDING TO BE RAZED FOR HIGHWAY

A 106-year-old building at 1011 Benton street, which was the home of the first physician in north St. Louis, is among a group of structures to be razed for extension of the Mark Twain Expressway, Dr. William G. Swekosky(dentist whose hobby is the study of old St. Louis buildings, said today.

The two-story brick house was built by Dr. Alfred Heacock, who later was a member of the Board of Aldermen and the Board of Health, Dr. Swekosky said. Dr. Heacock first had offices at Broadway and North Market street in what was then a sparsely settled area of truck farms; later he established offices in a building next to his home, Dr. Swekosky said.

The house was sold by Dr. Heacock and his wife in 1888 when he retired. The building, now empty, was purchased last October by the Missouri State Highway Commission, Dr. Swekosky said.

ST. LOUISAN MISSES ON BIG QUIZ QUESTION

But So Does His Oppenent —Theodore Nadler Gets Another Chance.

Theodore Nadler, 1461A Clara avenue, missed the giant jackpot question on the "$64,000 Challenge" television program last night, but so did his opponent, William Egan of Hartford, Conn.

Nadler, who challenged Egan and his brother, James, in the "any and all" category, was unable to answer all parts of a complicated question on the 1947 World Series between the Dodgers and the Yankees.

Both Egan and Nadler answered that Dodger Cookie Lavagette's pinch double spoiled a no-hitter in the ninth inning of the fourth game, but failed to go on. Both will return next week in another try for $64,000. In case Egan and Nadler, a $70-a-week clerk, fail, they will split $32,000.

SPECIAL TOWER BEING BUILT FOR ZOO TELECAST

Work was being completed today on a special 60-foot television microwave tower at the St. Louis Zoo. It will be used next Saturday to beam a "kid's spectacular" television program to the Southwestern Bell Telephone building downtown for feeding to a nationwide TV network.

The hour and a half program, which will be originated by Post-Dispatch Station KSD-TV for the American Broadcasting Company's 75-station network, will include performances of the zoo's elephant, lion and chimpanzee shows. The telecast will start at 10 a.m.

Largest operation of its kind ever attempted here, the remote telecast involves setting up a complete studio in a large truck trailer on the zoo grounds. Eight cameras and almost a mile of camera cable will be in use, along with a technical staff of 32 men. One camera will be in a truck that will tour the zoo.

TO DEBATE DROPPING LATIN

LONDON, Ont., Aug. 20 (AP)—Whether to continue use of Latin or change to vernacular languages in some sections will be one of the main topics of the seventeenth Roman Catholic North American Liturgical conference opening here today.

Use of national languages in the mass recently was authorized by Pope Pius XII. Approximately 3500 Catholic laymen and clergymen are expected to attend the four-day conference, the first ever held in Canada.

20 NEW POLIO CASES IN CITY AND COUNTY

Total for Year So Far Is 75 — 2 Recent Deaths.

Twenty new cases of infantile paralysis and the second death from polio here this year were reported today by the St. Louis-St. Louis county chapter of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis.

Polio cases so far this year total 75 as compared to 39 at this time last year. The total for 1955 was 80.

The second polio victim reported this year was Mrs. William Baker, 30 years old, 520 Atalanta avenue, Webster Groves, who died Aug. 10 at St. John's Hospital, the polio foundation reported. Mrs. Baker had not been inoculated with Salk vaccine, the foundation stated.

Last year there were no deaths from polio reported in the city or county.

Of the 20 recent cases, only two had received the Salk vaccine. Those stricken ranged in age from seven months to 30 years. Six were residents of the county and 14 of the city. Paralytic cases reported totaled nine.

LOUIS MADELIN DIES, WAS FRENCH HISTORICAL WRITER

PARIS, Aug. 20 (AP)—Louis Madelin, French Historian died Saturday. He was 85 years old.

Madelin served as a sergeant and later as a staff officer in the French army in World War I. He wrote a number of books about the conflict including "The Victory of the Marne," "The Conflict of Flanders," "Verdun" and "The Battle of France."

His greatest work was a 16-volume "History of the Consulate and Empire" which he started in 1937. He was elected a member of the French Academy in 1927.

INNOCENT'S BEATIFICATION DATE MOVED UP TO OCT. 7

VATICAN CITY, Aug. 20 (AP)—L'Osservatore Romano, the Vatican newspaper, said today Pope Pius XII has set Oct. 7 as the date for the ceremony of beatification of Pope Innocent XI. The original date was Oct. 21.

There has been speculation that Pope Pius would call a consistory of the College of Cardinals to add solemnity to the beatification rites—a step in the process of elevation to sainthood.

The consistory could also nominate new cardinals. There have been nine deaths in the 70-member college of cardinals since it was brought up to full strength in 1953.

Carpenter Dickson's Young Arm Gives Cards Even Break With Cubs

Murry Has 3 Hits, One More Than He Yields

By Bob Broeg

If you'd have your son become famous as a baseball pitcher, mother, don't let him talk you out of those odd jobs around the house. No less an authority than Murry Dickson, who'll be 40 years old tomorrow, is certain carpentry has aided and prolonged his career.

Dickson, the wizened wizard of the Cardinals, is an amateur magician and at least a semi-pro with a rod in his hand or a gun under his arm, but he's definitely a professional wielding a hammer or saw as well as when fluttering plateward a knuckleball that dips and darts.

The fact is, the ancient moundsman of the Redbirds holds a card in the carpenter's union, Leavenworth (Kan.) branch, where he helps his brothers in winter-time construction work when not improving his own place or following the enchanting whistle of the bobwhite.

Arm Never Really Sore.

"Sure," he said, flexing his right arm near 9 o'clock last night at Busch Stadium, long after he had pitched a two-hit 6-0 victory over the Chicago Cubs, "carpentry has helped my pitching. I credit it, the constant exercise it gives my right arm, for the fact I've never really had a sore arm."

Bobby Morgan, standing close by after the rain-delayed doubleheader in which the Cardinals had fallen victim to another knuckleball pitcher, southpaw Jim Davis, 3 to 1, chuckled and imitated a fisherman casting.

"C'mon, you can't kid me," said the Oklahoman to the transplanted Missourian, "you keep that arm in shape fishing and hunting, not working."

Dickson grinned. "The outdoors activity helps, too," he conceded good-naturedly, "but, no foolin', I think my arm is so young because it's always well-conditioned."

Trainer Bob Bauman of the Cardinals is convinced the high rate of arm trouble among pitchers is due to (1) the fact that pitching is actually an unnatural motion and (2) that many—even most—hurlers discontinue the rotary shoulder exercise during the winter months, leading to complications when they resume the peculiar over-the-head stretching of their arm in the spring.

Dickson, though, by nature of his off-season craft, keeps his arm muscles supple, probably accounting for his ability to shrug off the effects of an uncommonly long rain-caused delay to pitch a masterpiece as he did yesterday.

Many a teen-age pitcher's arm would have tightened and stiffened after he had warmed up, taken the mound and then been forced to wait two hours and 16 minutes before pitching again. But the 40-year-old Dickson breezed to his tenth victory and third shutout by walking only one batter and striking out nine on the damp, chilly day.

Handy With a Bat, Too.

The wizened wizard was so wonderful he actually collected more hits than he allowed, getting two singles and a triple while permitting the Cubs only Monte Irvin's scratch safety off Ken Boyer's glove in the sixth inning and Hobie Landrith's line drive hit to left-center in the eighth.

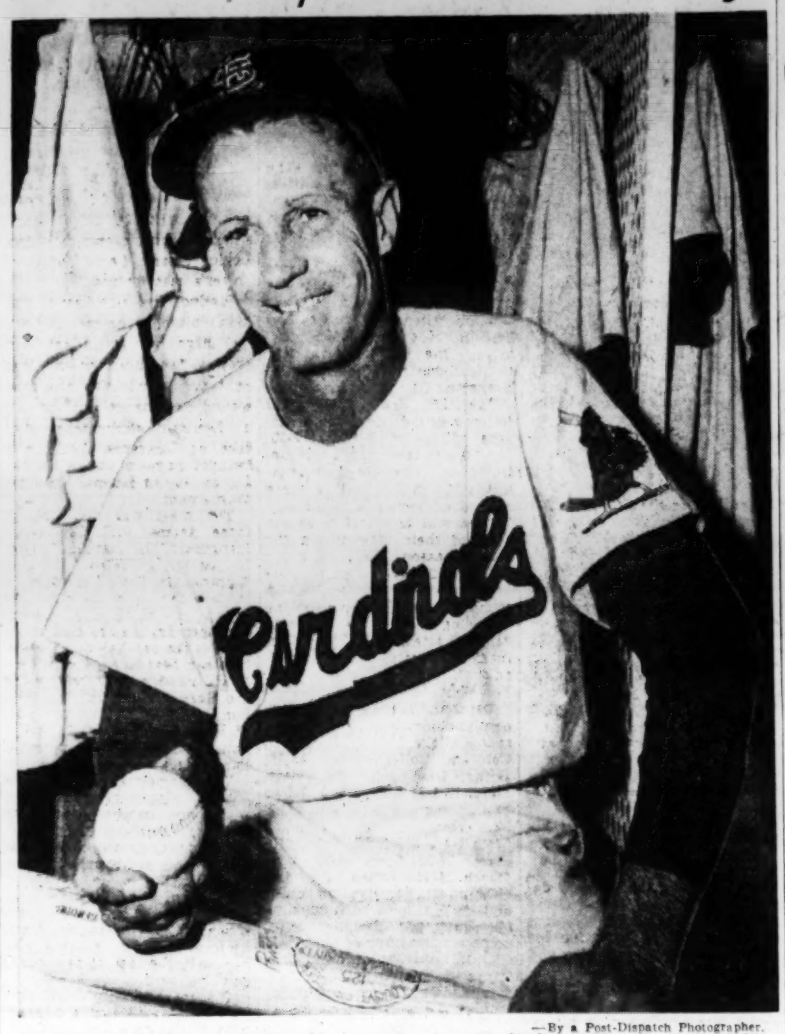
Unfortunately, the Cardinals, after snapping out of a batting slump with 14 hits that included Stan Musial's twenty-first homer, fell back into their offensive inertia as they once again were bamboozled by the gipsy-doodle of Davis.

The Redbirds collected seven hits, but their first run off Davis in 16⅔ innings was pinch-hitter Rip Repulski's homer in the sixth, and it proved to be their only tally, too.

Chicago, meanwhile, gaining a doubleheader split although managing only six hits in the twin bill, made the most of four nightcap blows off three St. Louis pitchers. The trouble was that Vinegar Bend Mizell gave up three walks as well as a double to Pete Whisenant and an infield hit to Harry Chiti for two runs in the fourth. And McDaniel yielded an eighth-inning pass that combined with a stolen base and single by Irvin to produce a third marker for the Cubs in the eighth.

Davis finally needed help from Turk Lown to stop the Cardinals in the ninth, but, as Musial acknowledged, the way the Redbirds were puzzled by the only National League southpaw knuckler they see, carpenter Dickson of the resilient right arm would have needed a twin to have enabled the home club to take two yesterday.

Marvelous Murry Grows Better With Age



—By a Post-Dispatch Photographer.

MURRY DICKSON, who will be 40 years old tomorrow, fondly studies the tools of his trade, the last ball used in his two-hit victory over the Chicago Cubs in the first game of the Sunday doubleheader, and the bat with which he smashed three base hits. This was Dickson's third shutout of the season and his tenth victory. The Cardinals won for Dickson 6-0, but lost the second game, 3-1.

Saxton and Basilio Sign

SYRACUSE, N.Y., Aug. 20 (AP)—Challenger Carmen Basilio and welterweight champion Johnny Saxton today signed official contracts for a Sept. 12 title fight here. The atmosphere was grim, with none of the horseplay that frequently surrounds these events.

The contract provides for a return bout within about 90 days if Saxton should lose the title he won from Basilio in Chicago March 14.

Basilio predicted a victory, possibly a knockout. He said:

"I'm gonna kick him out of the ring. I'll correct the mistakes I made the last time."

Saxton was more cautious. He didn't want to make any outright prediction but finally conceded, "I expect to fend my title successfully."

Saxton added:

Pinch-Runner on Bench, Cooper Thrown Out at Plate in Rally

A managerial oversight appeared today to have been more responsible than faulty baseline coaching for the Cardinals' failure to take advantage of their best scoring opportunity in the second game of yesterday's doubleheader at Busch Stadium.

With the Redbirds trailing in the eighth, 3 to 1, 41-year-old Walker Cooper wheedled an inning-opening walk off Jim Davis. As on more than one occasion before in the late innings of close games, the pressbox wondered why there was no pinch-runner for the bulky slow-moving veteran catcher.

Bobby Del Greco followed with a double to right-center and when the ball rolled between the outfielders to the wall, a run seemed assured. Coach Johnny Hopp waved his roommate confidently home, hoping a mishandled throw might permit Del Greco to reach third, he explained afterward.

Between third and home, however, big Coop's banged-up knees failed him and he lost ground rapidly to the Chicago relay. He slid hard, ripping his left thigh and said he didn't feel the catcher's tag, but he was declared out.

The surprising putout, on a play on which a younger Cooper or just about any other current Cardinal would have scored easily, took the heart out of an inning in which there also was a base on balls, but, sadly, no runs.

Dodgers Here Tomorrow.

The Cardinals' pitchers in night games with pennant-contending Brooklyn tomorrow and Wednesday probably will be Herm Wehmeier, the Redbirds' hottest pitcher, and Tom Poholsky, who also has pitched well recently.

Jocko Conlan, senior umpire of the crew, outsmarted himself and, as a result, forced the men in blue, the players and a 13,911 crowd to stick around until 8:40 for two well-played games that, the times of 2 hours and 12 minutes and 2:18 would indicate, actually were contested faster than ordinary nowadays.

Two weeks ago at Brooklyn the same umpires permitted the Cards and Dodgers to begin a doubleheader in a light rain, but this time they refused. Consequently, with Bill Stocksick's weary groundskeepers removing and putting on the wet tarpaulin three times, there was a 2-hour and 16-minute delay.

The twin bill didn't begin until 3:46, then began in a drizzle and finished in one. And rain fell frequently in between, too.

Cardinals' Squeeze Fails.

Murry Dickson, faking a bunt, popped a run-scoring single to left off young bonus righthander Don Kaiser in the second inning of the opener. . . . A squeeze play failed that inning with Don Blasingame batting and Ray Katt on third, so four hits and two walks produced only two runs. . . . The lights were turned on at 4:45, the beginning of the fourth inning.

Blasingame turned in a bare-handed play on Dee Fondy's drag bunt in the fourth. The Cubs didn't have a base-runner until the sixth when Monte Irvin hit a soft grounder off Ken Boyer's glove as the third baseman ranged far to his left. . . . Official Scorer Ellis Veech gamely called the hit a hit, though his heart was a little heavy. In 20-plus seasons he's never seen a National League no-hitter here. Hobie Landrith's bit to left-center in the ninth removed all doubt, if there really was any. . . . The Pershing School drum and bugle corps performed between games at the normal supper hour.—B.B.

Faurot Likes Prospects of Big Grid Year

Don Faurot is in good preseason form, dropping cautious words about the hopes for his University of Missouri football team this fall. Faurot was in St. Louis over the weekend attending a dinner function that featured beef and rah-rah for a schedule of football games to be broadcast over a local station. It will feature Missouri and Illinois games.

Mizzou has been voted the Big Seven team most likely to go to the Orange Bowl, meaning it has been voted to finish second to the perennial champion, Oklahoma.

Asked how he felt about having a bowl team in August, Faurot grinned and said, "I'm happy to plead guilty to the evidence, even if it doesn't make the poll objective a fact. We've got bigger backs, and more experience, and I think we're going to have a better team. Now, I didn't say we're gonna win all the games."

The project that brought Faurot here was announcement of a 10-game program to be broadcast over KMOX, with Harry Caray and former Illini star Paul Douglas at the microphone.

The schedule of games to be broadcast is as follows: Sept. 29, Illinois-California, at Champaign; Oct. 6, Missouri-S.M.U., at Columbia; 13, Illinois-Ohio State at Champaign; 20, Illinois-Minnesota at Minneapolis; 27, Illinois-Michigan State at Champaign; Nov. 3, Missouri-Nebraska at Lincoln; 10, Illinois-Michigan at Ann Arbor; 17, Missouri-Oklahoma at Norman; 24, Illinois-Northwestern at Evanston; Dec. 1, Missouri-Kansas at Columbia.

Nashua Has Colic Again, Is Out of Handicap

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N.Y., Aug. 20 (UP) — Nashua, the world's leading money-winning thoroughbred, suffered another attack of colic this morning, forcing his withdrawal from Saturday's $50,000 added Saratoga Handicap.

Trainer Jim Fitzsimmons said, however, he hoped to get Nashua back in training for the Woodward Stakes and the Jockey Club Gold Cup at Belmont Park later in the fall. The veterinary who treated Nashua said the colt has passed the worst of the attack.

It was the same type stomach-ache which forced Nashua out of the Atlantic City Handicap Aug. 11. He apparently had recovered completely from that attack and in his latest two workouts performed brilliantly.

It was the fourth time Nashua has suffered from colic, the first as a two-year-old following his victory in the Futurity Stakes at Belmont Park. It forced the colt to miss the Garden State Stakes, the world's richest horse race.

Two Shooters Named to U.S. Olympic Team

CAMP PERRY, O., Aug. 20 (UP)—Arthur C. Jackson, Silver Spring, Md., and Army Lt. Verle Wright Jr., Fort Wayne, Ind., yesterday were named to represent the United States on the Olympic 50-meter small bore rifle team at the Olympic games at Australia this fall.

In three days of firing over the grueling course here at the national open pistol and rifle matches, Jackson averaged 1154 out of a possible 1200 points daily for a total of 3454 to win the first team berth. Six hours were required to fire the course in which 120 bullets were fired from a 50-meter distance at a bullseye the size of a dime.

Army Lt. Daniel B. Puckel, Edgewood, Md., who led at the end of the semifinals, placed third with a total of 3441 and was named alternate to the team.

St. Louis Girls Place In Swimming Contest

Ardeth Hartung was second in the 100-meter butterfly; second in the 200-meter individual medley; third in the 100-meter freestyle in the 15-16 year-old-class.

Alice Ogle was second in the 200-meter breaststroke; second in the 100-meter backstroke and third in the 100-meter butterfly in the 15-16 year-old-class.

Janet Ackerman was second in the 100-meter breaststroke; fourth in the 200-meter individual medley and fourth in the 100-meter backstroke in the 13-14 year-old-class.

Dale Long Honored.

NEW YORK, Aug. 20 (UP)—First Baseman Dale Long of the Pittsburgh Pirates was honored by fans from his hometown of North Adams, Mass., between games of a doubleheader with the New York Giants yesterday. Among the gifts Long received were a clock, a camera and a radio.

Now Tebbetts Likes Adcock; Denies He Ordered 'Bean' Ball

CINCINNATI, Aug. 20 (UP)—Cincinnati Manager Birdie Tebbetts said today that Braves' first baseman Joe Adcock "went way up in my estimation" because "he got mad at me and showed me he was ready to fight."

"Adcock is a great ball player," Tebbetts said, "and if he didn't get mad at me I certainly wouldn't have thought much of him."

Tebbetts referred to a near fight between himself and Adcock after they exchange hot words near Crosley Field stands after the Redlegs defeated the Braves, 13-4, Saturday night.

Angered over the riding he had taken from the Cincinnati bench, the husky six-foot-four Adcock shouted something at Tebbetts as the players were heading for their clubhouses. Milwaukee Manager Fred Haney held Adcock back as he charged toward Tebbetts.

"I'm not looking for any trouble," Tebbetts said today, "but I'm not going to run away from it either. One thing I'd like to get straight though. I never told Jeffcoat (Cincinnati pitcher) to stick one in Adcock's ear. I have never said a thing like that since I've been managing."

Tebbetts last season tangled with Harry (The Hat) Walker, who was then manager of the Cardinals after they had exchanged hot words. That battle was a draw.

District Tennis Finals Reset for This Afternoon

Finals in three divisions of the St. Louis District Tennis tournament were reset for today at the Triple A courts in Forest Park when rain prevented Sunday action.

Lois Weinstein and Jean Gelner, the top-seeded players, will meet for the women's singles title at 4 o'clock. The men's final between top-rated Al Holtmann, seeking a second straight championship, and fourth-seeded Bob Ziervogel is set for 5 o'clock.

The mixed doubles final also has been scheduled at 5 by Tournament Chairman Poge Lewis. It will pit Fred Varner and Mrs. Josephine Marschel against Leigh Strassner and Mrs. Jean Zacny. Miss Weinstein and Carole Boshard already have captured the women's doubles laurels.

One men's semi-final doubles match between the team of Holtmann-Ziervogel and Wayne C. Smith and Don Dippold is slated for 6:30 today. It is hardly likely that the final in this division can be completed. Bill Schock and Strassner already have reached the title round.

Khoury Playoff Tonight.

St. Ann and Jennings Merchants meet in Khoury Class C senior baseball playoff tonight at 8:30 at Fairground Park.

Chester Nelsen Tops Qualifying In Bike Race

The rain and slippery pavement didn't stop Chester Nelsen Jr. yesterday. The St. Louis Cycling Club representative qualified for the final Olympic trials by winning the 100-mile race in 4 hours, 23 minutes and 53 seconds.

With the start at Jennings road and Riverview boulevard delayed from 6 to 6:40 a.m. because of poor visibility, the race drew only two other contestants, both of whom also qualified for the Olympic try-outs at San Jose, Calif., Sept. 14-17.

Nelsen, a member of the United States Olympic team in 1948, averaged 22.8 miles for the 100 miles—a record pace for this area and more than seven minutes faster than Bill Lange's time two weeks ago.

Milford Courtwright of Normandy Cycle Club finished second in 4:37. Henry Meyer of Kansas City was forced out after 56 miles because of mechanical trouble.

Putter Turned Magic Wand Enables Fay Crocker to Win at Norwood

By Robert Morrison

Fay Crocker, one of the career girls of women's golf, marked down a red-letter day in her fairway diary.

The woman from Montevideo, Urugay, who came to this country a few years ago to see how good she was, found she was better than she ever had been in her life.

Waving a magic wand, which sometimes is called a putter, she strode around Norwood Hills Country Club's west course yesterday in 68 blows for 288 and first money in the $5000 Norwood Hills Women's Open tournament.

"This is my red-letter day," said Fay, who at 36 has had a long background in amateur play in South America and is in her third season of professional competition in this country.

"It's the first time in my life I ever broke 200," said Fay, after she missed by only a stroke of tying the Ladies' P.G.A. 72-hole record in the rain-dampened final round.

She had a good shot at the record but finished with a pair of bogies in a round that started with two brilliant birdies, continued with four birdies in the first five holes and showed a 31 for the first nine, four under men's par.

At Best Under Pressure.

It was brilliant pressure golf because Miss Crocker, whose first and second round leading position was overcome by Joyce Ziske, had to battle Miss Ziske all the way to the wire.

Joyce, faced with a powerful start by Miss Crocker, hung on gamely, but ended with 73 for 291, three strokes back in second place.

As late as the sixty-fifth hole (No. 11 of the final round), the youthful Miss Ziske was only a stroke behind Miss Crocker who had holed out brilliant putts and knocked No. 5 irons stiff on the first and second holes.

But on the twelfth hole Miss Crocker holed out another long putt, a 25-footer trickling into the cup that still held the flagstick. She regained a two stroke edge on Miss Ziske there, added another stroke to the margin at the par-five fourteenth where she outplayed Joyce through the fairway, and maintained the lead to the finish.

The victory moved the South American from seventh into fifth money position for the year with a total of $8155. Her first prize was $880. She previously had won once this year on the tour, at Miami Beach. Thus she is moving nearer her accomplishments of 1955 when she won three, including the Women's National Open.

Champion Finishes Third.

Miss Ziske, popular favorite at Norwood where she spent two weeks this spring teaching women members, moved to fourth money position behind Mrs. Marlene Bauer Hagge, Louise Suggs, and Patty Berg.

Miss Suggs, winner of the tournament last year, was in a contending position going into the last day. She finished with 76 for 295 and third place while the record-seeking money winner, Mrs. Marlene Bauer Hagge, closed with her best round (72) for 296 and fourth.

This put Marlene at a season money total of $17,408, so she'll be looking for her seventh victory at the next stop on the tour. Denver is the next tournament for the women, this week.

Despite the intermittent rain and unfavorable weather Sunday, some 1000 spectators turned out for the final round. . . . Attendance for the four days of competition was quite low and it appeared that the total was no more than 3500 for the four days, counting 1000 on each of the last two days.

Despite the lack of attendance, tournament officials were not worried about financial loss . . . Dave Burdeau of Norwood said that the event won't lost much money, and could make a little. . . . "It's a matter of a couple hundred dollars either way," he said. . . . The budget for the tournament is $8000, so apparently there were many advance tickets (at $1.50 each that were not used.

Norwood, Burdeau said, probably will want to sponsor the women's show again next season, but he'll have to wait to get the club directors decision on that. . . . The Eastern Missouri P.G.A. which sponsored the first women's event here in 1954, would like to hold it again. . . . But the Ladies' P.G.A. will give Norwood first crack at it, tour director Bob Renner said. . . .

Norwood probably would be given six months to decide whether it wanted to sponsor the tournament again. . . . If it takes that long, the women's pro organization may find the Eastern Missouri P.G.A. not interested, an official indicated.

Both local organizations are interested because it's a way of promoting golf. . . . Norwood's Burdeau pointed out that Miss Ziske's visit as a teaching pro here this spring created added golf interest. . . . The tournament does the same thing, so if a little money is lost, it's a good investment for a country club that wants to keep enthusiasm up. . . . This is Norwood's second year as host. . . . Louise Suggs' winning score last year was 289.

Hippenstiel Is Easy Victor in Parks Net Play

CINCINNATI, O., Aug. 20 (UP)—Top-seeded Clyde Hippenstiel, San Bernadino, Calif., defending champion, easily defeated Paul Sullivan, Pittsburgh, Pa., yesterday 6-1, 4-6, 6-2, 6-0, in the abbreviated opening of the thirtieth annual National Public Parks tennis championships here.

Only four of the scheduled 14 men's singles matches were played when rain called a halt to proceedings.

Two Chicago players, Russ Elderkin and Harry Lasser, won by default over Roger Otten, Bellevue, Ky., and Ralph Haverfield, Columbus, Ohio, respectively.

Other results saw fourth-seeded William Parks, Los Angeles, Calif., defeat James O'Connor, Pittsburgh, 6-1, 6-0, 6-0; Richard Potter, Detroit, Mich., defeat Robert Lewis, Cincinnati, 6-0, 6-0, 6-1; and Leslie Scott, Denver, Colo., defeat Julian Cohen, Cincinnati, 0-6, 6-4, 8-6, 6-1.

San Francisco Eleven Gains 28-17 Victory Over Pro Grid Champs

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 20 (UP)—Frankie Albert, former San Francisco '49er quarterback, was back in pro football Sunday and pretty happy about it.

Making his coaching debut, Albert, who used to drive opposing linemen dizzy with his hidden ball tricks pulled the oft-injured Hugh McElhenny off the bench Saturday and the Forty-Niners swept to a 28-17 victory over the National Football League defending champion Cleveland Browns.

In other action, the Chicago Bears, sparked by the play of rookie halfback Perry Jeter, defeated the Chicago Cardinals 31-7 and the Green Bay Packers came from behind to overcome the Philadelphia Eagles, 27-6.

McElhenny, the injury-plagued halfback who is a prime cog in the Frisco offense, sped 80 yards for a touchdown to give the '49ers a 7-3 second quarter lead. Lou Groza had opened the scoring for the Browns with a field goal. Albert's team was never headed.

Jeter, fresh from California Poly, scored one touchdown and ran wild as the Bears beat their crosstown rivals who kept them from winning the division title last year.

Valley Conference Set to Take in Cincinnati and North Texas State

By Jack Rice

The major notions developed among Missouri Valley Conference football coaches during their annual meeting here are that the league will take in two new members next week, and that the world will remain generally oblivious of Valley football this fall. They didn't take kindly to the proposed removal of the conference commissioner's office from St. Louis to Kansas City, either.

As a matter of formal purpose, the coaches were here over the weekend to discuss rules changes with representatives of officials who will work Valley games. Commissioner Artie Ellers presided. The mechanics of all this were duly observed, and then the gossip got good.

The anticipated new member schools are Cincinnati and North Texas State. Both were identified as "comers," meaning they have found that if a school talks to enough good athletes, some will listen. North Texas State's existence is news locally, and the Blue Book of College Athletics doesn't carry a line on it, either.

No Stranger to Almanac.

North Texas State is no stranger to the World Almanac—founded 1890, at Denton, Tex., enrollment 5743—and to the southern members of the Valley Conference, though. It would be one more short-haul league opponent for Houston, Oklahoma A. and M. and Wichita in the wide-spread conference.

Both Cincinnati and North Texas State were said to be football-ambitious. Locally, that is negative. It means only that St. Louis University may find itself in a nine-to-one minority instead of a mere seven-to-one as the only Valley member competing in only one major sport, basketball.

It was mentioned that some Billiken fans have preferred withdrawal and of competition as an independent. These people talk hungrily of an at-large berth in the N.C.A.A. tournament, assuming it could be the Billikens' every year without having to sweat out a conference title and the Oklahoma Aggies. It impresses others as woeful underestimation of the importance of a conference affiliation.

'We Need a Promoter.'

A man much in favor of conferences in general and sorrowing about the lack of attention the Valley gets in football is Pete Tillman, Wichita coach. He believes the Valley is unjustly dumped in the shadow of the Big Seven, and that the Valley's best course is to arrange a tie-up with the 'Gator Bowl. He thinks it can be done, "What we need is a promoter, somebody to get this league the attention it deserves," said Tillman. Moving the conference office to Kansas City is a move in the wrong direction for that, the coaches agreed. The Big Seven is native to that area, but Missouri Valley Conference competition is just so much news from outer space to Kansas Cityans, the coaches feel.

The move was advertised as having the advantage of a central location, when first proposed. Missouri Valley Conference athletic directors and basketball coaches — the sport the league does get major recognition in — will meet at Kansas City next week.

Member schools are St. Louis, Houston, Oklahoma A. and M., Tulsa, Wichita, Drake, Bradley and Detroit. North Texas State and Cincinnati are if-coming, and Detroit is if-going. Detroit has announced that it is quitting the league, effective next June. Detroit had visions of fattening its schedule with Big Ten teams, but the Big Ten's proposed round-robin schedule would rule that out, said a coach, and now the Titans are ready to stay and count their blessings in the Valley.

Rosewall Routs Richardson in Newport Final

NEWPORT, R.I., Aug 20 (UP)—Little Ken Rosewall of Australia was satified with his revenge victory over Hamilton Richardson today as he headed for Chestnut Hill, Mass., and the national doubles championship.

The dark-haired Aussie won the singles in the Newport Casino tournament yesterday by whipping Richardson 6-0, 8-6, 6-2, Rosewall then teamed with compatriot Neale Fraser to defeat Mike Green and Myron Franks of U.C.L.A., 6-2, 9-7, 6-3, in the doubles final.

Richardson, the Louisiana-born Rhodes Scholar who now resides in Westfield, N.J., defeated Rosewall on his way to the Eastern grass court championship last week.

Both players appeared in top form as they battled their way to the final round, but then Richardson suffered a definite let-down. He was no match for Rosewall after the first set, allowing the young Aussie to run off with an easy victory.

Max Surkont Back; Giants Buy Cardinal Castoff From Seals

NEW YORK, Aug. 20 (UP)—The New York Giants today purchased Max Surkont, 34-year-old right-handed pitcher, from the San Francisco Seals of the Pacific Coast League in an effort to bolster their shorthanded staff.

To acquire Surkont, the Giants paid an undisclosed amount of cash and will deliver to the Seals "two acceptable players" next spring.

Surkont, who started the 1956 season with the Pittsburgh Pirates and later was traded to the St. Louis Cardinals before being sent down to San Francisco, will join the Giants tonight at Milwaukee. He had a 4-5 record with the Seals.

Kansas City Is Again Awarded Basket Finals

DENVER, Aug. 20 (AP)—The N.C.A.A. executive committee, at its mid-year meeting, announced sites and dates last night for collegiate sports tournaments for 1956-57.

Among the announcements was the decision to return the 1957 basketball finals to Kansas City, where the tourney was held in 1954 and 1955. Last spring, the tourney was held at Northwestern University at Evanston, Ill.

The 1957 finals, which will follow a round of regional tourneys, will be held March 22-23.

At-large teams will be selected in first-round tournaments March 11-13. Sites were not named because at-large candidates will be selected on the basis of their play during the coming season.

After first-round play, competition will start March 15-16 at four regional meets with the following host schools: Pennsylvania, Eastern Division; Kentucky, Midwest; Southern Methodist U., West; Oregon State, Far West.

Dates and sites for other tourneys include: Ice hockey, Colorado College March 14-16; golf, Colorado College, June 23-29; skiing, Utah and Utah State, March 29-31 (at Ogden snow basin); tennis, Utah June 17-22; cross-country, Michigan State Nov. 26; fencing, Detroit, March 22-23; Gymnastics, Navy, March 22-23; swimming, North Carolina U., March 28-30; track and field, Texas, June 14-15; and wrestling, Pittsburgh, March 29-30.

Jost Impressed With Canadians' Skill in Russian Soccer Match

Canada should produce a very respectable team for the World Cup soccer tournament next year, according to Nick Jost, manager of the Kutis club, who watched the Toronto all-stars battle Lokomotivs of Moscow, Russia, at Toronto, Saturday night.

"The Canadians played fine football," said Jost. "Only their over-eagerness in the Russians' penalty area kept them from scoring at least two more goals. As it was, they were barely beaten, 2-1." Canada is bracketed with Mexico and the United States in the World Cup preliminary round.

With Jost at the Toronto game were four of his Kutis players. They were surprised at the 19,924 attendance at the match which was played at Varsity Stadium. Rain fell until half an hour before game time.

The Lokomotivs, making a clean sweep of their five-game tour, swamped Montreal and Winnipeg opponents by 9-0 and 10-0 scores and downed Vancouver 5-2 and Calgary 6-4 before arriving in Toronto to clash with the top eleven Canada could muster.

Leroy Edwards, Stockhams' New-Found Pitching Star, Faces Kansas Team Tonight

By John J. Archibald
Of the Post-Dispatch Staff.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Aug. 20—A tall, loose-swinging boy whose pitching career dates back only to the start of the current Legion season, Leroy Edwards, could put the Stockhams in the driver's seat tonight.

Six-foot five-inch Leroy, who didn't pitch an inning for Central High last spring and had only a few brief appearances in Khoury ball for his total mound experience, will be the St. Louisans' hurler when they take on Lawrence, Kan., in a twilight game of the American Legion Junior baseball regional tournament.

The meet was narrowed to three teams yesterday when Mangum, Okla., handed Dysart, Ia., its second defeat, 15 to 0. Righthander Jim Carothers, a curve-baller, held the downcast Iowans to three hits. Dysart had been drubbed by Stockham, 11 to 1, the day before. If Stockham can beat Lawrence tonight, it will be able to sit back while the Kansans take on the Oklahoma club in the second part of the doubleheader. If Stockham loses to Kansas, it would have to play twice tonight.

The tournament will continue with a single game Tuesday night, and another Wednesday night, if necessary.

The development of Edwards as a pitcher has been a remarkable thing to see. He was a long-reaching first baseman for Central High, but his dad, Leroy Edwards Sr., a veteran Muny umpire, had been working with him with the idea of developing pitching skill.

Stockham Coach Al Grosch was anxious to find a dependable hurler to go with experienced Bob Miller, so he gave Edwards a chance. Early results weren't overwhelming. But Leroy showed a good curve and intense determination. Each time he went out, he looked a little better.

Since Stockham got into the playoffs and the competition has gotten progressively tougher, Edwards has managed to hold his own. He beat Overland's Thoman-Boothe team, 4-2, on six hits, although he needed help from Miller in the ninth.

Edwards then beat Jefferson City, 3 to 2, and El Dorado Springs, 5-3.

Having grown so rapidly in the past couple of years, Leroy may have more steam on his fast ball next Legion season, but right now he fools most of the batters most of the time with a variety of curves, plus the smart handling of Stockham's sometimes overlooked catcher, Jerry Nauert.

With Bob Miller's finger injury having turned out to be relatively slight, the St. Louisan's chances of advancing to the sectional tournament at Bloomington, Ill., this weekend would be bright if Lanky Edwards could turn back the husky Kansans tonight.

Ed Furgol Returns Home After Winning Milwaukee Open

Scores 265 for 72 Holes

MILWAUKEE, Aug. 20 (AP)—The professional golf caravan today headed for St. Paul Minn., the next stop on the circuit—without gritty Ed Furgol, winner of yesterday's $35,000 Milwaukee open golf tournament with a blue-chip final round of five-under-par 65.

The 39-year-old St. Louis pro, richer by $6000 and a new station wagon, after posting a 15-under-par 265 in the 72-hole medal tournament at Tripoli, said he had to get back to his teaching duties at the Westwood Country Club.

"I'm sorry I can't go to St. Paul for the Keller open," the lame-armed Furgol said after accepting his check and the keys to the station wagon. "But, I'd better get back to Westwood. I really can't say which tournament will be my next one."

Furgol, whose left arm is withered due to a childhood accident, was an eleventh-hour entry here. Tournament officials had to find a caddy for him. He never had played the tricky, wind-swept 6380 course.

After carding a course record of seven under par 63 on the first day, the former United States Open champion admitted he was playing hooky from his home club.

He Got the Action.

"I looked over my teaching chart Wednesday," he said, "and saw I only had two lessons scheduled. I figured it was a shame to miss the tournament so I decided to skip school. I'm a guy who likes action and I hope the folks at Westwood will understand."

Action he got.

Going into the final round, Furgol trailed 54-hole leader Jackie Burke, Master's and P.G.A. champion from Kiamesha Lake, N.Y., by two strokes—198 to 200.

Beefy Bill Casper Jr. of Chula Vista, Calif., also had a 200, and, tied at 203, were Gay Brewer Jr. of Cincinnati and Gene Littler of Singing Hills, Calif.

Furgol overcame Burke's edge on the front nine with a one-under-par 34 with the aid of a pair of birdies, and then collected four more birdies on the back nine to wrap up the title.

Littler Takes Second.

Burke, who like Furgol had a 63 on the first round, finished third with 270, one stroke behind the 26-year-old Littler. Burke took 72, Littler a fine 66. Casper took fourth-place money with 71 and 271. Brewer tied Abilene's Don January for fifth with 71 and 274.

The best amateur score was 285, carded by Rudy Boyd of LaPorte, Ind., who finished with 72 after three rounds of 71.

Perhaps the turning point for Furgol came on the seventh hole, a par four, 451-yard dog-leg to the left that normally plays to a par five. Furgol's second shot ricocheted off a spectator's foot on the fringe of the green and bounded toward the cup. It stopped 10 feet short, but Furgol canned it for a birdie three; Burke, whose second shot landed in a woman's coat sleeve, took a bogey five after dropping the ball with no penalty.

Furgol's $6000 winnings boosted him from seventeenth place on the P.G.A.'s earnings list to ninth with $16,853.

Yankees Send Terry Back to Denver Club

BALTIMORE, Aug. 19 (UP)—The New York Yankees announced today they have optioned rookie pitcher Ralph Terry to their Denver farm club in the American Association.

The 20-year-old right-hander was recalled from Denver two weeks ago during a Yankee pitching crisis and gained credit for a 4-3 victory in his debut against the Boston Red Sox on Aug. 6. He then suffered two straight losses to the Baltimore Orioles.

Billikens' Bobby Page Loses Three-Hitter

A St. Louis U. pitcher had tough luck but a former Missouri U. football star coasted to victory in Inter-City League baseball yesterday.

Little Bobby Page of the Billikens hurled a three-hitter for Granite City Sacred Heart, but lost to Venice-Madison, 3-1. Gene Campbell, ex-Mizzou athlete, scattered eight hits in a 12-2 victory for East St. Louis over Granite City Steel.

ED FURGOL, golf professional at Westwood Country Club here, happily waves the $6000 first prize check he received after winning the Miller Open at Milwaukee. In addition, Furgol received an automobile. He needed only 265 strokes to win the tourney, which made his prize money pay rate $22.60 per stroke.

Spahn and Lemon Keep Rolling Along, Near 200-Victory Mark

NEW YORK, Aug. 20 (AP)—Southpaw Warren Spahn, pitching for a pennant, and Righthander Bob Lemon, the ace of a first-rate pitching staff that hasn't been able to fire a second-place club, today are within reach of the select 200-victory club in major league ball.

Spahn, coming through in the clutch, pitched Milwaukee back into a two-game lead in the National League race as the Braves defeated Cincinnati, 3-1, yesterday. Lemon, who broke in as an infielder, used a five-hitter to get Cleveland started on a doubleheader sweep of the Kansas City Athletics, 5-2 and 2-1, and keep the Indians' meager flag hopes alive in the American League race.

It was the 197th major league victory for each of the 35-year-old veterans.

There are only two active 200-game winners in the business today—and Cleveland has 'em both. Bobby Feller, without a victory this season, has a 266 total, and Early Wynn, with 14 this year, has 215.

Spahn's 14th of Season.

Spahn's fourteenth victory of the year was the big one of the day, sending the Redlegs back to third place after they had the first two games of the important four-game series at Cincinnati. Brooklyn's Dodgers reclaimed the runner-up spot (by seven percentage points) with a 3-2 decision over Philadelphia.

The St. Louis Cardinals defeated the Chicago Cubs, 6-0, then lost 3-1, in a doubleheader. The New York Giants, socking six home runs, took two from Pittsburgh, 7-6 and 3-2.

Cleveland's sweep moved the Tribe to within 8½ games of first-place New York as the two clubs get set for a two-game series in Yankee Stadium starting tomorrow night. The Yankees were trimmed 3-2 at Baltimore. The Chicago White Sox moved into third place, splitting with the Detroit Tigers while Washington was taking two from Boston. Chicago won, 4-1, after an 11-inning 3-1 defeat; Boston slipped to fourth on 7-5 and 11-10 losses with the nightcap going 11 frames.

Hank Aaron's two-run homer in the eighth beat the Redlegs as Spahn kept eight hits—including Ted Kluszewski's thirty-first home run—fairly well-scattered. Tom Acker, aso giving up Ed Mathews's twenty-seventh home run, was the loser in relief of Joe Nuxhall. Danny O'Connell's line drive struck Uxhall's left knee and sidelined the southpaw starter in the first inning.

A two-run pinch double by Charlie Neal in the ninth inning broke a 1-1 duel between the Dodgers' Don Newcombe, who won his nineteenth, and the Phils' Curt Simmons, who had won seven in a row. Gil Hodges homered for the other Dodger run. It was his twenty-fifth.

Johnson Stops Yanks.

Connie Johnson set down the Yankees on five hits and struck out seven while blanking Mickey Mantle. The righthander also singled home the winning run in a three-run seventh against loser Johnny (16-7) Kucks.

Hec Lopez homered for a 2-1 lead against Lemon in the first game, but the Indians scored three in the fourth on five singles to beat Rookie Wally Burnette. Both Tribe runs were unearned in the nightcap and beat Art Ditmar. Mike Garcia won it with relief help for a 9-11 record.

Singles by Charley Maxwell and Al Kaline downed the White Sox in the opener as Frank Lary won his thirteenth. But Chicago bounced back to hand Billy Hoeft his eleventh defeat when the lefty wild-pitched two runs home in the first inning. Dick Donovan won the nightcap.

The Red Sox blew 5-0 and 9-5 leads in the nightcap. Roy Sievers's double broke it up—giving the Senators a sweep in the four-game series and a 13-4 record against Boston this season. Pete Ramos won his twelfth in relief. He's 6-0 against Boston. A five-run fifth inning won the opener for Chuck Stobbs as the Nats battered 16-game winner Tom Brewer. Homers by Milt Bolling and Dick Gernert were among the Red Sox's eight hits.

Arft Is Villain At Creve Coeur Old-Timer Day

Hank Arft, referred to as an old Brownie although he is only 34, spoiled old-timers' day at the Creve Coeur park yesterday by whacking two home runs for Ballwin, including a grand-slam in the fourth. The two four-baggers made things easier for Ballwin Righthander Elmer Koestner, who yielded only six hits in the 8-3 County League victory.

Jules Faron went the distance for Creve Coeur, which got all its runs in the fifth.

Olivette broke a 4-4 tie in the tenth to defeat Vigus, 5-4, in another American Division game. Percy Henderson starred in relief for Olivette; Jerry Beckmann and Len Klaus hurled for Vigus.

In the National Division, first-half champion Glencoe continued to find rough going, being swamped by Twin City, 14-4. Bill Simms hurled for the victors.

Rain prevented most of the other games. The C.Y.C. senior playoffs will be resumed Wednesday night at Fairground No. 1. The Muny senior eliminations also begin that night at Carondelet Park with Carondelet No. 1 opposing Schmersahls.

Two Pro Grid Stars Hurt in Auto Accidents

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 20 (AP)—Two stars of the Washington Redskins backfield, Quarterback Al Dorow and Halfback Vic Janowicz, were under treatment today for injuries suffered in separate weekend traffic accidents.

Both figured prominently in the Redskins 39-21 victory over the Los Angeles Rams in a National Football League exhibition game here last Friday night. Dorow went all the way as quarterback. Janowicz kicked a field goal and three conversion points.

Dorow, 26, complained of a back injury after the accident yesterday near San Bernardino in which his mother-in-law, Mrs. Bernardine Allison, about 43, of Ontario, Calif., was killed.

The quarterback was first taken to the San Bernardino county hospital, then was released to the care of a private physician.

Janowcz, also 28, suffered a severe concussion, cuts and bruises in an accident Saturday and may be lost to the team for a month, General Manager Dick McCann said. The halfback is in Hollywood Presbyterian Hospital. Janowicz was returning from a Redskins victory party early Saturday in a car driven by Miss Barbara Wagner, 21, student nurse, when it struck a utility pole, police reported. Miss Wagner suffered several broken ribs.

Dorow was riding in a car driven by his father-in-law, James W. Allison, 48, which collided with one driven by Fred M. Fischer, 68, Beaumont, Calif., the California Highway Patrol reported.

Mrs. Allison was thrown out and crushed between the car and a utility pole. Allison and his son, James Jr., 13, suffered minor injuries. Dorow's wife, Wanda, 19, suffered cuts and bruises.

Flaherty Off Critical List

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Aug. 20 (AP)—Pat Flaherty, winner of the 500-mile Indianapolis auto race Memorial day, remained in serious condition today following his crackup Saturday night. Flaherty, however, definitely is off the critical list, hospital authorities reported.

Flaherty was injured in a 100-mile race at Illinois State Fairgrounds when his auto spun around and was rammed by another racer.

STOCKS GIVE GROUND IN QUIET TRADING

Losses of 1 to 2 points were numerous, with chemical, steels and oils off a bit more than most other divisions.

The decline came amid reports that the Federal Government soon would take new moves to tighten the reins on credit.

There were 1131 issues traded, of which 216 rose and 703 dropped and 212 were unchanged. There were 21 new highs for the year and 31 new lows.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks went down $1.70 to $186.90 with the individuals off $2.70 the rails off $1.70 and utilities off 30 cents.

Chemicals were down a bit more than other groups, with Allied Chemical, Dow and du Pont losing around 2 points and Union Carbide around a point. Du Pont directors today declared the usual dividend of $1.50 a share on the common.

Royal Dutch and Gulf Oil firms with a stake in the Mediterranean, were off more than a point, as were Kaiser Aluminum, U.S. Steel, Bethlehem, Caterpillar, United Aircraft, U.S. Gypsum and Illinois Central.

NEW FINANCING

NEW YORK, Aug. 20 (AP)—In new financing, Virginia Electric & Power Co. plans to raise $20,000,000 of first mortgage bonds at competitive bidding Sept. 25. The utility said it would register the issue with the securities and exchange commission. Proceeds would be used to help finance the company's 1956 construction program, estimated to cost about $50,000,000.

Rochester Gas & Electric Corp. has placed 60,000 shares ($6,000,000) of $100 par preferred stock into registration with the SEC. First Boston Corp. heads a group of underwriters for the issue. SEC has authorized Columbia Gas System to buy additional common shares and installment notes of its subsidiaries as follows: Manufacturers Light & Heat Co., $2,500,000 of stock and $7,950,000 of notes; and Cumberland & Allegheny Gas Co., $250,000 for stock and $1,925,000 of notes.

NATION'S STEEL INDUSTRY will operate this week at 95.1 per cent of capacity, a rate calculated to produce 2,340,000 tons of ingots and steel for castings, the American Iron and Steel Institute said. This is the highest production rate since the July strike of 650,000 steelworkers. Last week the industry operated at 87.5 per cent of capacity and produced 2,154,000 tons. A month ago the rate was 17 per cent and production 419,000 tons. Comparable figures for a year ago were 90.6 per cent and 2,186,000 tons.

THERE WERE 5344 NEW freight cars delivered to the railroads in July compared with 5550 in June and 2192 in July, 1956, the American Railway Car Institute announced. This marked the fifth month in a row that deliveries have exceeded 5000, the Institute said. On August 1 there was a backlog of cars on order and undelivered amounting to 126,194 compared with 129,409 on July 1 and 42,888 on August 1, 1956.

HORACE HAVEMEYER JR., president of National Sugar Refining Co. announced a special stockholders meeting had been called for Sept. 5 to vote on an increase in authorized capital stock from present 600,000 shares to 1,000,000 shares. If approved, the company will offer stockholders 94,803 shares of additional common in the ratio of one share for each six held. Proceeds will be used for general corporate purposes, Havemeyer said, adding that Morgan Stanley & Co. would head a group of investment firms underwriting the offering.

PENNSYLVANIA RAILROAD'S net income for the steel-strike month of July dropped over $3,125,000 below earnings for the same month a year ago, the company said. With the drop in July earnings, the P.R.R.'s net income for the first seven months of the year declined more than $2,000,000 below net earnings for the corresponding period of 1955. Net income of $265,079 for July was a decrease of $3,321,039 from 1955 and $22,452,019 for the seven-month-period, a drop of $2,018,707.

SALES OF PRINT CLOTH and a few other constructions were scattered in the cotton textile market Monday. Millmen were encouraged by a further checking on cloth in forward delivery by converters, particularly in the print cloth division. This is the basis for hopes of a more active market towards the end of this month or early September.

NORFOLK SOUTHERN railway declared a common stock dividend of 5 per cent, payable Nov. 1 to holders of record Oct. 15. The company said this stock dividend replaces the cash dividends normally paid in the third and fourth quarters. The road, which paid 30 cnets in prior quarters, said it had decided to substitute a stock dividend for cash because it needed to conserve cash for capital improvements.

RYE PRICES ADVANCE; NEW SEASONAL PEAK

CHICAGO, Aug. 20 (AP)—All rye futures spurted to new seasonal highs while the rest of the grain market puttered around without getting anywhere on the Board of Trade today.

Advancing prices for rye were tied in with gains in that cereal at Winnipeg. The Canadian crop is expected to be much smaller this year, and production is also down in the United States.

Late in the day wheat firmed a bit, apparently helped by the strength in rye. New crop soybeans eased at times on excellent crop prospects. Other grains held around previous closing levels.

TALK OF NEW CURB ON U.S. INFLATION

Speculation on Another Hike in Discount Rate by Federal Reserve Bank.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20 (AP)—Prospects of brisk economic activity this fall, with no letup in borrowing, buying and price boosts, raised speculation today that the Federal Reserve Board soon may take another step to curb possible inflation.

Such a move would entail another increase in the Federal Reserve discount rate—the interest rate the reserve banks charge on money they lend to member banks for commercial and personal loans.

As usual, there was no comment or indication from the board itself whether another discount rate hike may be in the offing. However, another government source suggested "there are enough elements of inflationary nature on the horizon to point up the possibility, if not the likelihood, of another increase."

Among these elements this source cited the recent wage and price increases in the steel industry and the chance they may form a pattern for other rises.

Eisenhower Concerned.

President Eisenhower and other top Administration officials have expressed concern over possible inflationary aspects of the steel-labor wage settlement and its aftermath, a price increase averaging $8.50 per ton.

Another new factor is the start of the multi-billion-dollar highway building program, involving both immediate spending for construction and placement of huge future orders for steel and other construction materials. Employment, already at record levels, will be given another boost.

Five times in the last 16 months the Federal Reserve Board has approved hikes in the discount rate to restrain a resurgent demand by business and consumers for credit.

The first, from 1½ to 1¾ per cent, came in April 1955 when the current business boom was gathering force. Thrice more in 1955, as boom steam pressure rose, the banks increased their rates ¼ per cent at a time.

Last April the rate again went up, this time to 2¾ per cent in 10 of the 12 reserve districts, and to 3 per cent in the other two—Minneapolis and San Francisco. It was the first time in 23 years that the rate had reached 3 per cent.

Effect of an Increase.

Another increase would tighten further the conditions under which money is available to business and the public for expansion and credit purchasing. Both have been rising sharply since early 1955 when the nation came out of a 1953-54 dip in its economy.

At the moment corporations and business men are in the midst of big expansion programs estimated to reach perhaps 35 billion dollars this year. The construction industry is moving along at an annual rate of 44½ billions. Total production and employment have reached new peaks.

Consumer buying and retail store sales have risen to top levels and consumer credit has been expanding at a greater rate than personal income.

Personal income, after setting a record of 303 billions in 1955, has risen to an annual rate of about 325 billions this year. This, plus credit or installment buying, means consumers have and are spending more money, and prices have been rising.

THREATS OF WAR ARE IGNORED BY POLITICAL PARTIES

the plank, they could accuse the Democrats of every high crime and misdemeanor in the foreign policy field.

But the Republicans will campaign on peace and prosperity, conveniently ignoring the menace of war in the Middle East. The Suez crisis is at least a dark spot on the record and there have been those who predict that this blemish would impair Republican chances in November.

To one observer, however, it seems likely to have exactly the opposite effect. The carefully calculated appeal of a soldier statesman in the White House will be exploited to encourage the belief that with his experience and background President Eisenhower can lead the nation through the crisis and keep the peace. And if he fails in this endeavor, then who is better qualified to try to limit the conflict and protect the American interest? Something like this appeal — don't change horses in the middle of the stream—was used by Roosevelt in 1944.

The politics of irrelevant promise, the politics of voter bait recklessly held out, may be a luxury that Americans can still afford. But with America's world responsibility in the struggle with Communism, it must seem to sensible men that the time for such self-delusion had long since passed. For 16 years the political promises—who can forget both Wilkie and Roosevelt in '40 pledging to keep American boys out of foreign war? . . . have quickly been belied by the grim realities of the world in which we live.

Heading for Unscheduled Swim

British actress DIANA DORS heading for unscheduled dunking in swimming pool at party at her home in Hollywood yesterday. Also due for wet reception are her husband DENNIS HAMILTON (left) and HOWARD SHOUP.

Dripping wet and looking not at all happy, MISS DORS rests hand on partially submerged LOUIS SHURR as she is assisted from pool with push by SHOUP.

DIANA DORS'S PARTY WINDS UP IN BRAWL

BEVERLY HILLS, , Calif. Aug. 20 (UP)—Actress Diana Dors, England's blonde version of Marilyn Monroe, and her husband, Dennis Hamilton, engaged in a kicking, hitting attack last night on photographer Stewart Sawyer, whom they accused of pushing them and two others into a swimming pool at a party.

Witnesses said Hamilton knocked Sawyer to the ground and sat on him, beating his face while Miss Dors screamed and kicked at the United Press photographer.

Sawyer was carried from the side of the pool, unconscious and bleeding after guests pulled Hamilton away. Sawyer was reported to have suffered a broken nose and bruises on his face and ribs.

Sawyer later denied pushing the actress, Hamilton, agent Louis Shurr and wardrobe designer Howard Shoup into the pool.

"I was standing by the pool talking to Guy Madison when all of a sudden I was knocked down," Sawyer said." "When I opened my eyes, Hamilton was on top of me, hitting me in the face. Then, just before I blacked out I saw Miss Dors kicking me in the head. That was all."

Hamilton, a former professional fighter, said: "I haven't given this man (Sawyer) my calling card yet. This man hasn't been dealt with yet."

Miss Dors's physician said the actress suffered a bruised back and scratches on her arms in the fracas.

The party at the actress's home was given to celebrate the arrival of Raymond, the actress's personal beauty expert, to the United States from England. The 300-name guest list included such film personalities as George Gobel, Doris Day, Guy Madison, Paul Douglas and Jan Sterling.

No one, besides Hamilton, came forward after the attack to positively identify Sawyer as the person who supposedly pushed the four into the pool. Free-lance photographer E. E. Reshofsky told police he saw someone push the actress and her husband but he could not identify the person.

diverting public attention from their big circus. They even suspected that John Foster Dulles set the date of the London Suez conference on a Thursday for the purpose of blocking out publicity on the day the Democrats ballotted for President. They want to see now whether the White House calls the Republicans back from San Francisco.

Speaker Sam Rayburn, flying back to Washington from Chicago at the summons of President Eisenhower, got off his first gripe while still in the special Air Force plane.

"Those fellows around Ike," Rayburn said, "put him up to this. He seldom calls us in for consultation when we're in Washington, but now he calls us all the way back when we've just arrived in Chicago."

When the congressional leaders filed in to see Mr. Eisenhower, he shook hands with only one man, Senator Eugene Millikin of Colorado, who is retiring from the Senate this year because of health.

"I'd like to shake hands with all of you," the President said, "but you're in a hurry to get back to Chicago and I don't want to take your time. I'm sorry to have inconvenienced you."

At this point Sam Rayburn spoke up.

"Some of the reporters asked me when I came in how I felt about leaving the convention for this conference," said the Speaker. "If I had told them how I really felt, they wouldn't have been able to print it."

In the discussion which followed, Secretary Dulles did most of the talking. Afterward the Democrats filed out, drove to their airplane and flew back to Chicago, not greatly enlightened by anything they had heard.

DEWEY GETS ROLE OF BIG BACKER OF TAFTITE NIXON

promptly offered that help, going to Washington to confer with Nixon and Rogers, talking the problem over with Mr. Eisenhower, and then making a second journey to see Mr. Eisenhower and to take his place, formally and publicly, at the head of the Nixon procession by a statement issued after his meeting with the President.

It is a reasonable guess that Dewey also had something to do with the real clincher for Nixon. This was Massachusetts' Gov. Christian Herter's announcement that he would not only make Nixon's nominating speech, but would refuse to permit his own name to come before the convention. At first, at any rate, Herter's delay in taking this second and final step drew no frowns from the White House. Everyone seemed to be satisfied when Herter, after talking with the President's chief of staff, Sherman Adams, simply said he would make the Nixon nominating speech.

But after Dewey's appearance on the scene, disapproving noises, indicating that Herter had not gone far enough, began to emanate from the White House. Before long Herter took the final step, publicly saying he would not allow himself to be nominated. Altogether, if we ever have a Nixon administration, Dewey's influence is likely to be even greater than it is today.

PEACE RATES AS STRONGEST CLAIM OF G.O.P.

14 per cent express no opinion.

3. The Republicans have brought the highest level of prosperity in history to America.

About one independent in four, or 26 per cent, believes this is a strong argument, 54 per cent say the argument is weak and 20 per cent have no opinion.

Of the four widely used campaign arguments, this one turns up with the smallest number of independents saying it is a strong argument. Only 19 per cent say it is a strong argument, 62 per cent say it is a weak argument and 19 per cent have no opinion.

One Democratic voter in every three, 33 per cent, admits that the argument the Republicans have kept the country at peace is a strong one. The other three G.O.P. arguments are rated weak by an overwhelming majority of Democratic voters.

On the other hand, regular Republican voters see two of the four arguments as particularly effective this year — the argument that the Republican party got us out of Korea and has kept the country at peace and also the argument that the G.O.P. has brought the highest level of prosperity in history to America.

No Hot Weather in Next Few Days

A slight warming is the outlook for St. Louis tomorrow and Wednesday, after a low temperature this morning of 62, the coolest day since July 30. However, no more hot weather is in sight in the next few days, Weatherman Harry F. Wahlgren predicted today.

Temperatures tomorrow will range from the middle 50s to near 80 and about five degrees warmer Wednesday. There is a possibility of showers by Wednesday, the forecaster said.

A high reading of 99.8 degrees Saturday in the city made the day the warmest since Sept. 6, 1954. Maximum temperature yesterday was 77, recorded at 12:01 a.m. The mercury fell throughout the day.

Temperatures yesterday dropped throughout most of the country as a cold front swept down from Canada. The cool air mass extended from Texas through Louisiana northeastward into Virginia. Only in the desert southwest and the gulf states did the temperatures remain high.

Rain yesterday extended from the plains states eastward to the Atlantic coast. Heaviest in the country was 2.18 inches at San Antonio, Tex. Precipitation was general over Missouri with the largest amount 1.65 inches recorded at Perryville. There was .24 of an inch in downtown St. Louis, bringing total for the year to 24.58 as against a normal 25.15 inches.

U.S. Reports One Per Cent Drop In Government Spending for '55

Outlays for Federal, State and Local Expenditures Totaled 109½ Billion, or $664 Per Capita.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20 (AP) —Spending by federal, state and local governments dropped about 1 per cent in the 1955 bookkeeping year, the Commerce Department reported yesterday. Outlays totaled $109,500,000,000.

Figured on a per capita basis, the report showed spending amounted to $664 for every man, woman and child in the country in the 12 months ended June 30, 1955. Of this, $246 went for national defense and $418 for all other governmental functions.

The report said the decrease in spending, compared with the 1954 fiscal year, resulted primarily from a decline of six billion dollars in federal expenditures for national defense.

It said this more than offset some gain in federal non-defense spending and an increase of around three billion dollars in state and local government expenditures.

Defense Most Costly.

The biggest item of spending by all governments was the nearly 41 billion dollars in federal costs for national defense. This included foreign military aid, the atomic energy program and other activities related to the military.

The next largest spending item for governments at all levels was $12,700,000,000 for education, amounting to about $77 for each person. This was a gain of 13½ per cent over 1954.

Annual interest charges on general debt rose 2.1 per cent to a total of nearly seven billion for all governments. This was a per capita rate of $41. The bulk was nearly six billion for the federal debt.

Spending for highways amounted to $6,500,000 or $39 per person, the department said. Highway spending increased over 1954 by nearly 17 per cent.

The largest increase in spending in 1955 was 30.7 per cent for international assistance and foreign affairs by the Federal Government, the report showed.

Financed by Taxes.

The report said the bulk of public expenditures was financed by taxes which yielded a total of 81 billion for the three levels of government. This was 4 per cent less than the amount collected in fiscal 1954. The decline came about mainly through a 15 per cent drop in federal corporation income taxes. This drop was larger than a gain shown in state and local government taxes.

Other revenue to support government operations includes such things as gasoline taxes, cigarette and other excise taxes as well as general sales taxes. Property taxation was the major revenue source of local governments, while income taxes were the big factor in federal receipts.

The report said governmental revenue from all sources in fiscal 1955 amounted to $107,600,000,000, or about two billion less than total public expenditures.

FLOWERS FOR MRS. NIXON

CURTAIN GOES UP

Overhead view of proceedings in Cow Palace at San Francisco as Republican National Convention got under way today. Press area in foreground is only partly filled but elsewhere the big hall, which seats about 15,000, is jammed with delegates and alternates, 2600 of them, and balcony spectators. Two convention sessions were scheduled for today, with single sessions for the balance of the convention which marks the 100th G.O.P. anniversary and which is scheduled to end Thursday after speech by President Eisenhower.

PRESIDENTIAL LINK

Not yet in the convention city but nevertheless a key figure in the Republican gathering, presidential press secretary James Hagerty sports fancy new tie while talking to reporters in Washington yesterday. The President, he said, would fly out to San Francisco tomorrow, a day earlier than planned originally. The tie, he added, was a gift from Mr. Eisenhower.

CAMPAIGN PROP

Reminder of the weeks of campaigning in the near future, big trailer is hoisted into convention hall. Loaded with campaign paraphernalia, the trailer is one of the Citizens for Eisenhower bandwagons which will travel through the country before the November election. At the convention, it will give delegates an opportunity to get acquainted with the newest in campaign techniques.
—United Press Telephoto.

DISCORDANT NOTE

Gail Bei displays one of the cards found Saturday in hotel press room set up for reporters covering the convention. Cards reflected discord resulting from Harold Stassen's efforts to replace Vice President Nixon on the G.O.P. ticket with Gov. Christian Herter of Massachusetts. The "Goldsmith of the Waldorf" has been identified as Arthur J. Goldsmith, wealthy business man who lives at the Waldorf Towers in New York. A backer of Stassen for the presidency in 1948 and an early Eisenhower supporter, he told reporters he has been working, independently of Stassen, for Herter's candidacy for more than a year.

Dog of the Week

More curious than thirsty is Dog of the Week at the Humane Society Shelter. No longer in the puppy stage, he is 18 months old, the red dachshund is still young enough to have a typical lively interest in all that goes on around him. His name is Prince and he is available for adoption on personal application to the shelter, 1210 Macklind avenue.
—By Lester Linck, a Post-Dispatch Photographer.

WARMING UP FOR BIG SHOW

Getting in their licks before serious convention business moves into the spotlight, delegates and visitors whoop it up in behalf of Vice President Nixon in hotel lobby demonstration. Fur coat on demonstrator at right was not the hardship in the cool coast city it would have been in steaming Chicago last week.

Pavement Plato

Grand Thoughts In Shiny Heads

By Hal Boyle

NEW YORK (AP).

CURBSTONE comments of a pavement Plato:

For years bald men have had to put up with such snickering greetings from their mattress-headed friends as "Hi, cueball."

HAL BOYLE

The baldy—thanks to science—now can give this crushing rejoinder, "Hi yourself, you fathead."

For the evidence is growing that baldheaded men are, on the whole, more intellectually gifted than the ordinary race of man—something we have suspected ourselves for a long time—and therefore more to be envied than pitied.

The latest benefactor of the bald is Dr. M. Wharton Young, a professor of anatomy at Howard University. After 20 years of research Dr. Young has announced that a leading cause of baldness is simply an expanding brain.

It works this way, he says. The blood vessels that feed the hair flow through a layer of scalp fat. As you grow older your brain expands. This presses the layer of fat thinner, squeezes the blood vessels. They fail to bring enough nourishment to the hair growing cells, and your hair falls out.

Simple, isn't it?

THIS DOES LEAVE the problem of why more men than women grow bald. Dr. Young has an answer for this, too. He explains that women generally have a thicker layer of fat in most areas of their body, including the scalp.

The more fat a man or woman has in that overhead arch between his ears, therefore, the less likely he is to grow bald—particularly if his brain doesn't grow much as he matures. Dr. Young didn't dwell on what causes our brains to expand as we grow older. Perhaps he simply wanted to spare the feelings of those who brag about their thick crop of hair.

But the blunt truth is that, generally speaking, the thing that makes the brain grow is thinking. The cerebrum, or forepart of the brain, where the intellectual capacity centers, is in one way like a muscle. It grows with use.

A happy-go-lucky laborer may wear the same hat size all his life. A lawyer, whose brains earn him his living, is likely to need a larger hat at 50 than he did at 20. (He is more likely to be bald also).

★ ★ ★

THE CONCLUSION SEEMS inescapable—at least it does to us baldies—that any man of middle age he meets with a full crop of hair either has ducked his fair share of thinking, or is carrying an extraordinary load of blubber under his thatch.

It remains to be seen whether more hard thinking by women would so squeeze their fat pads we'd have a generation of bald-headed women. Over the centuries the girls have ducked the experiment.

Naturally this belated scientific confirmation of the mental superiority of us baldies creates in us a new sense of social responsibility.

We can cause our hair to fall out by knitting our brows, year after year, trying to figure out what horse will come in first in the third race at Saratoga. But we must not fritter away our vast growing brainpower on trifles. We must follow the example of Socrates, and grow grandly bald by thinking grand thoughts.

He Danced His Way to Hollywood

But When Fred Astaire Got There He Wanted to Get Off of His Feet And Try Hand at Dramatic Acting

By Sheilah Graham

HOLLYWOOD.

WHEN Fred Astaire arrived in Hollywood for his first starring role in "Flying Down To Rio," he was already the toast of Broadway and London and one of the great dancing stars of the century.

"But I was determined to be a dramatic actor rather than remain a dancer," Fred told me at Paramount. "And with this in mind, I called on the producer and said: 'Now listen. All I've been doing for the past 20 years is dancing, dancing, dancing. From now on. . . .'"

"Sit down, Fred," interrupted the producer. "Take a load off those overworked feet. You must be terribly tired!"

Twenty-six song-and-dance musicals later, Fred finds himself before the cameras dancing and singing in "Funny Face," with Audrey Hepburn. Next he'll do "Silk Stockings" with Cyd Charisse; "Poppo's Delicate Condition," with some dancing of course; and then perhaps another tune show with Bing Crosby. "I keep trying to retire, but. . ." Fred, who, when only 5, started in vaudeville teamed with sister Adele, shrugged helplessly. "Let's just say I love hard work," he concluded.

Astaire is also a composer and a long-time member of the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers. Some of his songs have landed on the Hit Parade. "And now I have branched out into the recording business—just for the fun of it."

Since the death of his wife, Phyllis, a year and a half ago after more than 20 years of happiness, Fred has devoted himself to his children. Fred Jr., 17, accompanied him to France when the "Funny Face" company moved abroad for street-scene dance sequences in Paris. The two Freds, 13-year-old Ava and Astaire's mother live in a big Beverly Hills home.

But to get back to his dancing. When Roland Petit, the celebrated ballet star and choreographer was asked to name the world's greatest living dancer, he replied, "Oh that's simple, Fred Astaire is the greatest of them all." When asked to name a second choice: "There isn't one," Petit replied. "Nobody can approach Astaire."

A lot of people think Fred is older than he really is because he's been around so long. When you start hoofing at five you're a veteran at 15 — and Fred long ago reached his majority! Yet the man is absolutely ageless. He hasn't changed too much since the drizzly afternoon 10 years ago when he completed the final dance sequence for "Blue Skies," took me by the arm and led me to his dressing room where he poured a drink for both of us and one for his press representative.

"I'm retiring," he stated with finality. "It's been a long grind. Year after year dancing eight to 10 hours a day. Planning, rehearsing, performing . . . worrying. I'm tired." He yawned as he spoke.

FRED ASTAIRE . . . HIS TIRED FEET HAVE CARRIED HIM THROUGH MORE THAN A SCORE OF SONG-AND-DANCE MUSICALS SINCE HE HIT HOLLYWOOD WITH YEN TO BE "A DRAMATIC ACTOR."

"Do you dance for pleasure?" I asked. "Oh, my, no!" said Fred with a laugh. "You might almost call me a wallflower. At parties I never dance unless I have to." The "have to" includes such partners as Ginger Rogers, Judy Garland, Vera-Ellen, Leslie Caron and Joan Crawford. Fred is lucky for his dancing partners. Joan Fontaine and the Misses Crawford and Rogers danced with him and then went on to win Academy Awards. "Audrey, of couse, has her Oscar already," he smiled. Of Miss Hepburn, he had this to say: "She is a show-business phenomenon. She's a great dancer because of her training in the classic ballet. It taught her not only technical know-how but also self-discipline. She can do anything she wants to—and do it well. She really dances up a storm."

I asked him to name his favorite dancing partner and Fred replied: "That's easy. Bing Crosby!"

While he wouldn't name his favorite feminine dancer, he had this to say about some of his partners: "Ginger Rogers is a showman and an effective performer. Rita Hayworth is a great dancer but her style and mine are different. Eleanor Powell, a wonderful person, has a powerful style. Judy Garland could learn a routine in a flash, though she isn't primarily a dancer. Vera-Ellen can do anything; she is technically just about perfect. Cyd Charisse and Leslie Caron both have technical proficiency and great personal warmth."

Fred's first and his greatest dancing partner was his sister Adele, with whom he fought his way up through vaudeville to the musical-comedy heights in such hits as "The Passing Show," "Apple Blossoms," "Lady Be Good" and "Ziegfeld Follies." They teamed in "Funny Face" on Broadway, but the current motion picture is a new production with a modern story. Only several of the great George and Ira Gershwin tunes remain.

When Adele married Britain's Lord Cavendish, she retired. Fred continued as a solo hoofer in New York, London and Hollywood. "I'll never do another stage show and I'd like to limit my films to one every two years," he says now.

RHYTHM is a basic part of Astaire. Even when seated, reading a paper or talking, his feet beat a tattoo on the floor or his fingers drum snappily on the table top. He has a set of drums standing near his high-fidelity phonograph and he spins Benny Goodman records by the hour, playing along with the band. He's a guy with a beat.

He likes horses too, and breeds them successfully at his Blue Valley ranch in the San Fernando valley. His Triplicate won more than $250,000 in races. Several of his steeds are running in Britain, Mexico and United States. Fred named one horse Buddy Rich, after his drummer friend. And he writes. He is working on a book now.

Adele, with whom he fought all right, too. The Fred Astaire dance schools which dot the continent are all prospering.

He can have his choice of movies, stage musicals or TV presentations. Not long ago when a prominent producer virtually begged him to take on an assignment Fred replied, "My feet are tired. I think I'll sit this one out."

Years ago this might have been accepted as his valedictory, but today we know better. Fred Astaire, the perfectionist and diligent worrier, will never voluntarily quit.

Contract Bridge

There are, however, several useful devices by which experienced players can "read" the distribution of the suits around the table and even determine the locations of many specific cards. The most useful of all of these is the rule of 11.

My mail clearly shows that a great many players, including some well beyond the novice stage, are still baffled by this device. There is no good reason why this should be so. Actually it is quite simple and its advantages are available, with very little study, to the beginner as well as the experienced player.

Here is how it works. When your partner leads a card which is the fourth highest in his suit (fourth highest is the accepted lead from a broken suit of four or more cards), then you deduct the number of the card led from 11.

The remainder represents the number of cards higher than the card led—which are in the hands of the other three players.

Today's deal is a simple example of how the rule of 11 works. Let's see what Mr. Masters learned from his partner's lead of the trey of hearts. Three from 11 leaves eight. So there were eight hearts higher than the trey, outside of Mr. Meek's hand. Mr. Masters saw four of these in his own hand and dummy. Therefore, Mr. Dale held four hearts higher than the trey.

There was the additional indiction that at least two of Mr. Dale's hearts were honor cards, because otherwise Mr. Meek would have had a sequence of honors (K Q 10 or Q J 9, etc.) in which case his proper lead would have been the top of the honor sequence and not the fourth highest card of the suit.

On this reasoning Mr. Masters could see there was little hope of defeating the contract by continuing hearts. So he won with the ace and shifted to the queen of diamonds, trapping Mr. Dale's king and beating the contract one trick.

If he had thoughtlessly returned the deuce of hearts at trick two, Mr. Dale could have won with the king and rattled off eight more tricks in spades and clubs.

Creamed Fresh Salmon

INGREDIENTS: Two tablespoons butter or margarine, two tablespoons flour, one-half cup stock (in which salmon was poached), one-half cup milk, two teaspoons lemon juice, one-fourth teaspoon Worcestershire sauce, one-half cup cooked drained green peas, one canned drained pimiento (cut in thin strips) three-fourth to one cup flaked poached fresh salmon, salt, pepper.

METHOD: Melt butter in saucepan over low heat; stir in flour. Remove from heat. Gradually pour in stock and milk, stirring until smooth after each addition. Stir in lemon juice and Worcestershire sauce. Cook and stir constantly over moderately low heat until bubbly and thickened. Stir in peas, pimiento and salmon; add salt and pepper to taste; reheat. Makes three servings.

Allergy Problem

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D.

IF you are healthy, you will not be interested in a campaign against disease. Only the sick, or those who have sickness in the family, are alert to the dangers of various illnesses. For example, if you have had a coronary attack I doubt that you would put down an informative article on that subject. It is not so much a question of curiosity as of self-preservation.

DR. PETER STEINCROHN

If your granddaughter has cerebral palsy you will be more interested in this relatively infrequent condition than in rheumatic heart disease. And likewise with cancer, diabetes or any other disease that may plague us human beings.

Allergy is not an exception. Those who suffer from it—or have it in their family, are intensely interested in it. Others, perhaps, think that allergy is being assigned a position of importance it doesn't deserve. Nevertheless, more and more are becoming aware that allergy (in all of its phases) is a major health problem.

I HAVE BEEN reading a pamphlet sent me by the American Foundation for Allergic Diseases. These facts from the pamphlet should interest those of you who have had direct or indirect experience with allergy.

"Asthma—hay fever—eczema and other allergic diseases are bringing pain and suffering to growing numbers of Americans. They already seriously afflict 17,000,000 Americans. The allergies spare none. They strike at the mature and the aged, men and women, young people and little children. They can disfigure, disable, cripple or totally incapacitate. They affect livelihood, careers, education and happiness.

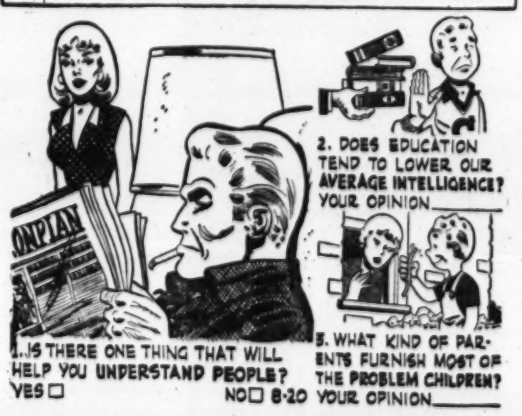
"For business and industry, the loss annually from occupational skin diseases is over $100,000,000. From hay fever and asthma 25,000,000 working days are lost each year. Allergies limit the use of life-saving antibiotic drugs and restrict the use of new chemical products. Allergies are medical and scientific mysteries which must be solved! The fundamental causes of allergic diseases are unknown. Only through scientific research, the powerful tool that has worked wonders in medical progress, can the causes be found for the benefit of millions."

I think it is suffice to say that at no other time in man's progress has so much concerted effort been made, as now, to overcome disease. I am glad to say, that although cancer and the heart and arteriosclerosis are the main fronts in which we are engaged, we are not leaving our flanks unprotected. Allergy is not an "unimportant" segment of the battle line. We doctors have seen how allergey can plague its victims. Having observed so many varied cases during practice I can see vividly the few-months-old baby completely covered with a horrible, messy skin condition brought about by allergy to cows' milk.

I SEE THE middle-aged man gasping and blue before his doctor gives him his syringeful of epinepherine to abort the attack of asthma. I see workers who have given up their job in the factory because their hands are allergic to oil. I see the lovely fur or frock sent back to the store because milady's skin is sensitive to these materials. I see the patient frightfully sick who has to do without penicillin because he is allergic to it. Let us recognize allergy for the powerful enemy it is. Only in this way will we ever overcome it.

Let's Explore Your Mind

By Dr. Albert E. Wiggam



Answer to Question 1.

YES—LOVE. When you love a person, what you don't understand, you take for granted and think unimportant. As Matthew Arnold says in my favorite poem, "Our Buried Life" (abridged): "When a beloved hand is laid in ours, our eyes can, in another's eyes, read clear; our world-deafened ear is by the tones of a loved voice, caressed. A bolt is shot back somewhere in the breast; the eye sinks inward and the heart lies plain."

Answer to Question 2.

Much evidence indicates yes. We require our teachers, mostly women, to spend many years educating themselves. This takes them out of the marriage market. Then the community looks with suspicion on them if they date as freely as other women. Also prospective pensions keep them in the profession. Thus, the world is denied millions of children of high intelligence. Nearly all educated women marry later and have fewer children than the uneducated. We use our best intelligence to lower our intelligence.

Answer to Question 3.

The overstrict and the overprotective. The overstrict make liars and cheats of their children, making them afraid to be honest and forthright. A child constantly watched and whose life is filled with dons't is headed for the problem class. Also, a child whose parents insist he always carry an umbrella, wear overshoes, never play rough-and-tumble games, etc., is likely to wind up as a problem. Researches show both kinds often make poor husbands, wives and parents.

The Voice Of Broadway

By Dorothy Kilgallen

GINNY SIMMS and Miami hotel owner Tony Sweet are emerging as the major romance of the Florida summer season. An engagement announcement wouldn't surprise their pals. . . . Brendan Behan, the playwright who created a sensation in London by appearing on the BBC after a drink or two or three—and falling off his chair while cameras rolled—is getting big money offers to tour the American lecture circuit. Several agencies are begging for the privilege of booking Behan for lectures this winter. . . . Harry Belafonte expects to be tapped for "Island in the Sun," Daryl Zanuck's flicker with Dorothy Dandridge and James Mason. . . . The producers of "The Iceman Cometh" at the Circle in the Square in Greenwich Village are ecstatic over a note just received from Helen Hayes. She caught the play before she left for Europe, and remembered to dash off a complimentary letter in which she called the revival "one of my great theater-going experiences."

GINNY SIMMS . . . A MAJOR ROMANCE.

ANITA LOOS will call her biography of Zsa Zsa Gabor "This Blonde Prefers Gentlemen." . . . Marti Stevens is pondering three possibilities for the next step in her theatrical career: One, to remain with the revue that has netted her such flattering critical acclaim, another to do Adelaide in a road company of "Guys and Dolls"; and the third—and by far the most challenging—an offer to go to Munich to star in a German version of "Kiss Me Kate."

★ ★ ★

JACK LEMMON is under the care of four doctors in London. He stayed too long under a sun lamp he borrowed from Robert Mitchum. . . . Marty Mills, once considered the exclusive property of Nanette Fabray, is dating model Gita Hall. . . . Greta Keller will cancel several European engagements to fly back to New York to appear as the society matron in "Pal Joey" at the Putnam County Playhouse the last week of August. She just couldn't resist the offer, despite the complications involved in accepting it; she's wanted to play the role ever since she saw Vivienne Segal in the original version.

JERRY LEWIS is busy signing contracts with a batch of promising performers—the start of his career as head of a personal management firm. . . . Gossip continues to link Ruth Roman with Jose Dorelis, but eyewitnesses note that Jeff Jones has been rather conspicuously in attendance since Ruth's recent dramatic arrival back in the States after the Andrea Doria disaster. . . . Singer Helen Forrest has suffered a return of vertigo and may have to undergo surgery in her ear to correct her sense of balance. . . . Learning to Dance

By Frances Ilg, M.D., and Louise Ames, Ph.D.
Of the Gesell Institute of Child Development

"HOW am I ever going to learn to dance if nobody ever dances with me? And who will ever dance with me when I don't know how to dance?"

This is a dilemma which faces a new batch of adolescent boys and girls every year. It is very similar to the problem with which beginning teachers are faced. Nobody will hire them until they've had experience, and how are they going to get the experience?

Fortunately the dilemma of the would-be dancer is much more easily solved than that of the would-be teacher. In most communities some form or other of dancing instruction is available—most often a season-long series of dancing lessons for boys and girls together.

WE'RE GOING TO TELL you about some of the dancing school experiences of the teen-age and pre-teen age boys and girls whom we have studied in New Haven, Conn.

Even as early as the age of 10 some girls, fewer boys, take regular ballroom dancing lessons. Girls as a rule, especially if some of their friends are having lessons, may go quite willingly and may have quite a lot of fun. Mothers have more trouble with boys. Many boys at this age are at the height of an anti-girl stage. They hate girls (they tell us). More than that, they think that going to dancing school is sissy. Worst of all, they are afraid that their friends will make fun of them if they go.

Most 10-year-old boys are rather docile and comforming at heart. If their parents insist on dancing school, most of them will accept it with fairly good grace. They may even behave fairly well while attending. In many cases their hearts are not in it and we are not sure that a great deal is gained by insisting.

SOME GIRLS, 10 or even earlier, have started on ballet lessons. They usually enjoy them and many parents feel that these lessons do a lot for co-ordination and posture.

More elevens than tens, and still more girls than boys, take ballroom dancing lessons. Except for the unusually enthusiastic or the unusually docile, this may not be a 100 per cent good idea. The rebelliousness which many 11-year-olds show at home is often quite evident at dancing school. Both boys and girls may complain that it is no fun, that they don't like the lessons, and that they don't like the teacher. The social stimulus of wishing to appear well in the eyes of the opposite sex has not yet come in to calm down behavior. And there is some question as to whether they learn anything now which they couldn't learn just as easily and more enthusiastically when they are 12.

Try and Stop Me

SAMUEL HOPKINS ADAMS, still writing best-sellers in his 80's, indignantly rejects the idea that a man should retire before he's at least 70. "Why make a man feel old and unwanted before his time?" demands Adams. "Consider the case of P. T. Barnum. He was already 61, endowed with more wordly goods than ever he could find use for, when he first organized the circus that later became known as the 'Greatest Show on Earth!'"

A YOUNG MARGIN CLERK in Wall Street noticed that old Mrs. Collins's credit balance topped the million mark and began treating her very deferentially indeed. Things got to the point where he was even taking her four ill-trained, vile-tempered dogs out for their constitutional every evening. Sure enough, when Mrs. Collins passed away, she remembered the young margin clerk in her will.

40 Nations to Share Scientific Information Collected In Worldwide Program — 45 Antarctic Bases Being Built

Second of Two Articles.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20 (INS). CONSTRUCTION being carried out by 11 nations to dot the Antarctic continent with 45 scientific bases alone would dwarf the preparations made for previous "International Geophysical Years."

Both the scope and the nature of the IGY effort have been changed, since the previous programs in 1882 and 1932 were confined to studies of magnetism and auroral effects in the Arctic and the idea then was that co-operative effort should be repeated once every 50 years.

The swift pace of science in recent years, and the possibilities for observing unusual sun spot activity from both the North and South Poles during the 18 months beginning July 1, 1957, were among the reasons given by the IGY Committee for selecting that period for the forthcoming studies.

It may be only coincidental that much of the information that will be collected, such as high-altitude air densities, data on the ionosphere, and exact distances between different points on the earth, is needed by the builders of intercontinental missiles.

No objections involving aid to missiles have been raised as yet and, under an agreement that the information obtained will be shared, the evidence is that 40 nations including Russia are wholeheartedly co-operating in the worldwide program.

In fact, with the United States and Russia competing for leadership, the IGY program has grown out of all proportion with its previous size. It now includes the United States plan to launch artificial earth satellites, and studies in many branches of science. Congress has budgeted $28,000,000 for United States participation, and additional funds have been pledged by the National Academy of Sciences and the Defense Department.

The present prospect is that the Russians will have the largest program for scientific bases in the Arctic, where less advance preparation is needed, but will make only about half the United States effort in the Antarctic.

THE Soviets have an ambitious program in the Antarctic, however. Originally, they wanted to build a base at the South Pole, but withdrew with a great show of good feeling to permit the United States project there.

Now they have established themselves at a place on the Antarctic coast called Mirny, and are exchanging twice-daily weather reports by radio with the Americans and others, and have been issuing cordial invitations to the United States and other parties to visit their base.

An Australian scientific party stopped at Mirny and was royally entertained. Adm. George J. Dufek, the American task force commander for "Operation Deepfreeze," has sent the Russians a reciprocating invitation, and it is possible that an exchange of visits will be arranged.

The largest program for the Antarctic has been started by the British, who are putting in 13 bases, while the second largest is Argentina's plan to build nine scientific stations.

Most of the English and Argentine locations are in the part of Antarctica lying closest to the southern tip of South America, where British and Argentine interests overlap—Little America No. 5 and McMurdo Sound are on the other side of the continent.

In addition to the two inland bases which will be the most difficult, the United States plans to put in three more coastal stations. The additional coastal bases, Knox, Adare and Weddell, are located in a semicircle embracing about half the continent.

One of these, Adare, will be built in co-operation with New Zealand. The New Zealanders will provide three scientists for this lookout and the United States will provide six.

Although the Russians will have only three bases including the present Mirny, the two additional bases they will build will be highly important to the scientific program.

One of them will be at the geomagnetic South Pole—the point at which the earth's magnetic lines of force converge, which is not identical with the geographic South Pole determined by the axis on which the earth rotates.

★ ★ ★

THE third Russian base will be at "the point of greatest inaccessibility," a high-lying, unexplored area which is in the part of the continent farthest from any sea.

Other countries building Antarctic bases are Chile, Australia, Norway, France, Japan and the Union of South Africa.

There are no official plans for using any of the bases after the 18-month IGY program, but R. Adm. Richard E. Byrd, Dufrek and others observing the present rush of activity think that Antarctic will never again be completely uninhabited.

Dufek said large deposits of coal are already known in the Antarctic. Exploitation of the coal is prevented by prohibitive transportation costs, including the cost of hauling excess fuel all the way to Antarctica in order to have it for the return trip.

The Admiral pointed out that atomic fuel can be considered virtually weightless. He said that when nuclear power becomes available for merchant vessels the long-haul fuel problem will disappear and the continent may be opened up rapidly.

The firmly-entrenched United States diplomatic policy with respect to Antarctica is that America makes no claims and recognizes none. This gives the continent approximately the same legal status as the high seas—open to exploitations by any nation that can finance the operation.

THE END.

Words, Wit And Wisdom

Hog On Ice.

ABOUT that phrase "independent as a hog on ice"? The question arose when Minnesota's Gov. Orville Freeman used it in a speech and several readers asked how the phrase came to its present meaning of a person who takes an exasperatingly stubborn and self-assured position. It's a phrase to challenge anyone's curiosity since, at first thought, there's hardly anything less independent than a squealing porker sliding around on a frozen pond.

Word expert Charles Funk attempted to trace the origin of the phrase and came up with a theory that the "hog" referred to is not the ordinary farm animal but a marker used in the Scottish game of curling, in which flat stones are slid along ice. That seemed to me and to many readers a singularly unconvincing explanation, so I'll share with you some of the interesting theories sent in from readers in all parts of the country.

First, an explanation that goes back nearly 140 years to the childhood of the grandmother of my correspondent, Olive L. Cluver of Etiwanda, Calif. "When I was a little girl," she writes, "I asked my grandmother (who was born in 1812) how a hog could show his independence.

"She told me that when she was a child, her grandfather raised hogs. When he wanted to move these hogs from one side of a stream to the other, he waited for the stream to freeze over to a thickness that would hold the weight of the hogs.

"Then he sanded a strip across the stream. A helper would go to the opposite side with feed and call the hogs. If one or more of them got off the sanded strip, they would begin to slip around. Then the hogs would lie down and not move until the men got them back on the sanded ice."

Well, that's a plausible theory—and certainly not quite so grim as one from Rev. R. O. Gates of Akron, O. "This is how I 'heered' it," he writes. "A hog does not go on ice until after it's butchered. Then it goes into the freezer. Since it is dead, it needs nothing, wants nothing, and cares about nothing. Therefore it is quite independent of people and things."

This explanation surely sounds conclusive, but I somehow doubt if the expression would have earned such widespread popularity if its origin had been in the slaughter house.

Fix It Yourself

Hot and Cold.

FOR our money there is no better way to start the day—assuming that one has to start the day—than with a warm shower. The sad fact of the matter is, however, that in a lot of homes that warm shower lasts only for a few seconds.

All of a sudden it becomes a scalding hot shower and by the time you have got out you have a strong resemblance to a boiled lobster. This state of repairs is not only upsetting but it's dangerous—especially if there are young children in the household.

In a well planned and installed plumbing system the temperature of the water running out of a shower head or tub faucet should not vary when someone turns on a cold water faucet at some other fixture.

The fact remains this is just what happens in many a home. As soon as a cold water faucet is turned on at some other point, the flow of cold water to the shower or tub either stops completely or is greatly reduced. This condition is often due to undersize pipes and in many cases it is not too expensive an undertaking to have them replaced with larger pipes.

In other homes the trouble is with the installation of the pipes and this again can often be easily corrected. And, of course, today it's possible to get special thermostatic mixing valves for the shower

Showers that suddenly turn boiling hot are a real danger. Even if the water is never hot enough to give you a scalding, you may easily slip and fall while trying to make a hurried exit from under that stream of water.

PERFECT POSTURE IS NEEDED

FALL'S high-placed beltlines on suits, costumes and dresses are more lavishly displayed in evening gowns. Luxurious fur collars embellish jackets. Fur bands add the extravagant touch to brocade tunics.

Whether it's the lifted beltline of the Empire or the elegant tunic, the manner in which the costume is worn is important, too. None of the season's fashions stressing supreme elegance can be successful if your carriage is poor. A woman can have stunning clothes—but if she has sloppy posture, no one ever looks at her except to criticize.

Try standing in front of a full-length mirror so you can see a near-profile view of the right side of your figure. Observe yourself with a cold, impersonal eye. Do you stand erect? Or, are you the one who sags in the middle?

If you stick your stomach out, or have a sway-back stance, then you had better hurry and straighten up. You weren't born to stand that way. Bad habits have just molded your stance. Stand against a wall and try to make your backbone, from head to waist, flat against the wall. Your buttocks, calves and heels also should be against the wall.

If your waist won't go against the wall, it means you have been developing a sway-back posture. Bend your knees a little, then slide up, forcing your back flat against the wall. Take a deep breath and flatten your stomach, dropping your shoulders. Now, you should be standing with back flat and straight, rib-cage lifted, shoulders down and back, head erect, neck straight. Walk away from the wall and try to keep this posture.

Achieve grace of the highest degree. Make yours the posture ideal. Improve stance, figure, health and the appearance of your clothes. Read the informative, easy-to-follow booklet "Your Posture." Martha Carr's OPINION

REG U S PAT OFF

Dear Martha:

I AM a young woman of 21, considered attractive and am an above-average dresser. For the past two years I have dated one man and for 18 months of this time we have been going steady, planning to be married late this year.

Last March it became necessary for me to leave town for a few weeks to care for an ailing member of my family. On my return, I found my fiance had dated one of my roommates. Naturally, there was a quarrel and we broke up, although he insisted this was the only time he had done this. Martha, I have dated a number of attractive men who actually have more to offer, but it seems impossible to forget the past as I find myself thinking of him. What suggestions would you or your readers have for repairing what once was, or should I hold firm and try to overcome my feelings? UNDECIDED.

I don't understand from your letter whether he's still around or if he's out of your life and you're asking whether you should try to get him back, knowing you still love him despite what he has done. I can understand why you might be a little miffed, and maybe your roommate was somewhat to blame for accepting his invitation, but don't you think you might have been a little more understanding? How do you know? Maybe he merely wanted to be with someone who was close to you and maybe they talked about you the whole time they were together. Of course, knowing only what you have told me, I have no idea whether he's a person who can be trusted or not. Surely, as his fiance, you can sense that. And if this is just an isolated case, if he's really the one you care for above all others and if you can forget as well as forgive, maybe you can repair the damage. If you do get back together again, however, don't hold it over his head forever or you'll both be miserable.

Dear Martha:

I AM WRITING in answer to the person who signed herself as Guilty Mother-in-Law, saying she bought things for her son because she loved both him and his wife. Well, why don't you buy your daughter-in-law something? Maybe your son would rather his own wife bought him something. I thought my mother-in-law was the grandest person in the world until I was married for a week. She told me how to cook, clean, wash and iron. My own mother worked for five years and I did all of this at home and I think I know enough about keeping house. I realize I don't know everything but I don't need anyone to teach me over again. So I think you'd better realize that your son is married and his wife can take care of him as well as you can.

ANOTHER DAUGHTER-IN-LAW.

Dear Martha:

TO GUILTY MOTHER-IN-LAW: You should feel guilty. Why take that pleasure away from your daughter-in-law? If you love them both as you say, give something for them both and stop putting everything on your son's back. Little things from her mean more than big things from mother.

MOTHER OF A SON.

Job Hunting Advice

By Josephine Lowman

A FRIEND of mine is head of an employment agency and she often has mentioned her experiences in working with people. If you could hear her talk you would understand the importance of good grooming when you look for a job (and after you get one, too).

JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

At no other time does personality and good grooming pay such big dividends as when looking for a job or being interviewed for one. By this I do not mean that a well turned ankle makes up for skill. Reputable firms are scared to death by this approach.

Nevertheless, many young women fail to get jobs they had set their hearts on because of poor grooming. Maybe it was poorly cared for fingernails, or a slip that showed, a dingy collar, or shoes which needed polishing. The modern office is streamlined in efficiency and in appearance and the dowdy looking woman does not have a chance.

Naturalness is always an asset in social life, at home and in the office. Don't try to pose. Be yourself. In modern competition it takes brains, honesty, enthusiasm, good grooming and special training. Many capable people have missed the job for which they were fitted by training and temperament because of some one attribute which struck the boss as impossible. It may have been careless grooming, a bad breath, poor posture or self-consciousness which caused the downfall.

Beauty After 40

By Edyth Thornton McLeod

"MY DAUGHTER will be married in September at a 10 o'clock morning ceremony. What should I wear? I want to look as nice as I can. I am 56, 5 feet 3½ inches and weigh 145 pounds. I am a brunette and have been thinking of wearing a dark color but I would not want to wear black. Can I wear a large hat?—Mrs. H."

An early morning ceremony calls for a simple outfit and, of course, a hat. A navy dress or a suit of faille would be smart and suitable. You could also wear any shade of gray. A large hat might not be as becoming as a small one. Black accessories would be smartest with gray; and with blue, you could use pale blue. I hope the bridegroom-to-be sends you a corsage.

★ ★ ★

"WHAT part of the wedding such as the dinner, flowers, and so forth are the responsibilities of the groom's parents? —D.E.I."

The bridegroom's parents assume no part of the expenses of the wedding; the bride's parents pay for everything connected with the wedding. The groom's parents contribute a nice present and entertain the bride before the wedding.

★ ★ ★

"I AM five feet tall and weigh about 115 pounds. I have brown hair with touches of gray, hazel eyes, and my complexion is on the dark side. I am 42. What should I wear?—IN DOUBT."

White or pink next to the face would be especially becoming with black or navy blue. Clear, fresh greens and pale grays with pink undertones would be very good.

Your face powder should have a pink tone and your lipstick should be one of the so-called pink family.

International Designer Pattern

WHATEVER the special something is that French designers give to their suits, it is always readily recognizable no matter in what city it makes its appearance.

This one by Cardin has it unquestionably, and perhaps it can only be identified as chic. He puts a curve in the double breasted closing, adds more curve with carefully calculated bodice darts, continues the idea with curved tabs on the hips. Note how the sleeves stop short of the wrist, another typically Parisian touch.

Made without a lining, it becomes an ideal two piece dress, but either way, you'll find it easy to do since the pattern is precisely perforated for accurate matching. Choose wools, suiting silks such as ottoman, faille or brocade, or even linen, pique or novelty cottons.

Size.	Bust.	Waist.	Hips.
14	36½	26½	37½"	*17
16	38	28	38"	*17¼
18	40	30	40"	*17½

Pattern S-322, size 12 requires 2⅞ yards of 54-inch material for suit and one yard of 35-inch for interfacing.

To order a pattern state size, enclose $1. Airmail handling requires 25 cents extra. Address International Designer Patterns, St. Louis Post-Dispatch, Box 993, G.P.O. Dept. SX-17, New York 1, N.Y. Ninety-six page Pattern Book "B" 50c. If paid by check add 4 cents.

The Dean Speaks Up

On the Subject of Gratitude

By Adele Starbird

JUST this morning I received a letter requesting me to write about gratitude. But first I must write about ingratitude.

Dean Starbird

I think it was President Theodore Roosevelt who said, when informed that a certain man disliked him intensely, "I can't imagine why he should. I have never done him a favor."

Ingratitude is the theme of the most famous French farces, "Le Voyage de Monsieur Perrichon."

Perrichon, a small merchant, takes his wife and daughter on a vacation trip to Switzerland. Two young men, Armand and Daniel, also on vacation, become friendly rivals for the daughter's hand.

While attempting to climb Mont Blanc, Perrichon loses his footing and falls into a crevasse from which he is saved by Armand. At first he is voluble in his thanks and it is evident that Armand is the favored suitor. But it doesn't take long for his gratitude to wear thin; he gets tired of hearing his wife and daughter praise Armand's courage; he doesn't like to be reminded that he fell. Armand is puzzled by his sudden coldness and peevishness.

★ ★ ★

BUT DANIEL understands the baser side of human nature. He himself falls into a crevasse, being sure that Perrichon is there to pull him out. Now the tables are turned. Daniel tells everybody about Perrichon's heroic act, as does Perrichon himself, and the story gets better and better. Papa Perrichon, when he looks at Daniel, is reminded that he is a hero; when he looks at Armand, he remembers that he was a fool. Naturally he wants to keep Daniel in the family as his son-in-law.

Daniel explains cynically to Armand the stragem by which he won the father's consent. He points out that Armand's mistake was in doing a favor instead of receiving it. (This little homily on ingratitude is always referred to as "the lesson of Monsieur Perrichon.")

THE LAST TIME I was in Paris a friend took me to see this play at the Comedie Francaise. "That old thing!" I thought. "Everbody knows it by heart."

I couldn't have been more mistaken. Far from being shopworn, it was played with a lightness and verve that were delicious, and it rocked the house. I am sure that two-thirds of the audience knew it as I did, line by line, so that they could anticipate all the jokes, but they found it none the less hilarious.

I decided that night that the real lesson of Monsieur Perrichon was that you must never expect gratitude from a petty mind.

It takes a generous, large-minded nature to feel gratitude. Such a person does not regard his obligation to you as a crushing load; he is strong enough to carry it joyfully. No matter how much he does in return, he never feels that he has wiped out the score; he wants to remember the favor you did as long as he lives.

There is another angle to gratitude. The one who does the favor should also be generous and tactful. He should belong to those "toward whom it is sweet to feel gratitude."

To make gratitude sweet, both for the giver and the recipient, there must be mutual respect, with a little dose of humility on both sides, a little dose of consideration and affection—in short, grace.

Tasty Tricks

Lamb stews react like a charm to herbing capers. Use a pinch (not more) of three kinds of herbs, for example, thyme, marjoram and bayleaf. A clove of garlic too.

My Day

Comment on Democratic Campaign

By Eleanor Roosevelt

THE HAGUE, Netherlands.

I WAS very much relieved when President Truman seemed to regain some of his desire to unite the Democratic party and came out on Wednesday evening at the Chicago convention for the platform plank on civil rights as presented by the platform committee. It must have been rather a shock to his protege, Gov. Averell Harriman.

Apparently the old politician was realizing the realities of the situation and accepting them a little too late but, nevertheless, with wisdom in the end.

I have not quite recovered yet from the fact that he was the one to say so many things which the Republicans can quote against the Democratic candidate in the coming campaign, always stressing the fact, of course, that they were said by a Democrat.

★ ★ ★

OF COURSE, Adlai Stevenson will not make a campaign such as Mr. Truman would make. They are two different kinds of men. That, however, need not mean that it will be a less fighting campaign, or less effective.

What the country needs is to have certain facts explained to them calmly and quietly, and I believe Mr. Stevenson can do that extremely well.

As I drove to the station in New York on Thursday morning, my taxi driver said, "Mrs. Roosevelt, I don't think the Democrats, though I am a Democrat, can win against the Republicans this year. We taxi drivers are making good money. What concerns most people in the country first is how they make a living."

★ ★ ★

I told him I quite understood, that taxi men in the big cities were making good money, and employment in the big corporations, except perhaps the auto industry, was still at a peak and wages were good. But, I said, in certain areas a great many men have been laid off and I wondered if he had noticed in his own neighborhood whether small businesses were doing well.

★ ★ ★

HE THOUGHT for a minute and then answered, "Come to think of it, there are a lot of little stores that are closed and have 'for rent' signs on them."

I said that is also what happened to small farms. The big corporate farm is doing well; the family farm is going out of existence. About 60 or 70 per cent of the business of the country, agricultural and industrial is small business. Where that begins to go badly, it does not reflect itself quickly in loss of employment. But in the long run you get a more serious slump, and that is what is creeping up on us.

It will probably be prevented until after election day, but I would not be surprised to see a real break in our economy immediately and it will not have been brought on by the Democrats, but by Republican policies.

These things have to be explained simply and clearly and I think Adlai Stevenson can do it. I think he can bring the men around him to think through these problems and start on new solutions.

Luxury in Bathroom

By Elizabeth Hillyer

NO room in the house wants to be typical anymore. Bedrooms become bed-sitting rooms, and take on a living-room look with living room furniture and accessories. The kitchen becomes a living-kitchen, or the dinette set is so high style one part of it looks like a dining room.

Dining rooms and libraries replan themselves to be TV rooms. Even the bathroom sheds its typical swan or fish stab at decorating to put on handsomely untypical decorated airs.

The Celanese acetate taffeta shower curtains are properly dutiful while they have the look of draperies, and they're matched by short curtains for the windows. A long table which could go anywhere in the house has a white glass top no splashing water, perfume or lotion can mar—nor can lipstick or nail polish.

UNTYPICAL BATHROOM HAS PRACTICAL POINT OF VIEW.

ROME.

The Roman Empire was broken up 15 centuries ago, but Rome remained a center of power. The Roman Catholic Church used Rome as the home of the popes.

Vatican City, the papal headquarters, is cut off from Rome in a technical sense, but people still regard Rome as the governing city of the church.

Vatican City is classed as an independent country. It is a small area which is surrounded by the city of Rome.

The people of Rome point proudly to their past. Here it was that the leading republic of ancient times grew up. Roman citizens chose officers by popular vote. The Roman Senate made laws.

* * *

SINCE REACHING Rome, I have paid a visit to the famous Roman Forum. There I saw pillars and other remains of various buildings.

The Forum started out as an open space where farmers and others gathered to trade. It was a market place. Later came the custom of using the Forum for public speeches. Men with special ideas about politics told their views, and were cheered or shouted down.

Temples were built around the Forum, and in one of these special honor was given to Juno Moneta. In that temple many Roman coins were minted. Our word "money" came from the "Moneta" part of the name of the goddess.

* * *

Did the new forums mean that the people had gained back their power? Far from it. Some persons spoke of the largest forum as "bigger and better," but it meant nothing in the way of control by the people. The emperors continued to keep the power in their hands.
